Law tough on porno headed to suburbs

by KURT BAER

New county antipornography laws, using stringent zoning codes and neighborhood vigilance, would "make it difficult, if not impossible" for pornographers to move their businesses to the suburbs, Cook County officials said Wednesday.

"Operators of pornographic businesses will have to stand the light of public scrutiny in attempting to prove their business is beneficial to the area," Alex Seith, Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals said, speaking at a public hearing on proposed anti-smut amendments to the county zoning code.

The amendments would force operators of adult book stores, movie theaters, and nude dancing clubs to appear at a public hearing in the area where they want to do business.

"I cannot think of any village that would come before us (the zoning board) and say, 'I favor this business.' Nor do I know of any homeowners' group in Cook County that would say so," Seith said.

A PUBLIC HEARING before the zoning board would be part of a requirement that adult entertainment businesses apply for a special-use permit.

The ordinance would prohibit any such businesses within 1,000 feet of each other, or within 1,000 feet of a residential neighborhood. They would be restricted to just one of the county's eight commercial zoning categories.

Existing pornographic businesses would have only a limited amount of time with which to comply with the requirements or shut down, Seith said.

The idea is to make pornographic business so difficult that entrepreneurs can't prosper, officials said.

Steven Lenet, Palatine village planner, testifying at Wednesday's hearing, recommended the ordinance be made even more restrictive. Pornography shops also should be banned within 1,000 feet of schools, churches, commuter stops and businesses holding a liquor license, he said.

"THE VILLAGE of Palatine strongly supports this ordinance," Lenet told the zoning board and nine county commissioners present Wednesday.

Adult book stores and the 53 Drive-in movie theater near Rand Road and Rte. 53 in unincorporated Palatine Township have been a source of complaints by Palatine area residents.

The county ordinance would apply to the Rand Road-Rte. 53 area, Lenet said.

The Palatine Township board of auditors has voted unanimously to support the county plan.

Anthony Robert Martin-Trigona, who is opposing Seith for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, attacked the ordinance as a veiled attempt to export pornography from Chicago to the suburbs by legalizing it in certain zones.

"YOU WILL HAVE pornography in the suburbs as surely as you have toad stools in the spring if you pass this ordinance," Martin-Trigona said.

He was ruled out of order by County Board Pres. George Dunne when he said the crime syndicate was behind the proposed ordinance.

Morris Alexander, assistant state's attorney, said the amendments were "exceptionally good and would not be

Fame—too big a burden for Elvis?

by DIANE MERMIGAS

While radio disc jockeys, pop culture experts, writers and fans eulogized Elvis Presley Wednesday, much of the country's conscience was troubled by reports of Presley's recent discontent.

The memories Elvis has left behind have been tainted with images of an entertainer who never found happiness despite success and fortune. He was never really able to cope with his rags-to-riches fame.

Ironically, last week's release of "Elvis: What Happened?," a book written by the 42-year-old performer's former bodyguard, Delbert (Sonny) West, reinforced by long-rumored pictures of a pill-popping, reclusive and discontented Elvis. The book projects a harsh, bewildering image that also surrounded Judy Garland, Janis Joplin, Jimi Hendrix and Freddie Prinze in premature death.

PSYCHOLOGY AND pop culture professors at Chicago area universities Wednesday called it a phenomenon of the profession.

"It seems that when a movie or music star does something or says something, it is bigger than life. People come to see them as demigods and not as human beings. They read about them and think they know them, and when they die, fans suffer a great loss," said Philip Brickman, assoc. professor of psychology at Northwestern University.

"All I know about Elvis is what I have read or seen from time to time. But, it's easy enough to understand how his quick rise to stardom could have been the source of any unhappiness he might have known. Sudden changes in our lives, whether good or bad, bring with them great depression or euphoria. And they also bring a great amount of stress," he said.

Money and fame doesn't always spell happiness, Brickman said, citing a survey he and other psychology department members have been conducting of Illinois state lottery winners.

THEIR SITUATION is just like that of a star's. We have found in talking with winners that money doesn't necessarily bring them happiness. It can't make up for your personal problems," he said.

Elvis' life story seems a classic in the entertainment world.

He had a dirt-poor childhood, the only one of twin boys who survived birth in a two-room house in Tupelo, Miss. His truck-driving days ended when he recorded his first song for Sun Records in 1954.

Appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show" gave way to a stint in the U.S. Army, which was followed by a head-on plunge into movies.

Friendships with the likes of Ann-Margaret, two generations of females swooning over hits ranging from "That's All Right, Mama" to "Love Me Tender" and glittering, vibrant concerts highlighted his 23-year career.

Driving his black Lincoln limousine, Presley once was seen dropping off 140 envelopes which, he said, contained checks for charities in Memphis, Nashville, California and a number of others across the country. The singer often extracted promises of anonymity from the organizations.

THE COUNTRY BOY was not as shy about his habit of giving away luxury cars to strangers. He often startled persons whom he met at car dealerships by offering to buy them any car they picked.

Last year, Presley ended a ski resort vacation at Vail, Colo., by buying nine luxury automobiles worth $110,000 for police officers who guarded him, wives of companions and a television newsman who did a story he liked.

A nurse at Baptist Hospital in Memphis, where Presley stayed during his illntsses, said the singer bought her a

Taxi firm may end participation in senior subsidy

One of the two taxicab companies in Arlington Heights may drop out of the village's subsidized taxi program for senior citizens.

Chuck Kolls, owner of Arlington Best Cab Co., which operates four taxis, said he will notify village officials of his decision by Sept. 1.

"If I continue with the program it could cost me all my drivers," he said. "I've had complaints from each of my 10 drivers about it."

KOLLS ESTIMATED the program costs each driver $8- to $10-a-day in profits.

Robert Birks, owner of Arlington City Cab Co., which operates 18 taxicabs, said he will continue in the program even though he is losing money because of it.

The service is available to residents age 65 and older who have registered for special cards supplied by the village's health department. The program allows senior citizens to ride anywhere within the village limits for 50 cents. The village then pays the taxi companies a $1 subsidy for each ride.

The program costs the village about $24,000 a year.

Kolls said the average taxi ride in the village registers $3 on the meter. The $1.50 paid through the senior citizen program only pays for mechanical upkeep and gas, he said.

MORE THAN 2,000 senior citizens hold cards for the program and the number of subsidized rides averages between 1,600 and 1,800 monthly.

Village officials said Kolls' taxicabs provide about 200 rides a month for senior citizens, but they questioned whether the average taxi ride costs $3. A study conducted in 1974 concluded that the average taxi fare for rides within the village limits was $1.60.

"I think the program is very necessary," Edward Geiss, human services coordinator for the village, said "It meets an evident need in the community. On the other hand, I don't think

Bell to start charging $5 for message unit list

by LEA TONKIN

Curiosity will be costly for Illinois Bell Telephone Co. customers starting Friday when the utility starts charging phone users a minimum of $5 for copies of their monthly message unit reports.

The Illinois Commerce Commission Wednesday approved Illinois Bell's request for the service charge which will only be charged for copies of the report.

Customers who visit phone company offices will be able to view their message unit report at no charge.

But copies, which previously had been free, will be $5 for the first page and 65 cents for each additional page.

The company will provide copies free of charge, however, if there is a billing dispute, Judy Vandewater of the ICC said.

The company does not oppose customers going to their local phone company office to look at their monthly message unit report, says Mernie Miller, Illinois Bell representative in Arlington Heights.

The problem is "that theer are more people than ever wanting to scan details of their local message unit calls," she said.

It's a tremendous clerical job," Mrs. Miller said.

Bus hijacker holds 30-50 hostage

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — A man armed with a sawed-off rifle hijacked a city bus Wednesday night and drove to a Santa Cruz County mountain religious retreat, where he took over a cafeteria, holding 30-50 persons hostage.

The man, described by police as apparently "seeking revenge" for the death of a friend, stole a Santa Cruz city bus late Wednesday but released its four passengers and a driver.

He then drove to Bonnie Doon, a remote mountain town about 15 miles north of Santa Cruz and parked the bus at the Baha'i Center, an ecumenical retreat, and went into the dining room, locked the doors and took over.

Santa Cruz County sheriff's deputies surrounded the area and a special negotiating team was talking with the man.

In panic-stricken moment son becomes dad's savior

by JOHN LAMPINEN

It has been difficult for John Cozzi to sleep lately.

It has been that way for four days. He is 14, and teen-age boys have trouble forgetting enough to relax. Each time he tries, John remembers what happened Saturday night and what he did.

He apparently saved his father's life.

John Cozzi Sr. is at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago recovering from an ulcer attack requiring three pints of blood. Doctors and paramedics figure if his son had not given him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, Cozzi might not have survived.

COZZI, 45, of 235 Spring Hill Dr., Roselle, has suffered from the ulcer since he was a teen-ager. It is a "silent" ulcer. He never knows it is bleeding until he has an attack.

Last time he had one, about four years ago, he lost eight pints of blood.

But Cozzi had been feeling fairly well lately. He was able to do the things with his family that he enjoys doing.

He is a general contractor, and although he has been busy building a new house for the family and another for his married daughter, Lilliann Hellyer, he still found time, daughter Debbie Cozzi, 16, said, to be with the children.

"Our whole family is really close," she said.

NO WHERE WAS IT closer than between John and his dad. It is no accident that John would like to become a contractor or an architect some day.

Sometimes, John recalled, he'd go out with his father to help work on houses. Cozzi was teaching him the plumbing trade.

But the first sign that the ulcer was acting up came Saturday morning. Cozzi mentioned to Debbie that he was bleeding slightly.

It was later that night, while he was watching television with his wife and John, that he began feeling poorly.

HE WAS LYING on the floor and finally got up to go rest in the bedroom. He called for his wife, and she told John to get some smelling salts for him.

"I thought he was going to die," John recalled, "especially when I saw him on the bed when I first came in."

Cozzi was extremely pale, and after John administered the smelling salts, Cozzi got up to go to the bathroom. It

A model ordinance passed by the city of Detroit has been held constitutional by the U S. Supreme Court.

Alexander proposed that old fashioned "peep shows" be added to the list of regulated businesses and County Comr Irene C Hernandez suggested that massage parlors be included as well.

"THE MAJORITY of massage parlors are a front for crime and prostitution," she said.

The Cook County zoning ordinance applies only to unincorporated areas and the proposed amendments would not affect adult entertainment businesses that seek to open within cities and villages.

"This is the only way to control this kind of use," Lenet said "Rather than setting up so-called combat zones (where pornography is concentrated), the ordinance scatters them"

The zoning board is expected to recommend adoption of the zoning amendments, perhaps as soon as the county board's next meeting Sept 6

Law takes aim at suburb porno

difficult to enforce."

A model ordinance passed by the city of Detroit has been held constitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Alexander proposed that old fashioned "peep shows" be added to the list of regulated businesses and County Comr. Irene C. Hernandez suggested that massage parlors be included as well.

"THE MAJORITY of massage parlors are a front for crime and prostitution," she said.

The Cook County zoning ordinance applies only to unincorporated areas and the proposed amendments would not affect adult entertainment businesses that seek to open within cities and villages.

Lenet said he helped write a similar pornography law for Palatine four months ago. Other Northwest suburbs also have passed or are considering ordinances on the subject.

"This is the only way to control this kind of use," Lenet said. "Rather than setting up so-called combat zones (where pornography is concentrated), the ordinance scatters them."

The zoning board is expected to recommend adoption of the zoning amendments, perhaps as soon as the county board's next meeting Sept. 6.

JULIO CHARO'S trailer in Prairie View is spattered with oil which gushed from a broken pipeline Monday night. The oil, along with the smell, drove he and his wife to the home of relatives.

Thar she blows! Gusher just a broken oil pipeline

by DEBBE JONAK

Julio and Dora Charo had just sat down to watch the baseball when the oil hit.

At first they thought it was rain. But then they noticed a heavy, familiar smell. They rushed outside and there, about 750 feet to the east of the Prairie View trailer, was a gushing, green geyser, shooting 300 feet into the sky.

"I jumped into my car and got it out of the way. Then I went back and got my wife out of the trailer," said Charo, who lives near Weiland and Apticisic roads.

THE CHAROS' trailer and surrounding crops were sprayed with oil Monday night from a break in Amoco's West Shore pipeline, which dumped more than 140,000 gallons of oil in the area.

The break occurred when a bulldozer hit the line at 7:45 p.m. on the property of Dick's Crane Service, 500 Industrial Ln.

It flowed full force for about 45 minutes, until Amoco workers could shut it off. Most of the oil was confined to an undeveloped, dirt area on the property of Dick's Crane.

"A lake covered this whole area, two feet deep," James Smith area manager for Amoco Pipeline, said Wednesday, pointing to a one-acre area.

He and his crew had been working around the clock to repair the line and clean up the spilled oil, Smith said. They will be finished with the major work today, he said.

THEY HAVE salvaged about 70,000 gallons, but assessment of loss, damages and cost have just begun.

The damage was minimal to the surrounding environment and property, Amoco environmental researchers said. Had the pipeline been carrying gasoline or kerosene at the time it was hit, they said, an explosion may have occurred.

The pipeline is used by many other companies besides Amoco, with many different types of fuel running through it. It was carrying Texaco furnace oil from Des Plaines to commercial firms Monday night.

"This guy (Charo) got in his car and drove out of the spill. If it had been gas, that would've caused a fire right there," the researcher said.

The furnace oil also is flammable, he said. However, there is no danger now. The Long Grove Fire Dept., kept watch around the spill area until the danger had passed.

CHARO AND HIS family were forced to move out of their trailer, which is covered with streaks of oil and smells of fuel.

They are staying with his brother in Mount Prospect, until Amoco either cleans up the trailer or replaces it

Both Charo and his employer, David Weiland of Weiland Greenhouse, are afraid Amoco would be slow to make restitution.

The oil spill just missed Weiland's flower crop. The greenhouse is next door to the Charo's trailer.

"It really could have been a lot worse than it is," Weiland said. "But now I just want them to take care of the man who lives here so he can have a home and place to sleep."

THE 54-FOOT TRAILER must be replaced, he said, as the oil seeped into its seams and saturated the insulation.

Amoco officials said they are looking into the matter and will pay for any damages. They then will seek compensation from Dick's Crane Service.

Amoco maintains the contracting service is responsible, because the bulldozer ventured off the company's property and hit the line in an easement near the Soo-Line railroad tracks.

A source said Dick's Crane claims the line is on the company's land and thus Amoco should pay for the damages. No one at Dick's Crane would comment on the problem, but surveyers have been called in to determine property boundaries.

The oil sprayed 1,200 feet northeastward, blown that way by the wind Monday night, Amoco researchers said. They were surveying the area around Charo's home.

TREES, CORN CROPS, tomato crops and grass were covered by the green-brown film.

"The damage is quite minimal," John Lamping, staff ecologist, said.

The oil has only permeated the ground one-half inch and will be defused through rain and organic decay before it saturates much deeper, he said.

Thus the people in the area do not have to worry about it reaching their underground water supply, he said.

The corn and tomatoes will not be damaged because they are almost ready for harvesting, he said. However, the oil will damage the leaves of the plants.

GENE HONN, University of Illinois Extension Service adviser, agreed the crop probably would not be hurt. However, the truck farmer who owns the crops probably will not be able to sell the tomatoes from the half-acre covered with oil, Honn said.

The effect on the area's wildlife also has been minimal, another researcher at the site said.

"We found a rabbit that was dead this morning — but that's the only thing so far."

A WORKMAN clears rubble from the ditch containing the oil pipeline that broke this week, spewing 140,000 gallons of oil.

Dark side of Elvis bared in book by his bodyguards

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The millions who loved Elvis Presley and his music will remember him as the unknown kid from Tupelo, Miss., who made it big with a guitar and a gimmick — the King of Rock 'n' Roll who could do no wrong.

But there was a darker side to the superstar who throughout the 1950s and '60s thrilled America with his swivel hips and golden hits. And three of his former bodyguards, in a book released two weeks before Presley's death, reveal the story of an eccentric, lonely man, a virtual drug addict — a prisoner of the myth he built.

Sonny West, Red West and Dave Hebler — former members of the Presley's private entourage known as the "Memphis Mafia" — knew Presley better than anyone, even his mother Gladys to whom he was so devoted. They knew and will remember a different Elvis — an unhappy, bitter man with many strange habits, the worst of which drugs, they say, caused his slow and painful suicide.

Presley did not die in Memphis Tuesday, at 42, of a drug overdose. Medical officials in Tennessee said he suffered respiratory failure, perhaps a heart attack. But the bodyguards in their book "Elvis What Happened?" published Aug. 1, say his ravenous appetite for narcotics led to the gradual deterioration of virtually all of his bodily functions.

THE AUTHORS SAID Elvis knew everything about drugs — the proper dosages, their colors, how to counteract one with another — and just two years ago they concluded "His system is shot to hell. He's a walking pharmaceutical shop."

"He takes pills to go to sleep. He takes pills to get up. He takes pills to go to the john, and he takes pills to stop him from going to the john," Red West recalls in the book.

"There have been times where he was so hyper on uppers that he has had trouble breathing, and on one occasion, he thought he was going to die. His system doesn't work anymore like a normal human being's. The pills do all the work for him."

Perhaps the fame and fortune was a depressant rather than a stimulant for Presley. Perhaps boredom at times tempted him to explore the unusual. Whatever the uncontrollable force, drugs were not Elvis' only preoccupation.

The authors recall his fetish for guns both on and off stage revealing the King kept a hefty arsenal of loaded firearms including pistols, revolvers, rifles, shotguns and bazookas. "I've never seen so much hardware in my life," Red West said.

ACCORDING TO THE authors, Elvis also did weird things like shoot out television screens when he did not like a particular program and take his friends on tours of mortuaries and funeral homes, explaining to them the process of enbalming.

The Wests, who are cousins, and Hebler said Presley believed he had supernatural powers to remove pain from one person and take it upon himself. He also believed he would be reincarnated. "Weak people can't bring themselves back from the dead," Elvis once said. "Only strong people."

Presley in 1972 lost the second love in his life next to his mother when Priscilla, his wife of five years, ran off with her karate instructor.

"The man has to die." Elvis went on another rampage. "You know the man must die . . . must go. There is too much pain in me and he did it. You will do it for me, Sonny, I can count on you."

West was astonished He never did carry out Presley's order but it was then he and the others realized Elvis' problems were more than just physical.

PETTY QUARRELS and insulting reprimands from the boss mounted through the years and n 1976 West, West and Hebler were fired by Presley's father Vernon after 16 years of loyal service to the King. "We're going to have to cut back on expenses and we're going to have to let some people go," the elder Presley told the men.

West, West and Hebler could not be reached for comment Wednesday on Presley's sudden death. But a spokesman for Balantine Books, New York publishers of the behind-the-scenes account, said, "They're quite shattered by the whole thing."

When the heat was on and the schedule was tedious, Presley's security corps would bow at his commands. In one excerpt from the book the authors say, "Of course in those days there was very little any one of us wouldn't have done for him."

Pontiac and told her he didn't make it a Cadillac because he knew "how expensive they are to keep."

Although his flamboyant gifts received much publicity, little is known about the actual worth of the singer.

Parker, who reportedly had only a "handshake contract" to handle the dealings of the rock 'n' roll giant, released few details.

AT ONE TIME, Presley maintained mansions in Memphis and in Beverly Hills and a 162-acre ranch in Desoto County, Miss., which he later sold for a reported $535,000.

But the personal Elvis, the man behind the performer, was someone the world knew little about. The God-fearing, decent way of life he carried with him out of childhood weren't sources of enough strength to endure his mother's premature death at 42 and a rocky seven-year marriage that ended in 1973.

"There have been a lot of fast risers who have died early and unhappy. But, there are a lot of successful entertainers who live long and happy lives. Look at Frank Sinatra, Bob Hope and Fred Astaire," said Alfred Appel Jr., an English professor at the Northwestern University who often discusses pop culture in his classes.

"A lot of people forgot Elvis helped bridge the way for integration in the South. He was a white man singing country and western music and Negro spirituals. He paved a lot of new ways for his country," he said.

The experts say that a star's unhappiness is no different than our own, just bigger than life.

"That the passing of one entertainer can make bold headlines, fill pages of newspapers and hours of television time, and draw tears means that idealistic, unassuming fans will carry on their love affair with Elvis no matter what they hear," he said.

Concorde ban reversed in federal judge's rule

A federal judge today granted permission to begin test landings of the Anglo-French supersonic Concorde at New York's Kennedy Airport, overturning a 17-month ban on the jetliner.

The ruling, however, won't bring the Concorde any closer to Chicago. The Federal Aviation Administration prohibits commercial supersonic flight over continental United States, and spokesmen say they doubt that ruling will be changed.

"As we see it here, we don't look for the Concorde to be coming here in the forseeable future," said Norman Amundsen of the FAA office in the Chicago area.

THE NEW YORK ruling, issued by U.S. District Court Judge Milton Pollack, says the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey's ban "unreasonable, discriminatory and unfair."

The Port Authority, which objects to the plane's high noise level, was expected to appeal the decision, which becomes effective in 10 days.

The decision was the latest action in a 17-month court battle that is expected to end in the U.S. Supreme Court.

In his 40-page decision, Pollack said the ruling by the port agency in determining whether the aircraft meets noise standards was "excessive and unjustified."

"THE CONCORDE thereby has been deprived of an opportunity to show that it is environmentally acceptable at this international airport," Pollack said.

The SST has been operating at federally owned Dulles Airport near Washington, D.C. since May 1976 under a 16-month test authorization granted by the Ford administration in February 1976.

The Port Authority blocked similarly authorized flights into New York in March 1976. British and the French officials maintain these flights are vital to the success of their $3 billion gamble on the SST.

Chip Carter will return to his family

• President's Carter's son, Chip, is returning to Plains to live with his wife and 6-month-old baby, the White House said Wednesday. Mary Hoyt, press secretary to First Lady Rosalynn Carter, said Chip, 27; Caron, 26, and their son James Earl Carter IV will move out of the White House, where they have lived since the President took office in January. Last week, amidst reports that Chip and Caron were having marital problems, Mrs. Hoyt said Chip would go to Plains alone to help in the family peanut warehouse while Caron and the baby remained in the White House. Mrs. Hoyt has refused to confirm or deny the reports of marital problems, but Chip recently has been staying in an apartment with White House family appointments secretary Rick Hutto.

• Rick Saucedo said Wednesday in Chicago he will continue the stage impersonations of the late Elvis Presley that made him rich but he said it will be difficult. He acknowledged that he will have to win over his audiences. "The first time I get on stage next, well, I can't imagine it," he said. "I'll try to tell the audience how I feel, recognize the loss they feel and hope they accept me. It could go either way. For all I know, my career could be over." Saucedo, 21, cancelled his Wednesday night show, but said he will perform the remainder of the week.

Computer firm cheated to get government work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former official of a Pittsburgh computer company told UPI Wednesday he designed much of a government computer project while he worked for the company, giving the firm an advantage in obtaining a $9 million federal contract.

The ex-official of On-Line Systems, Inc., who is expected to testify before a federal grand jury investigating the contract award, said a government official asked him in August, 1974, to write specifications for a computer program for the U.S. Office of Education.

He said the official, Edwin Parker III of the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, also gave an On-Line vice president a chance to veto certain aspects of the computer program which the company could not provide.

PARKER, REACHED at his home, would not comment. An On-Line official denied the charge.

The ex-company official, who asked not to be named, said the technical design he wrote for Parker was incorporated vitrually unchanged in a "Request for Proposal" which later was submitted to a number of computer companies for competitive bidding.

On-Line won the contract in July, 1975, and the deal later ballooned from $1.6 million to $9 million, becoming the company's largest contract. Al Cutino, HEW's contracting officer, said the On-Line computer system is still expanding and he expects the cost to increase by another $3.5 million by the expiration of a third-year option on June 30, 1978.

Asked if it was possible that On-Line helped design the system, Cutino said, "It's possible."

IT WAS THE first indication the company may have had advance information which gave it an edge in obtaining the contract.

Parker was replaced as computer project manager for the Office of Education this spring, and early this month he was given a dismissal notice from his job at HEW for allegedly accepting trips to pro football games and more than 200 meals from On-Line officials over a 2½ year period.

The former On-Line official has given a statement to federal investigators looking into "potentially criminal" favoritism in the awards to On-Line of the HEW contract and a $9.9 million U.S. Senate contract for a computerized mailing service.

The official said the design he turned over to Parker took two months of work and comprised "a bulk of the computer programming section" of the project, which was offered for general bidding.

Son saves father during panic was there that he collapsed and stopped breathing.

"He started gagging right away," John remembered, "and I saw that he wasn't breathing."

Three years ago, John had taken a mini-course in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. At the time, he figured he'd never use what he learned.

SATURDAY NIGHT, he didn't have time to wonder whether he'd be able to remember the technique.

"When I saw my dad that way, I just right away did it," John said. "I thought I was going to goof it up and everything. I was scared, but I did it."

Mrs. Cozzi was hysterical. She went to phone for an ambulance.

Meanwhile, John continued with the resuscitation. Cozzi started to revive and then fell unconscious again. He stared straight up at the ceiling, glassy-eyed.

"I THOUGHT HE was gone," John said.

He called his mother in. Her response was immediate.

"Keep working on him. The ambulance is on the way."

JULIO CHARO'S trailer in Prairie View is spattered with oil which gushed from a broken pipeline Monday night. The oil, along with the smell, drove he and his wife to the home of relatives.

Thar she blows! Gusher just a broken oil pipeline

by DEBBE JONAK

Julio and Dora Charo had just sat down to watch the baseball when the oil hit.

At first they thought it was rain. But then they noticed a heavy, familiar smell. They rushed outside and there, about 750 feet to the east of the Prairie View trailer, was a gushing, green geyser, shooting 300 feet into the sky.

"I jumped into my car and got it out of the way. Then I went back and got my wife out of the trailer," said Charo, who lives near Weiland and Apticisic roads.

THE CHAROS' trailer and surrounding crops were sprayed with oil Monday night from a break in Amoco's West Shore pipeline, which dumped more than 140,000 gallons of oil in the area.

The break occurred when a bulldozer hit the line at 7:45 p.m. on the property of Dick's Crane Service, 500 Industrial Ln.

It flowed full force for about 45 minutes, until Amoco workers could shut it off. Most of the oil was confined to an undeveloped, dirt area on the property of Dick's Crane.

"A lake covered this whole area, two feet deep," James Smith area manager for Amoco Pipeline, said Wednesday, pointing to a one-acre area.

He and his crew had been working around the clock to repair the line and clean up the spilled oil, Smith said. They will be finished with the major work today, he said.

THEY HAVE salvaged about 70,000 gallons, but assessment of loss, damages and cost have just begun.

The damage was minimal to the surrounding environment and property, Amoco environmental researchers said. Had the pipeline been carrying gasoline or kerosene at the time it was hit, they said, an explosion may have occurred.

The pipeline is used by many other companies besides Amoco, with many different types of fuel running through it. It was carrying Texaco furnace oil from Des Plaines to commercial firms Monday night.

"This guy (Charo) got in his car and drove out of the spill. If it had been gas, that would've caused a fire right there," the researcher said.

The furnace oil also is flammable, he said. However, there is no danger now. The Long Grove Fire Dept., kept watch around the spill area until the danger had passed.

CHARO AND HIS family were forced to move out of their trailer, which is covered with streaks of oil and smells of fuel.

They are staying with his brother in Mount Prospect, until Amoco either cleans up the trailer or replaces it

Both Charo and his employer, David Weiland of Weiland Greenhouse, are afraid Amoco would be slow to make restitution.

The oil spill just missed Weiland's flower crop. The greenhouse is next door to the Charo's trailer.

"It really could have been a lot worse than it is," Weiland said. "But now I just want them to take care of the man who lives here so he can have a home and place to sleep."

THE 54-FOOT TRAILER must be replaced, he said, as the oil seeped into its seams and saturated the insulation.

Amoco officials said they are looking into the matter and will pay for any damages. They then will seek compensation from Dick's Crane Service.

Amoco maintains the contracting service is responsible, because the bulldozer ventured off the company's property and hit the line in an easement near the Soo-Line railroad tracks.

A source said Dick's Crane claims the line is on the company's land and thus Amoco should pay for the damages. No one at Dick's Crane would comment on the problem, but surveyers have been called in to determine property boundaries.

The oil sprayed 1,200 feet northeastward, blown that way by the wind Monday night, Amoco researchers said. They were surveying the area around Charo's home.

TREES, CORN CROPS, tomato crops and grass were covered by the green-brown film.

"The damage is quite minimal," John Lamping, staff ecologist, said.

The oil has only permeated the ground one-half inch and will be defused through rain and organic decay before it saturates much deeper, he said.

Thus the people in the area do not have to worry about it reaching their underground water supply, he said.

The corn and tomatoes will not be damaged because they are almost ready for harvesting, he said. However, the oil will damage the leaves of the plants.

GENE HONN, University of Illinois Extension Service adviser, agreed the crop probably would not be hurt. However, the truck farmer who owns the crops probably will not be able to sell the tomatoes from the half-acre covered with oil, Honn said.

The effect on the area's wildlife also has been minimal, another researcher at the site said.

"We found a rabbit that was dead this morning — but that's the only thing so far."

Dark side of Elvis bared in book by his bodyguards

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

The millions who loved Elvis Presley and his music will remember him as the unknown kid from Tupelo, Miss., who made it big with a guitar and a gimmick — the King of Rock 'n' Roll who could do no wrong.

But there was a darker side to the superstar who throughout the 1950s and '60s thrilled America with his swivel hips and golden hits. And three of his former bodyguards, in a book released two weeks before Presley's death, reveal the story of an eccentric, lonely man, a virtual drug addict — a prisoner of the myth he built.

Sonny West, Red West and Dave Hebler — former members of the Presley's private entourage known as the "Memphis Mafia" — knew Presley better than anyone, even his mother Gladys to whom he was so devoted. They knew and will remember a different Elvis — an unhappy, bitter man with many strange habits, the worst of which drugs, they say, caused his slow and painful suicide.

Presley did not die in Memphis Tuesday, at 42, of a drug overdose. Medical officials in Tennessee said he suffered respiratory failure, perhaps a heart attack. But the bodyguards in their book "Elvis What Happened?" published Aug. 1, say his ravenous appetite for narcotics led to the gradual deterioration of virtually all of his bodily functions.

THE AUTHORS SAID Elvis knew everything about drugs — the proper dosages, their colors, how to counteract one with another — and just two years ago they concluded "His system is shot to hell. He's a walking pharmaceutical shop."

"He takes pills to go to sleep. He takes pills to get up. He takes pills to go to the john, and he takes pills to stop him from going to the john," Red West recalls in the book.

"There have been times where he was so hyper on uppers that he has had trouble breathing, and on one occasion, he thought he was going to die. His system doesn't work anymore like a normal human being's. The pills do all the work for him."

Perhaps the fame and fortune was a depressant rather than a stimulant for Presley. Perhaps boredom at times tempted him to explore the unusual. Whatever the uncontrollable force, drugs were not Elvis' only preoccupation.

The authors recall his fetish for guns both on and off stage revealing the King kept a hefty arsenal of loaded firearms including pistols, revolvers, rifles, shotguns and bazookas. "I've never seen so much hardware in my life," Red West said.

ACCORDING TO THE authors, Elvis also did weird things like shoot out television screens when he did not like a particular program and take his friends on tours of mortuaries and funeral homes, explaining to them the process of enbalming.

The Wests, who are cousins, and Hebler said Presley believed he had supernatural powers to remove pain from one person and take it upon himself. He also believed he would be reincarnated. "Weak people can't bring themselves back from the dead," Elvis once said. "Only strong people."

Presley in 1972 lost the second love in his life next to his mother when Priscilla, his wife of five years, ran off with her karate instructor.

"The man has to die." Elvis went on another rampage. "You know the man must die . . . must go. There is too much pain in me and he did it. You will do it for me, Sonny, I can count on you."

West was astonished. He never did carry out Presley's order but it was then he and the others realized Elvis' problems were more than just physical.

PETTY QUARRELS and insulting reprimands from the boss mounted through the years and n 1976 West, West and Hebler were fired by Presley's father Vernon after 16 years of loyal service to the King. "We're going to have to cut back on expenses and we're going to have to let some people go," the elder Presley told the men.

West, West and Hebler could not be reached for comment Wednesday on Presley's sudden death. But a spokesman for Balantine Books, New York publishers of the behind-the-scenes account, said, "They're quite shattered by the whole thing."

When the heat was on and the schedule was tedious, Presley's security corps would bow at his commands. In one excerpt from the book the authors say, "Of course in those days there was very little any one of us wouldn't have done for him."

Pontiac and told her he didn't make it a Cadillac because he knew "how expensive they are to keep."

Although his flamboyant gifts received much publicity, little is known about the actual worth of the singer.

Parker, who reportedly had only a "handshake contract" to handle the dealings of the rock 'n' roll giant, released few details.

AT ONE TIME, Presley maintained mansions in Memphis and in Beverly Hills and a 162-acre ranch in Desoto County, Miss., which he later sold for a reported $535,000.

But the personal Elvis, the man behind the performer, was someone the world kntw little about. The God-fearing, decent way of life he carried with him out of childhood weren't sources of enough strength to endure his mother's premature death at 42 and a rocky seven-year marriage that ended in 1973.

"There have been a lot of fast risers who have died early and unhappy. But, there are a lot of successful entertainers who live long and happy lives. Look at Frank Sinatra, Bob Hope and Fred Astaire," said Alfred Appel Jr., an English professor at the Northwestern University who often discusses pop culture in his classes.

"A lot of people forgot Elvis helped bridge the way for integration in the South. He was a white man singing country and western music and Negro spirituals. He paved a lot of new ways for his country," he said.

The experts say that a star's unhappiness is no different than our own, just bigger than life.

"That the passing of one entertainer can make bold headlines, fill pages of newspapers and hours of television time, and draw tears means that idealistic, unassuming fans will carry on their love affair with Elvis no matter what they hear," he said.

Concorde ban reversed in federal judge's rule

A federal judge today granted permission to begin test landings of the Anglo-French supersonic Concorde at New York's Kennedy Airport, overturning a 17-month ban on the jetliner.

The ruling, however, won't bring the Concorde any closer to Chicago. The Federal Aviation Administration prohibits commercial supersonic flight over continental United States, and spokesmen say they doubt that ruling will be changed.

"As we see it here, we don't look for the Concorde to be coming here in the forseeable future," said Norman Amundsen of the FAA office in the Chicago area.

THE NEW YORK ruling, issued by U.S. District Court Judge Milton Pollack, says the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey's ban "unreasonable, discriminatory and unfair."

The Port Authority, which objects to the plane's high noise level, was expected to appeal the decision, which becomes effective in 10 days.

The decision was the latest action in a 17-month court battle that is expected to end in the U.S. Supreme Court.

In his 40-page decision, Pollack said the ruling by the port agency in determining whether the aircraft meets noise standards was "excessive and unjustified."

"THE CONCORDE thereby has been deprived of an opportunity to show that it is environmentally acceptable at this international airport," Pollack said.

The SST has been operating at federally owned Dulles Airport near Washington, D.C. since May 1976 under a 16-month test authorization granted by the Ford administration in February 1976.

The Port Authority blocked similarly authorized flights into New York in March 1976. British and the French officials maintain these flights are vital to the success of their $3 billion gamble on the SST.

Chip Carter will return to his family

• President's Carter's son, Chip, is returning to Plains to live with his wife and 6-month-old baby, the White House said Wednesday. Mary Hoyt, press secretary to First Lady Rosalynn Carter, said Chip, 27; Caron, 26, and their son James Earl Carter IV will move out of the White House, where they have lived since the President took office in January. Last week, amidst reports that Chip and Caron were having marital problems, Mrs. Hoyt said Chip would go to Plains alone to help in the family peanut warehouse while Caron and the baby remained in the White House. Mrs. Hoyt has refused to confirm or deny the reports of marital problems, but Chip recently has been staying in an apartment with White House family appointments secretary Rick Hutto.

• Rick Saucedo said Wednesday in Chicago he will continue the stage impersonations of the late Elvis Presley that made him rich but he said it will be difficult. He acknowledged that he will have to win over his audiences. "The first time I get on stage next, well, I can't imagine it," he said. "I'll try to tell the audience how I feel, recognize the loss they feel and hope they accept me. It could go either way. For all I know, my career could be over." Saucedo, 21, cancelled his Wednesday night show, but said he will perform the remainder of the week.

Computer firm cheated to get government work

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former official of a Pittsburgh computer company told UPI Wednesday he designed much of a government computer project while he worked for the company, giving the firm an advantage in obtaining a $9 million federal contract.

The ex-official of On-Line Systems, Inc., who is expected to testify before a federal grand jury investigating the contract award, said a government official asked him in August, 1974, to write specifications for a computer program for the U.S. Office of Education.

He said the official, Edwin Parker III of the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, also gave an On-Line vice president a chance to veto certain aspects of the computer program which the company could not provide.

PARKER, REACHED at his home, would not comment. An On-Line official denied the charge.

The ex-company official, who asked not to be named, said the technical design he wrote for Parker was incorporated vitrually unchanged in a "Request for Proposal" which later was submitted to a number of computer companies for competitive bidding.

On-Line won the contract in July, 1975, and the deal later ballooned from $1.6 million to $9 million, becoming the company's largest contract. Al Cutino, HEW's contracting officer, said the On-Line computer system is still expanding and he expects the cost to increase by another $3.5 million by the expiration of a third-year option on June 30, 1978.

Asked if it was possible that On-Line helped design the system, Cutino said, "It's possible."

IT WAS THE first indication the company may have had advance information which gave it an edge in obtaining the contract.

Parker was replaced as computer project manager for the Office of Education this spring, and early this month he was given a dismissal notice from his job at HEW for allegedly accepting trips to pro football games and more than 200 meals from On-Line officials over a 2½ year period.

The former On-Line official has given a statement to federal investigators looking into "potentially criminal" favoritism in the awards to On-Line of the HEW contract and a $9.9 million U.S. Senate contract for a computerized mailing service.

The official said the design he turned over to Parker took two months of work and comprised "a bulk of the computer programming section" of the project, which was offered for general bidding.

was there that he collapsed and stopped breathing.

"He started gagging right away," John remembered, "and I saw that he wasn't breathing."

Three years ago, John had taken a mini-course in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. At the time, he figured he'd never use what he learned.

SATURDAY NIGHT, he didn't have time to wonder whether he'd be able to remember the technique.

"When I saw my dad that way, I just right away did it," John said. "I thought I was going to goof it up and everything. I was scared, but I did it."

Mrs. Cozzi was hysterical. She went to phone for an ambulance.

Meanwhile, John continued with the resuscitation. Cozzi started to revive and then fell unconscious again. He stared straight up at the ceiling, glassy-eyed.

"I THOUGHT HE was gone," John said.

He called his mother in. Her response was immediate.

Howlett campaign $235,772 in debt

Michael Howlett owes $235,772 from his unsuccessful 1976 gubernatorial campaign, a campaign disclosure statement filed with the Illinois Board of Elections shows. Included in the debt for the former secretary of state as of June 30 was $16,412 owed the state for the use of airplanes. Howlett's financial records were filed two weeks late because of the ill health of Harold Dash, his campaign treasurer. Howlett had raised $3.1 million for his campaigns against Dan Walker, former governor, and Gov. James R. Thompson. Walker was reported to have reduced his debt to $69,541 and Thompson finished the campaign with a surplus.

The Regional Transportation Authority, in cooperation with the Aurora Transit System, will begin operating two new bus routes in Aurora Aug. 29, the RTA announced Wednesday. One of the routes will serve the new north campus of Aurora West High School. The other will serve residential areas on the city's northeast side.

Winter fuel bill aid offered

Gov. James R. Thompson said Wednesday 96 Illinois counties still are accepting applications for federal aid to help pay last winter's utility and fuel bills. Citizens who think they may be eligible for fuel bill assistance should contact their local Public Aid, Aging or Vocational Rehabilitation office, Thompson said. The six counties where available funds have been spent are Champaign, Hardin, Johnson, Madison, Massac and Pulaski.

Teachers union OKs contract

Fifty-three Illinois Education Assn. employes returned to work Wednesday after the union's officers and staff reached agreement in a month-long internal labor dispute. Curtis Plott, IEA executive director, said both sides ratified a new contract Tuesday after an outside mediator intervened. The contract covers field representatives, researchers, public relations staff and lobbyists. The workers had been locked out of 19 IEA field offices since July 11. Plott would not comment on the contract's terms except to say "We ratified it. Our board of directors is happy with the contract and pleased that we are able to get on with service to our members at a time when it is most crucial." Officials of the IEA, which represents 63,000 teachers in the state, said the lockout tactic was necessary to break an impasse in negotiations over a new two-year contract.

Mann hits parks 'double-cross'

South Shore community leaders led by State Rep. Robert Mann, D-Chicago, Wednesday accused the Chicago Park District of a "double-cross" by planning to demolish a historic building without public hearings. Mann said Edmund L. Kelly, the park district superintendent, had reneged on a written pledge not to destroy the South Shore Country Club clubhouse, a national landmark, without holding hearings. The park district has said it will replace the old building and its golf course with a cultural center, new beach space, tennis courts and a golf course.

Nary a note to sound as bandshell plan stalls

Plans to construct a bandshell in Recreation Park have been stalled because park commissioners refuse to say whether they will approve the project until enough donations are collected to build it.

Park commissioners agreed informally several months ago to allow the committee to raise funds for a bandshell to be built at the park, 500 E. Miner St.

But Wednesday, Park Board Pres. Jacqueline J. Gruenwald said, "Right now we don't feel we should consider it again until they have the money to build it.

"IF WE GET more information about it we will vote on it again," she said, "but at this point the majority of the commissioners don't feel there is a need to take up the subject again."

Dwight Walton, chairman of the Arlington Heights Festival Committee which has planned the project, said that without a commitment from the park board to accept the bandshell he cannot continue soliciting donations for it.

"This would ne a damaging blow and we'd have to lose a little bit of our optimism about the project because of it," he said.

Residents of the Recreation Park area will be invited to a special meeting within a month to determine whether a bandshell and next year's Fourth of July festival should be planned there.

RESIDENTS FROM the Recreation Park area have been critical of the park board recently, saying the park is used for too many special events, such as the Fourth of July festival and an upcoming Indian pow-wow by the Mascoutin Society.

The festival committee collected about $10,000 for the bandshell project during the Fourth of July. About $60,000 will be needed to build the bandshell, Walton said.

If the park board does not change its mind soon about a firm commitment to the bandshell, Walton said he will call an emergency committee meeting to decide the future of the project.

"We can't go to people and ask for donations with all these unanswered questions," he said. "It would be a poor bit of leadership on my part if I said to the Festival Committee 'let's go get commitments for money and services' when we don't know if the park district wants the bandshell.

Walton said he will be disappointed but not bitter if the project is abandoned.

"So many people have taken the time and effort to make the plans that it would be a shame to end it now," Walton siad. "The real issue is whether we can find a location the powers that be will agree to. All those of us involved can do is hope."

Mr. Kolls should have to participate if he's losing money," Geiss said.

Birks also said he is losing money by participating in the senior citizens' transportation program.

"I've committed myself to it," he said. "I could back off but I won't because I believe every businessman has to participate in civic affairs and this is my contribution."

Bomb blast near Spanish king's car

Police Wednesday foiled an assassination attempt against King Juan Carlos and Premier Adolfo Suarez when they discovered a bomb planted beneath an overpass near Madrid only moments before the King's car was due to pass, the national news agency Cifra reported. The agency said police discovered a charge containing Goma-2 plastic explosives hidden in a metal box under an overpass near the Majorca Yacht Club where the King, Queen Sophia and Suarez had gone sailing. Cifra said they were about to return to the King's summer residence, but were held back at the club while police removed the bomb, defused it and later exploded it in a field.

Six Arab teens hurt by bomb

A bomb hurled at an army patrol car in the heart of the West Bank town of Nazareth Wednesday missed its target and wounded six Arab teen-agers, the military command said. A communique said the incident happened in the Nablus Clock Square, which was packed with passersby after the Ramadan fast. Military sources said the attack was the work of Arab guerrillas. Two of the six wounded teen-agers were reported in serious condition The attack came one day after a guerrilla pipe bomb exploded on an Israeli bus, wounding eight passengers, two of them seriously. Last month a spate of guerrilla bombings across Israel killed one person and wounded 60.

Kent State gym gets court's OK

A federal judge in Cleveland ruled Wednesday Kent State University has the right to build a controversial gymnasium at the site where National Guard troops shot four antiwar demonstrators to death in 1970. U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Lambros dismissed a suit by opponents of the gymnasium and voided a temporary restraining order he issued July 29 to block construction. The judge, who issued the restraining order after earthmoving equipment began clearing the site for construction, said the state has the right to use its land as it sees fit. "It is not for this court to direct the State of Ohio or the government on how to exercise that discretion," Lambros said. "The state has a constitutional right to free use of its land for appropriate purposes." The May 4 Coalition has been fighting to turn the site into a national historical monument commemorating the May 4, 1970, campus shooting.

Humphrey to have surgery today

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who had a cancerous bladder removed last fall, will undergo surgery to relieve partial blockage of his bowel, it was announced Wednesday. The University of Minnesota Hospitals said Humphrey, 66, was scheduled for the surgery this morning. Humphrey entered the hospital Tuesday for a routine checkup and chemotherapy treatments. "He was examined by Dr. John S. Najarian, professor and head of the Dept. of Surgery, and Dr. S. J. Kinnedy, professor of medical oncology," a spokesman said. "X-ray and other tests indicated partial blockage that was causing the senator some discomfort

Big Sur fire under control

After 16 days, California's gigantic Marble Cone fire in the Big Sur country apparently is licked. The fire has consumed 157,800 acres, mostly of brush, in Los Padres National Forest, and Wednesday it was declared to be 90 per cent contained. All that remains for full containment is backfiring along the edge of five miles of fire line. The Marble Cone was encircled by 145 miles of barrier bared to the soil. "We're going down the third base line, but we are not home yet," Jim Rice, a U S. Forest Service spokesman, said. Rice said a possibility remained that a flying ember would be blown over the line to give the blaze another start. That is why the fire is not likely to be officially declared "controlled" for awhile.

Miners meet with Marshall

U.S. Labor Sec. Ray Marshall summoned union and industry leaders into his office Wednesday, seeking to resolve a dispute that has produced violence and wildcat strikes among some 80,000 coal miners. These meetings marked the administration's deepest involvement to date in the severe labor-management problems of the coal industry, which threatened to impede President Carter's new goals for coal production. Among those scheduled to meet with Marshall were United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller; Joseph Brennan, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn. and unnamed "political leaders" from the coal states of West Virginia and Kentucky.

Nuclear test explosion delayed

A scheduled underground nuclear test explosion was put on a 24-hold today because of storms from tropical depression Doreen. The hold was announced after 10 a.m. CDT and a decision on whether to detonate was to be made Thursday morning. Federal scientists had warned that the shock waves from the blast, the fifth this year, might be felt atop high rise buildings in Las Vegas, 70 miles to the south.

Inventors' firm ordered to halt business here

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott has moved to halt the Illinois operation of a fraudulent inventors' promotion corporation.

Scott has obtained an order from Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen barring Lawrence Peska Associates, Inc,, Chicago, from conducting business in the state. The New York-based company is currently under investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Scott said the company came under scrutiny after his Consumer Fraud and Protection Division received numerous complaints from would-be inventors who said the firm charged fees of $1,000 and more to purportedly develop and market their inventions.

Scott said the company actually marketed less than 2 per cent of the concepts it handled.

The case is the second handled by Scott's office involving fraudulent inventors' promotional schemes. Four years ago Scott's office also sued the owners of Imperial Inventors International, Inc., a Des Plaines-based firm whose phony operation was uncovered in a Herald investigation in 1973.

The president of the firm, Lawrence Peska, is a former employe of the Raymond Lee Organization, which is currently facing charges by the SEC and Federal Trade Commission that its operation is fraudulent, Scott added.

Four teens held in robbery try

Four Wheeling juveniles—three of them girls—were arrested Wednesday and charged with strong-armed robbery in connection with an attempted burglary of the 7-Eleven Store at 105 Dundee Rd., Arlington Heights.

The youths were charged in a juvenile petition with four counts of attempted armed robbery, conspiracy to commit armed robbery, aggravated battery and breaking curfew, police said.

The girls, two of them 14 and the other 15, and a 16-year-old boy, all allegedly runaways, entered the store about 4:30 a.m., police said.

Police said on of the 14-year-old girls purposely pushed a soda bottle off a shelf in the store and hit employe, David Grundeis, 19, with another bottle as he bent over to pick up the first one, police said.

The youths then tried to open the cash register, police said.

Grundeis apprehended the girl who hit him, and held her while he reported the crime to Arlington Heights police from an outside phone booth, police said.

The youths, who were released to their parents' custody, are scheduled to appear 3 p.m., Aug 31 in Juvenile Court Building, 5255 Main St., Skokie, police said.

Zerkle won't quit, says he's been fired

by LINDA YUNCH

Wheeling Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle Wednesday refused to submit his resignation, saying he has already been fired by the village board.

Trustee Hubert Sommerfeld, who was on vacation when Zerkle was asked to resign Monday, also announced his support for Zerkle Wednesday, saying he was "disappointed in my colleagues" for voting on such an important issue in his absence.

Zerkle and Village Pres. William Hein met Wednesday morning but would not comment on the session. But sources said Zerkle no longer considers himself village manager. Zerkle reportedly refused to resign, noting the word "termination" was used several times in the discussion before Monday's vote was taken.

THE ORIGINAL motion supported by Hein and Trustees Delores Dahm, Robert Ross and Roger Powers only asked for Zerkle's resignation, however.

Zerkle, who was not at village hall Wednesday, said that Ross, who made the motion asking for his resignation, cited a portion of the village code referring to removal of the village manager, sources said.

Hein reportedly is seeking to smooth out the differences between the board and Zerkle since the village manager has not submitted a resignation. If Zerkle does not resign, the board apparently will have to hold another meeting to take a vote on firing him.

Trustees asked for Zerkle's resignation after he objected to interference in administrative matters from Hein, Ross, Sommerfeld, Dahm and Powers. Zerkle said he is being pressured by Hein and the others to appoint Police Lt. Ted Bracke to replace retiring Chief M.O. Horcher.

SOMMERFELD WEDNESDAY said he supports "Terry Zerkle as our village manager."

Free meal program for seniors set

Northwest suburban senior citizens soon will be able to sit down to a free or low-cost hot lunch, five days a week, at the North School building, 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The Northwest Opportunity Center and the Community and Economic Development Assn. of Cook County plan to start the noon meal program Sept. 14.

There will be food for 50 persons, Monday through Friday, said Michael Raimondi, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center.

PERSONS WILL be asked to contribute whatever they can afford for the meal, but nobody will be turned away because they cannot pay

Raimondi said he has appealed to villages and townships in the Northwest suburban area to support the senior nutrition program

"So far we have not heard any objections. We're in the planning stages right now and it looks good. Both Wheeling and Elk Grove townships have been supportive and so has the Arlington Heights senior citizens commission," he said

Elk Grove Township Supervisor Dick Hall and Wheeling Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus said the noon meal program does not conflict with any of the townships' senior citizen services.

The food will be prepared by a catering service and served in a private dining room in the former school building. Anyone 60 years of age or older is eligible for the meals

"WE WANT THIS to be more than just a meals program. It is an opportunity for socializing and recreation and we will emphasize information on nutrition as well," Raimondi said.

The meals are made to supply one-third of the minimum daily requirement of vitamins and minerals recommended by the federal government, Ms Thomas said A typical menu includes sliced ham, sweet potatoes, buttered vegetables, salad, roll and homemade cookies.

"It's only limitation is that there are no special diets."

For more information call the Northwest Opportunity Center at 255-3456, or Ms. Thomas at 922-9158.

Lance confident finance report will clear him

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Budget Director Bert Lance Wednesday said he had "not done anything improper" in his banking transactions before joining the Carter administration.

Lance expressed confidence an inquiry by the comptroller of currency's office will vindicate him. The 100-page report compiled by more than 30 investigators, will be sent today to President Carter at his Camp David, Md., retreat.

"I have not done anything improper and I'm sure that is what the findings will be," he said in an interview with ABC news.

LANCE ALSO said he believed the inquiry had not damaged his ability to function in the administration.

It was learned the comptroller's report would summarize facts dealing primarily with Lance's overdrafts at the Calhoun, Ga., First National Bank and loans ne negotiated with Chicago and New York banks when he headed the National Bank of Georgia.

Richard Thornburgh, who was assistant attorney general when federal bank examiners found the $150,000 overdraft, said the U.S. attorney's office in Atlanta "found there to be insufficient basis for criminal prosecution."

In a related development, the Washington Star said documents sent to Congress showed Lance's trustee increased the collateral backing of a $3.4 million loan with a Chicago bank. Part of the increased collateral included his home.

The First National Bank of Chicago asked for greater security when the value of Lance's stock in the National Bank of Georgia declined, the Star said.

5 murder counts set for 'Sam'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Authorities said Wednesday five more murder indictments are expected early next week against David Berkowitz, accused as the killer Son of Sam — a nickname an Army buddy said Berkowitz adopted in Korea as a scornful reference to Uncle Sam

Sources said Queens Dist Atty John Santucci's office presented evidence to a grand jury Wednesday and expected two second-degree murder, and five attempted murder and assault indictments by the end of the week

Santucci confirmed he expected murder indictments to be handed up shortly, but refused to say when

A SPOKESMAN for Bronx Dist Atty Mario Merola said evidence would be presented to a grand jury today and expected indictments on three counts of second degree murder and one count of attempted murder and assault by early next week

Berkowitz, already charged in Brooklyn for the July 31 murder of 20-year old Stacy Moskowitz and the attempted murder of her date, Robert Violante underwent further psychiatric tests Wednesday to determine whether he is competent to stand trial

His lawyer already has said Berkowitz will present a defense of insanity if he is judged competent to stand trial

An army friend said Berkowitz adopted the 'Son of Sam' nickname to signify his belief that he was a pawn of the government — symbolized by Uncle Sam

Terry Peterson 21 McFarland Wis said in an interview with the Madison Capital Times he and Berkowitz were "best buddies" when they spent a year together in Korea

When he'd complain about what the army was doing to him — and he took a lot of static after he filed those conscientious objector forms — I'd just tell him 'Well you signed up and now you're just a son of Sam said Peterson

What I meant was that he was a soldier for Uncle Sam and he was obligated to serve his country But he took that to mean that he had become a pawn a tool in some big game that the establishment was making him play

I'm certain that's where the name (Son of Sam) came from We used to call each other that all the time,' Peterson said

Johnson agrees to serve as FBI director

Frank M. Johnson Jr.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., a Republican who made strong civil rights decisions in Alabama, has agreed to serve as director of the FBI for the next 10 years, it was announced Wednesday.

Atty Gen. Griffin Bell, formally announcing Johnson, 58, as President Carter's choice for top G-Man, said the Montgomery, Ala., jurist was first offered the job by Carter last December but refused. Later he turned down a chance to become Bell's deputy at the U.S. Justice Dept.

Bell said one of his aides had a hunch that Johnson had a change of heart, and the attorney general met with Johnson for two hours in a motel in Newnan, Ga., last Sunday, and gained his agreement.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL said Johnson has a reputation "as a tough, fair minded protector of justice and the law."

In accepting the post, Bell said, Johnson committed himself to serve as director for 10 years because the administration did not want a new director for only a few years.

Bell said he personally told 21 senators, a number of House members, and "14 top people in the FBI" of Johnson's selection and got no adverse reaction.

Sen Strom Thurmond, R-S-C., ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee and a possible roadblock, said he anticipated Johnson's confirmation.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., threw his support to Johnson Wednesday and called him "a man of the utmost integrity, competence and courage."

BELL SAID HE EXPECTS the appointment to be particularly welcomed by the FBI's "young people . . . who would consider him a complement to them and be honored to have him as their leader."

Transition plans call for Johnson to move into an office at the Justice Dept. immediately after he is confirmed by the Senate and then go through an orientation period prior to taking over the driector's job Jan. 1 with the retirement of Clarence Kelley.

Johnson's strong record on civil rights during his 22 years on the bench may make his Senate confirmation a good deal easier than that of Bell's, whose moderate courtroom rulings drew fire from liberals.

Johnson's nomination was reported well received by black residents in Alabama where one of his decisions 21 years ago helped end the Montgomery bus boycott with a victory for the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

SENATE CRITICISM of Johnson was expected to center on his lack of experience as an administrator or as a policeman.

But Bell cited Johnson's administrative ability as one of his assets. He said Johnson knew how to handle a trial on a complex case and his court had a high efficiency rating, signs of good administration.

After being one of nine Republican campaign managers for Dwight Eisenhower in Alabama, Johnson was appointtd a U.S. attorney in 1952 and has served on the federal bench since 1955.

A native of the Alabama hill country, Johnson recently gave up rolling his own cigarettes in favor of chewing tobacco. He and his wife lead a quiet life in Montgomery, seldom going out. Some of Johnson's civil rights rulings were so unpopular he resigned from a country club and played golf at a local Air Force base course for several years.

New FBI chief runs tight ship

by FLOYD NORRIS

He chews tobacco and likes to fish, but Frank M. Johnson Jr. is a long way from being a good ol' country boy.

"He runs a tight ship," a former law clerk said after it was learned Johnson was President Carter's choice to be the new FBI director. "He's a stern disciplinarian, but he makes you reach levels you wouldn't reach otherwise."

Johnson is a nominal Republican from the Alabama hill country, where his own county tried to secede from the Confederacy when Alabama seceded from the Union in 1861. He was named to the bench by Dwight D. Eisenhower.

AS A FEDERAL judge for the last 22 ytars, Johnson issutd a series of landmark decisions in civil rights and other areas that won the enmity of many whites — an enmity that has lessened in recent years as the South came to accept integration.

"Black people in the state of Alabama would be in a pitiful shape if it had not been for Judge Johnson," said Rep. Alvin Holmes of Montgomery. "He's been like a second governor of this state."

Johnson often has been called governor as his decisions have transformed state government. State prisons and mental hospitals are operating under major reform orders Johnson issued. Half the new state troopers are black as a result of a Johnson ruling.

Gov. George C. Wallace, a law school chum of Johnson, has denounced Johnson's rulings and once called him an "integratin', carpetbaggin', scallawaggin' liar."

WHEN WORD LEAKED out Johnson was to be the next FBI director, Wallace wished the federal judge well.

Johnson's first major ruling, in 1958, ended "back-of-the-bus" treatment for blacks on municipal buses in Montgomery, giving Martin Luther King Jr. a victory in the Montgomery bus boycott.

Johnson presided at the federal civil rights trial of three Ku Klux Klansmen accused of killing Viola Liuzzo, a woman from the North gunned down after the Selma to Montgomery voting rights march. Johnson's order had approved the march.

Johnson's long held goal has been to serve on the Supreme Court, a goal he almost won during Richard Nixon's administration. When an Alabama Republican reportedly told the Nixon White House Johnson was an integrationist, Nixon looked elsewhere for a southerner to appoint to the court.

The 58-year-old Johnson and his wife lead a quiet life, rarely entertaining or going out. Their only child, an adopted son, committed suicide in 1975.

Johnson agrees to serve as FBI director

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., a Republican who made strong civil rights decisions in Alabama, has agreed to serve as director of the FBI for the next 10 years, it was announced Wednesday.

Atty Gen. Griffin Bell, formally announcing Johnson, 58, as President Carter's choice for top G-Man, said the Montgomery, Ala., jurist was first offered the job by Carter last December but refused. Later he turned down a chance to become Bell's deputy at the U.S. Justice Dept.

Bell said one of his aides had a hunch that Johnson had a change of heart, and the attorney general met with Johnson for two hours in a motel in Newnan, Ga., last Sunday, and gained his agreement.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL said Johnson has a reputation "as a tough, fair minded protector of justice and the law."

In accepting the post, Bell said, Johnson committed himself to serve as director for 10 years because the administration did not want a new director for only a few years.

Bell said he personally told 21 senators, a number of House members, and "14 top people in the FBI" of Johnson's selection and got no adverse reaction.

Sen Strom Thurmond, R-S-C., ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee and a possible roadblock, said he anticipated Johnson's confirmation.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., threw his support to Johnson Wednesday and called him "a man of the utmost integrity, competence and courage."

BELL SAID HE EXPECTS the appointment to be particularly welcomed by the FBI's "young people . . . who would consider him a complement to them and be honored to have him as their leader."

Transition plans call for Johnson to move into an office at the Justice Dept. immediately after he is confirmed by the Senate and then go through an orientation period prior to taking over the driector's job Jan. 1 with the retirement of Clarence Kelley.

Frank M. Johnson Jr.

Johnson's strong record on civil rights during his 22 years on the bench may make his Senate confirmation a good deal easier than that of Bell's, whose moderate courtroom rulings drew fire from liberals.

Johnson's nomination was reported well received by black residents in Alabama where one of his decisions 21 years ago helped end the Montgomery bus boycott with a victory for the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

SENATE CRITICISM of Johnson was expected to center on his lack of experience as an administrator or as a policeman.

But Bell cited Johnson's administrative ability as one of his assets. He said Johnson knew how to handle a trial on a complex case and his court had a high efficiency rating, signs of good administration.

After being one of nine Republican campaign managers for Dwight Eisenhower in Alabama, Johnson was appointtd a U.S. attorney in 1952 and has served on the federal bench since 1955.

A native of the Alabama hill country, Johnson recently gave up rolling his own cigarettes in favor of chewing tobacco. He and his wife lead a quiet life in Montgomery, seldom going out, Some of Johnson's civil rights rulings were so unpopular he resigned from a country club and played golf at a local Air Force base course for several years.

New FBI chief runs tight ship

by FLOYD NORRIS

He chews tobacco and likes to fish, but Frank M. Johnson Jr. is a long way from being a good ol' country boy.

"He runs a tight ship," a former law clerk said after it was learned Johnson was President Carter's choice to be the new FBI director. "He's a stern disciplinarian, but he makes you reach levels you wouldn't reach otherwise."

Johnson is a nominal Republican from the Alabama hill country, where his own county tried to secede from the Confederacy when Alabama seceded from the Union in 1861. He was named to the bench by Dwight D. Eisenhower.

AS A FEDERAL judge for the last 22 ytars, Johnson issutd a series of landmark decisions in civil rights and other areas that won the enmity of many whites — an enmity that has lessened in recent years as the South came to accept integration.

"Black people in the state of Alabama would be in a pitiful shape if it had not been for Judge Johnson," said Rep. Alvin Holmes of Montgomery. "He's been like a second governor of this state."

Johnson often has been called governor as his decisions have transformed state government. State prisons and mental hospitals are operating under major reform orders Johnson issued. Half the new state troopers are black as a result of a Johnson ruling.

Gov. George C. Wallace, a law school chum of Johnson, has denounced Johnson's rulings and once called him an "integratin', carpetbaggin', scallawaggin' liar."

WHEN WORD LEAKED out Johnson was to be the next FBI director, Wallace wished the federal judge well.

Johnson's first major ruling, in 1958, ended "back-of-the-bus" treatment for blacks on municipal buses in Montgomery, giving Martin Luther King Jr. a victory in the Montgomery bus boycott.

Johnson presided at the federal civil rights trial of three Ku Klux Klansmen accused of killing Viola Liuzzo, a woman from the North gunned down after the Selma to Montgomery voting rights march. Johnson's order had approved the march.

Johnson's long held goal has been to serve on the Supreme Court, a goal he almost won during Richard Nixon's administration. When an Alabama Republican reportedly told the Nixon White House Johnson was an integrationist, Nixon looked elsewhere for a southerner to appoint to the court.

The 58-year-old Johnson and his wife lead a quiet life, rarely entertaining or going out. Their only child, an adopted son, committed suicide in 1975.

Elk Grove leads state with 75% crime decrease

From our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — Despite the spectacular Columbo family slayings, the crime rate in Elk Grove Village showed the largest decrease last year of any town in the state, according to the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement.

Annual crime statistics collected by the state show, the rate of major crime in Elk Grove Village dropped 75 per cent. Among other area towns, Des Plaines, Palatine and Schaumburg also posted lower crime rates.

The largest area crime rate increase was reported by Rolling Meadows with a 29.2 per cent increase. Other increases were seen in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Wheeling. No separate statistics were available for Prospect Heights, which contracts for police protection from the Cook County Sheriff's police.

In suburban areas throughout the state, crime dropped by 6.8 per cent last year while Chicago crime dropped by more than 9 per cent and over-all Cook County dropped by 7.5 per cent.

THE STATE calculates the crime rate based on the number of murders, rapes, robberies, assaults, burglaries, thefts and auto thefts reported compared to the community's population.

Elk Grove Village reported drops in nearly every category with the exception of the three Columbo family murders May 4, 1976.

"I see the decrease in crime here stemming mainly from our improved preventive training over the past year," said Harry Jenkins, chief of Elk Grove Village police.

"We're actually short of officers for the first time in a long time, but because of stricter training, our police are probably more alert now than they've ever been."

The village reported the number of thefts dropped from 1,059 to 212, burglary was down from 293 to 52 and assaults dropped from 102 to 86 during last year.

IN ROLLING MEADOWS, thefts increased from 326 to 450, which appeared to account for the majority of the statistical increase reported. There also were slight increases reported in the number of auto thefts, burglaries and robberies there in 1976.

Lewis Case, chief of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept., said the city has not had an increase in major crimes.

"We have had a rise in such crimes as batteries which often result from family disputes, but I don't think our town has had that much of an increase in some of the more major crimes," he said.

"A lot of crimes that are reported are garbage like minor juvenile things, but once people are arrested they become statistics, which adds up," Case said. "But that doesn't mean it's any less safe to live in Rolling Meadows.

Although no town-by-town breakdown was available, the law enforcement department also noted the number of vandalism arrests dropped from 26,516 in 1975 to 16,722 in 1976 while the value of vandalized property increased last year by more than 20 per cent from $8.4 million to $10.8 million.

AMONG COLLEGES and universities, the report filed by Harper College in Palatine showed a crime rate decrease of 9.7 per cent. The college reported the number of assaults and thefts dropped, but the number of burglaries increased from two to six.

Arlington Heights, where the overall crime rate rose 2 per cent, reported 200 more thefts than in 1975 while Des Plaines, which dropped by 7.6 per cent, and Palatine, which dropped by 19.8 per cent reported 200 fewer thefts each.

The number of burglaries in Schaumburg, where the rate fell 21.6 per cent, dropped from 688 in 1975 to 476 in 1976.

The number of violent crimes appeared to be small throughout the area, while thefts appeared to be the most commonly reported offenses among the incidents used to calculate the crime rate.

The largest number of violent crimes was reported in Des Plaines, with 136 incidents, followed by Arlington Heights, 110, Elk Grove Village, 95, Schaumburg, 76, and Rolling Meadows, 47.

Tito-Brezhnev meeting opens with a warning

MOSCOW (UPI)—Yugoslavia's President Tito met Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in the Kremlin Wednesday to discuss the two Communits nations' touchy relations, prefacing the talks with a warning against Russian interference in Belgrade's internal affairs.

The Tass news agency said the opening round of talks between Tito and the Soviet leaders — Brezhnev was joined by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko — took place in a "warm, friendly atmosphere."

The government news agency said the 85-year-old Yugoslav leader and the Soviets began detailed discussions on the Communist alliance and the state of the world.

THEY DISCUSSED expansion of their countries bilateral cooperation in political, economic and cultural fields, "and exchanged opinions on a wide range of international questions," Tass said.

Itto served advance notice in a Kremlin banquet speech Tuesday night that good Soviet-Yugoslav relations depend on strict non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

Tito, a Communist maverick since he split with late dictator Josef Stalin in 1949, said the indispensable foundation for good Soviet-Yugoslav relations depends on "principles of sovereignty, equality, noninterference (and) respect for different ways of internal development and peculiarities of the internal positions of our countries and parties."

BREZHNEV, who gave Tito a warm welcome on his arrival Tuesday with Russian bear hugs and kisses, acknowledged in his answering toast at the banquet that problems sometime arise between Communist countries. But he said there are no differences that cannot be solved on a "reasonably comradely basis."

During talks in Belgrade last November, Brezhnev proposed that Yugoslavia grant the U.S.S.R. increased naval facilities in its territory and suggested closer economic and political ties. Tito flatly rejected those requests.

The Yugoslav leader's statements on this trip — his first visit to Moscow since 1973 — emphasized the Belgrade regime intends to maintain its independent non-aligned status. It was expected he seeks a firm Soviet guarantee that Moscow will keep out of Yugoslav affairs during any succession period after his own death.

The largest area crime rate increase was reported by Rolling Meadows with a 29.2 per cent increase. Other increases were seen in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect and Wheeling. No separate statistics were available for Prospect Heights, which contracts for police protection from the Cook County Sheriff's police.

In suburban areas throughout the state, crime dropped by 6.8 per cent last year while Chicago crime dropped by more than 9 per cent and over-all Cook County dropped by 7.5 per cent.

THE STATE calculates the crime rate based on the number of murders, rapes, robberies, assaults, burglaries, thefts and auto thefts reported compared to the community's population.

Elk Grove Village reported drops in nearly every category with the exception of the three Columbo family murders May 4, 1976.

"I see the decrease in crime here stemming mainly from our improved preventive training over the past year," said Harry Jenkins, chief of Elk Grove Village police.

"We're actually short of officers for the first time in a long time, but because of stricter training, our police are probably more alert now than they've ever been."

The village reported the number of thefts dropped from 1,059 to 212, burglary was down from 293 to 52 and assaults dropped from 102 to 88 during last year.

IN ROLLING MEADOWS, thefts increased from 326 to 450, which appeared to account for the majority of the statistical increase reported. There also were slight increases reported in the number of auto thefts, burglaries and robberies there in 1976.

Lewis Case, chief of the Rolling Meadows Police Dept., said the city has not had an increase in major crimes.

"We have had a rise in such crimes as batteries which often result from family disputes, but I don't think our town has had that much of an increase in some of the more major crimes," he said.

"A lot of crimes that are reported are garbage like minor juvenile things, but once people are arrested they become statistics, which adds up," Case said. "But that doesn't mean it's any less safe to live in Rolling Meadows.

Although no town-by-town breakdown was available, the law enforcement department also noted the number of vandalism arrests dropped from 26,516 in 1975 to 16,722 in 1976 while the value of vandalized property increased last year by more than 20 per cent from $8.4 million to $10.8 million.

AMONG COLLEGES and universities, the report filed by Harper College in Palatine showed a crime rate decrease of 9.7 per cent. The college reported the number of assaults and thefts dropped, but the number of burglaries increased from two to six.

Arlington Heights, where the overall crime rate rose 2 per cent, reported 200 more thefts than in 1975 while Des Plaines, which dropped by 7.6 per cent, and Palatine, which dropped by 19.8 per cent reported 200 fewer thefts each.

The number of burglaries in Schaumburg, where the rate fell 21.6 per cent, dropped from 683 in 1975 to 476 in 1976.

The number of violent crimes appeared to be small throughout the area, while thefts appeared to be the most commonly reported offenses among the incidents used to calculate the crime rate.

The largest number of violent crimes was reported in Des Plaines, with 136 incidents, followed by Arlington Heights, 110, Elk Grove Village, 95, Schaumburg, 76, and Rolling Meadows, 47.

Tito-Brezhnev meeting opens with a warning

MOSCOW (UPI)—Yugoslavia's President Tito met Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in the Kremlin Wednesday to discuss the two Communits nations' touchy relations, prefacing the talks with a warning against Russian interference in Belgrade's internal affairs.

The Tass news agency said the opening round of talks between Tito and the Soviet leaders — Brezhnev was joined by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko — took place in a "warm, friendly atmosphere."

The government news agency said the 85-year-old Yugoslav leader and the Soviets began detailed discussions on the Communist alliance and the state of the world.

THEY DISCUSSED expansion of their countries bilateral cooperation in political, economic and cultural fields, "and exchanged opinions on a wide range of international questions," Tass said.

Itto served advance notice in a Kremlin banquet speech Tuesday night that good Soviet-Yugoslav relations depend on strict non-interference in each other's internal affairs.

Tito, a Communist maverick since he split with late dictator Josef Stalin in 1948, said the indispensable foundation for good Soviet-Yugoslav relations depends on "principles of sovereignty, equality, noninterference (and) respect for different ways of internal development and peculiarities of the internal positions of our countries and parties."

BREZHNEV, who gave Tito a warm welcome on his arrival Tuesday with Russian bear hugs and kisses, acknowledged in his answering toast at the banquet that problems sometime arise between Communist countries. But he said there are no differences that cannot be solved on a "reasonably comradely basis."

During talks in Belgrade last November, Brezhnev proposed that Yugoslavia grant the U.S.S.R. increased naval facilities in its territory and suggested closer economic and political ties. Tito flatly rejected those requests.

The Yugoslav leader's statements on this trip — his first visit to Moscow since 1973 — emphasized the Belgrade regime intends to maintain its independent non-aligned status. It was expected he seeks a firm Soviet guarantee that Moscow will keep out of Yugoslav affairs during any succession period after his own death.

Doreen's record rains lash L.A.

The remnants of Hurricane Doreen lashed drought-stricken Southern California for a third straight day Wednesday, causing massive flooding, at least three storm-related deaths, more than $14 million in damage to farmlands and bringing the most rain to Los Angeles in recorded history.

Doreen, downgraded to a tropical depression from its earlier hurricane status, was reported by the National Weather Service to be centered 60 miles west of San Diego and moving with gusts up to 40 knots.

Three deaths were attributed to the storm — a man killed in a traffic accident in Malibu, a woman electrocuted in her Imperial County home and another man killed in a traffic collision near Fallbrook.

POLICE IN Los Angeles searched the rain-swollen Los Angeles River—a normally dry concrete-lined flood control channel — for a 7-year-old boy who was reported to have fallen into the river in four feet of water near the Los Angeles Zoo.

The National Weather Service said the storm was located offshore from San Diego, but was expected to turn back onto the coast and hit inland areas south of Long Beach and dissipate.

Doreen brought 1.69 inches of rain to Los Angeles—a record both for the month of August and season. The previous rainfall record for the season beginning July 1 was .61 inches set in 1889 when recordkeeping began. More than two inches fell at Oxnard in Ventura County and San Bernardino.

The California Farm Bureau reported the storm had wrought an estimated $10 million worth of damage to Imperial Valley farmlands. The entire county was declared a disaster area by the Board of Supervisors.

Doreen's record rains lash L.A.

The remnants of Hurricane Doreen lashed drought-stricken Southern California for a third straight day Wednesday, causing massive flooding, at least three storm-related deaths, more than $14 million in damage to farmlands and bringing the most rain to Los Angeles in recorded history.

Doreen, downgraded to a tropical depression from its earlier hurricane status, was reported by the National Weather Service to be centered 60 miles west of San Diego and moving with gusts up to 40 knots.

Three deaths were attributed to the storm — a man killed in a traffic accident in Malibu, a woman electrocuted in her Imperial County home and another man killed in a traffic collision near Fallbrook.

POLICE IN Los Angeles searched the rain-swollen Los Angeles River—a normally dry concrete-lined flood control channel — for a 7-year-old boy who was reported to have fallen into the river in four feet of water near the Los Angeles Zoo.

The National Weather Service said the storm was located offshore from San Diego, but was expected to turn back onto the coast and hit inland areas south of Long Beach and dissipate.

Doreen brought 1.69 inches of rain to Los Angeles—a record both for the month of August and season. The previous rainfall record for the season beginning July 1 was .61 inches set in 1889 when recordkeeping began. More than two inches fell at Oxnard in Ventura County and San Bernardino.

The California Farm Bureau reported the storm had wrought an estimated $10 million worth of damage to Imperial Valley farmlands. The entire county was declared a disaster area by the Board of Supervisors.

In Palatine, Arlington Heights

Officials to back SHARE plan

Officials of Palatine and Arlington Heights Wednesday said they will ask their village boards to continue to finance SHARE + 3 and its proposal to buy water from the City of Chicago.

Both communities have been hesitant to commit money to the SHARE project, saying they are not convinced that the area should tie into the Chicago system. Instead they proposed a study of alternative methods of bringing Lake Michigan water to the Northwest suburbs.

Palatine Village Pres. Robert Guss said he has not abandoned a study of alternative sources. He said Arlington Heights and Palatine officials are discussing a $35,000-$40,000 study on the possibility of getting water from Evanston. He said he will ask his board to finance both projects until more information is available.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Village Mgr. L.A. Hanson said he also will ask his board to approve a $10,000 contribution to SHARE + 3.

Each of the SHARE + 3 communities is being asked for $10,000 to finance preliminary legal, engineering and financial work. Of the eight member communities, only Buffalo Grove has decided not to stay with the group. Village Pres. Edward Fabish said his town is an intergovernmental group formed to bring water to the Northwest suburbs, working to get water from Highland Park. SHARE + 3 consists of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove.

SHARE + 3 members voted to hire the law firm of Isham, Lincoln and Beale, whose first job will be to review and revise the agreement creating the group.

The members also adopted a $109,200 budget, covering expenses for the next 12 months. The bulk of the money will go to legal and engineering fees.

The seven remaining communities have until Sept. 15 to decide formally whether to stay with SHARE + 3.

Zerkle runs into Wheeling's past

A tyranny of five reigns in Wheeling.

Through its misguided leadership the basic form of government under which the village operates is being subverted. If not remedied immediately, it will drag Wheeling back into the muck and mire of dirty politics from which the vilage has only recently emerged.

Village Pres. William Hein and a majority of his supporter on the Wheeling Village Board are the tyrants and if left uncurbed will thrust an air of rotten politics at the steps of Wheeling Village Hall.

Time was when a man named James Stavros ran the village. He called the shots, pulled the strings and sold the zoning. He and an up-and-coming trustee, William Hein, also handpicked a police chief in a secret meeting in 1972, according to court testimony by that former chief.

Stavros was caught and jailed. But Hein prospered. Today he and his crew are trying to repeat an old trick. They want to use their political power to secretly appoint a new police chief.

Their power grab is providing a lesson to village employes — take orders from those with clout or get out. Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle became the leading example of that lesson this week.

In the face of vocal protests from residents, Hein and his followers voted to ask Zerkle to resign because he refused to bow to private, political pressure to appoint Hein's hand-picked man to replace retiring Police Chief M. O. Horcher.

The pressure, documented by a memo Zerkle prepared for the village board, sought to undermine the authority of the village manager to appoint the police chief without political pressure.

Hein and his cohorts made it clear they wanted Police Lt. Ted Bracke appointed chief and they didn't care whether there were more qualified persons to be found in the 150 applications the village received.

The political meddling on the part of Hein and his followers should end, and it should end now.

Pets and people—love and conflict

Today's question: Should household pets be banntd?

Many of the headlines and major articles in your paper refer to vandalism, crime and pollution of our skies, water and land, all of which are caused by people, not pets.

It is laughable when people complain about the noise a neighbor's pet may make when I listen to the noise created by jets flying into or out of O'Hare, idiot teenagers screeching their tires around corners or dragging down public streets and power saws, jackhammers, etc.

It is ludicrous to listen to complaints about pets "relieving" themselves on lawns or even sidewalks when people have poured their wastes into our waterways and skies, polluting them to a degree that is unbelievable and of genuine concern and alarm to the general populace.

Man's selfishness, ignorance, cruelty and supreme egotism are responsible for the seemingly endless and insurmountable problems facing the world today, among which are: overpopulation, defilement and destruction of our environment and lack of food and energy resources.

It is obvious that what is necessary is people control, not pet control.

Maria Zahareas
Arlington Heights

'Pets costly and wasteful'

Yes, for reasons cited on the Aug. 8 editorial page, pets should be banned.

Living on a corner and opposite a park, our yard gets more than an average share of dog waste. Only one dog walker in the neighborhood removes her pet's solid wastes. Several residents carelessly allow their dogs to bark, making sleep difficult at certain hours and spoiling our use of the backyard at other times.

My personal irritation notwithstanding, ecological considerations point to the need for elimination of household pets in this country. Among other negative considerations, dog feces must represent the principal urban breeding ground for flies, whose larvae feed in such matter.

We have had a cat for many years. She was spayed at an early age and has always been confined to the interior of our house. Food, cat litter and energy consumption connected with maintaining her is expensive and wasteful. This family will have no more such pets!

Charles R. Miller
Mount Prospect

'Incurable pet owner'

I am an incurable pet owner and cannot imagine living in a community where pets are banned. I agree that some people ignore their responsibilities as pet owners, but they should not spoil it for others.

I feel that raising my children with pets teaches them many things they could never learn from a book. They learn responsibility of feeding and caring for a living thing. Sex education is not a problem but a natural happening. They learn the need for birth control as well as witnessing the miracle of birth. They have a friend to comfort them and to share their joys.

Vicki Vesper
Elk Grove Village

'Limit pet numbers'

The number of pets should be limited to one per household, txcept in the country. Laws should be strict and police officers should enforce them when they see one running loose or hear one constantly barking, without having to be called!

Most people who have animals have no consideration for their neighbors. It seems that when someone moves to the suburbs they automatically get a dog. While I really like animals, I believe that they, like children, should be trained, not turned out in the yard or street to annoy others.

Animals should be limited when other animals have to be killed to feed them, such as the wild horses they were going to round up for dog food.

Jacqueline Baker
Rolling Meadows

'Teach right from wrong'

I am very much in awe of the statement in question, "Should household pets be banned½" I own two beautiful dogs, who give much pleasure to my family, especially to my two children. They are not any hindrance to my neighbors, for they play in the backyard and my yard is immaculate. They protect my house and my family. They stay only on my property and art always on the leash when they leave it. They are well groomed and receive their rabies shots once a year, plus their village license.

I care for them as I do my own children. They do not roam the streets at night breaking windows, slashing tires, or stealing. I know where they are every minute.

There may be people who own animals who should not, and also those who have children and should not.

Any person who has any regard for life, be it human or animal should have respect for it, and teach it right from wrong, so that all can live happily together.

Mrs. Carol Sturgis
Buffalo Grove

'Owners break laws'

I agree that cats, dogs and all pets should be banned from the urban and suburban areas as owners do not live up to any ordinances that exist.

The villages do not seem to enforce the pet ordinances.

Franklin Meyer
Palatine

'Would we ban kids?'

"Should children be banned?"

Having had dogs and cats and children, at this point, I prefer dogs or cats, who give many, many years of only love and devotion and fun. In their short span, one raises them as babies, teaches them, watches them grow and mature, with the same love and devotion and fun. Can one say the same for children?

Who are these people who would prefer material things to dogs and cats and children? They scare me.

P. J. Stuthridge
Palatine

'Pets teach tenderness'

I hope my children never see the day when they have to travel to a dog and cat preserve to view man's best friends, from behind bars, or study him in school as the newest addition to the endangered species list. With man's relentless pursuit to destroy and imbalance nature, so too will be gone the beauty of man, his dog and his backyard. Ban household pets? Preposterous!

With our present highly specialized society, the household pet plays a truly important role. A child, our future citizen, can especially relate tenderness and loving kindness to a pet far more easily and readily than from Johnny down the street with the play machine gun. And what of all the lonely in this world who depend on the loyalty and devotion of their pet who in turn asks nothing but love in return? Give up all this so we can save our concrete world from dog poop and promise some starving person over yonder an extra helping of bone meal? Ridiculous and insulting!

Susan D. Hegberg
Wheeling

'Pets need proper care'

Cats, dogs and other household pets should not be banned. I think they should be properly cared for and have their annual vaccinations and should be kept on home premises.

A lot of people receive much pleasure from their pets and they are good for children for education and responsibility in caring for a pet is good for children.

I think if a pet is well trained and well mannered, there is no harm in owning a pet.

I think reproduction of pets should be controlled because I don't like to see homeless pets.

I think people should be ashamed of themselves for suggesting banning pets!

Ruth Schanmier
Palatine

'Don't punish innocent'

Anyone who can say that pets should be banned does not love animals, nor do they care for the rights of others.

If animals create a nuisance it is solely the fault of irresponsible owners. Such people, indeed, should not have a pet — for the sake of the animal as well as the public. However, to generalize and take away the rights of those who love animals, who take care of them and do not allow them to be a nuisance, is wrong! It is unfair discrimination! Let problems be corrected where they arise, but do not punish the innocent (responsible pet owners and the animals who need loving homes) in an effort to punish the guilty!

'Raise license fees'

I used to like dogs. I'm not so sure that I still do, thanks to their irresponsible owners. Why do people adopt a dog and then suddenly lose their hearing? My Irish Setter had been dead for two days before the neighbors were aware. She was taught to bark only when the doorbell rang or if a stranger entered our yard. When we assured her it was a friend, she stopped. Actually, isn't that all that is necessary?

In this neighborhood, the dogs are left outdoors for hours to bark at anything that moves — leaves, birds, planes, etc. No one tries to quiet them. It's like living in a kennel. People become hostile when you complain to them.

Perhaps, if the dog licenses went up to $25 (preferably $50) we would get rid of this nuisance element once and for all.

'Dogs don't rob or shoot'

I have two dogs, Snooker, an Anti-Cruelty dog (a mutt) and Ginger, a purebred Dachshund. My boys are grown. My dogs are a joy and great company. They mind at times and they have minds of their own. As for feeding them, I give them canned dog food and dry food, which I feel they have earned by protecting and loving me.

I feel most dog lovers like me try to keep our pets well behaved. Now I can't say this for those people who hate dogs and have children who are mean, destructive, not considerate of others. I know where my dogs are, home protecting me, giving me fond affection and earning their keep. Dogs don't rob or shoot.

Mrs. Mae Askefeldt

'Prevent overpopulation'

Household pets have their place in many lives. They give many people happiness, company, simple communication of God's creatures.

However, people and not animals are responsible for the trouble we are having.

Animals cannot talk and therefore when you own a pet you owe it to the people who don't like or have pets to neuter your pets, leash them to prevent overpopulation and problems.

Wake up before it becomes mandatory to do this and it will if people continue to let their pets breed. Visit a shelter and look into the eyes of the animals waiting for good homes. And some will never see them. Why? Because we keep breeding them.

Mrs Greg Stras
Des Plaines

'Constant irritation'

Every day, morning and evening, we watch a steady parade of citizens walking their dogs and using St. Viator property for their pets' irresponsible "droppings." Last week a station wagon drew up at the curb. The man stayed at the wheel. Two children were in the back. The woman got out with two dogs, one large, one small. She watched them until they had "relieved themselves." Then she kicked the big one in the back affectionately, picked up the little one and kissed it. They got back into the station wagon and drove off. The children in the station wagon had learned a lesson: "Let someone else do your dirty work for you."

At least three or four cats roam through our yard every night, but here I'm helpless. There's no law against cats, and you can't catch them. You can only pick up dead birds the next day. I picked up five this spring. And you can stare sadly at the bare spots in your lawn. But that is minor. We have been, on several occasions, wakened at 3 and 4 in the morning by cats fighting under our bedroom window. This is more of an annoyance than the six dogs next door.

What are pets? "Constant and dependable adoration for their owners," someone said. Constant and steady irritation for friends and neighbors of owners, I say. I'd vote for banning without a moment's hesitation, not because I don't like pets, but because pet owners are universally irresponsible.

Jeanette Howard

'We need each other'

Men and dogs seem to have needed each other so far as history can recall with dogs being by far the more loyal of the two.

Suddenly our society declares them a nuisance.

Millions of dogs and cats are destroyed each year. Whose fault is it? Not necesarily that of people who dislike animals. The burden of guilt rests squarely on the shoulders of those who claim to love dogs, but somehow cannot see the logic of cleaning up after their pets. Because of these careless owners, landlords hesitate to rent to families with pets, fearful of future hassles.

I believe that old folks forgotten in nursing homes, sick children in hospitals, depressed people in mental institutions would benefit a great deal from the company of a pet. Cats would be ideal since they have a marvelous way to adapt to any life style and are naturally clean.

Learn to take care of your pets and respect other people's rights and everyone will be more tolerant.

'Pets better than people'

Each morning I really look forward to reading The Arlington Heights Herald, even more so than the Tribune, but after reading the column called "Forum" and the question, "Should household pets be banned?" I really saw red. I'm stunned to think that a question like that would even be posed.

We really don't need to have any living creatures that God created because we have "man." Let's make more room for him so he can kill, rape, rob and cheat and vandalize. From the animals all we get anyway is just love and devotion and complete unselfishness. Who needs that when man can provide cruelty, hate, cheating and selfishness.

If every child was raised with the love of an animal, the world would be better off. At least an animal really knows the meaning of love. It's certainly not being taught to our young people these days. It's man eat man. The more I see of human beings, the more I respect my pets.

A lonely feeling to be Orwell's fan

Paul Greenberg

DURANGO, Colo. — One of the joys of a vacation is the opportunity to read George Orwell in new surroundings. I have been a George Orwell bug since, as a teenager, I bought a paperback copy of "1984" on the strength of a sexy cover and wound up reading it for its political significance.

Like every other Orwell bug, for years I was convinced that I was the lone member of the fan club. It was like having an author all one's own. The impression was sustained by the obscurity that seemed to have swallowed up most of his work. Even after "Animal Farm" was revived to great and undiscriminating praise — it was pushed as a simple fable of anti-communism with a kind of Reader's Digest enthusiasm — the rest of his books stayed out of print.

HAVING RUN OUT of Orwell books, I looked around for books about Orwell, anticipating they would reflect some of his special quality. There was almost no critical literature and, when Orwell became all the rage and reviews and essays about him suddenly abounded, they weren't satisfying. They were worse than that, they were irritating, perverse, as though they had set out deliberately to miss the point. They treated Orwell as, by that time, my college teachers had taught me to treat any writer: Search for symbolic meanings, explain the relations of the writer's work to his life and how he might have improved both, etc. Analyze him to death. That is particularly beside the point with George Orwell, who didn't believe in making a secret of what he was trying to say. On the contrary, in one of the better essays in the English language ("Why I Write") he summed up what style he strove for in a single sentence: "Good prose is like a window pane."

It is a good deal easier to say why the critics are wrong than to say what it is that makes Orwell irresistible reading. Happily, my old copy of his "Homage to Catalonia" was missing when I went to look for it the other day and so I had to buy a new edition. Happily, because this new edition contains an introduction by the late Lionel Trilling that succeeds in explaining the fascination and satisfaction in reading Orwell.

Orwell, writes Professor Trilling "is not a genius — what a relief: What an encouragement. For he communicates to us the sense that what he has done, any one of us could do. Or could do if we but made up our mind to do it, if we but surrendered a little of the cant that comforts us, if for a few weeks we paid no attention to the little group with which we habitually exchange opinions, if we took our chance of being wrong or inadequate, if we looked at things simply and directly, having only in mind our intention of finding out what they really are, not the prestige of our great intellectual act of looking at them. He liberates us. He tells us that we can understand our political and social life merely by looking around us, he frees us from the need for the inside dope."

IN AN IDEOLOGICAL world, that is what made George Orwell so refreshing, so unprogrammed. And it may also be what makes him inaccessible to the minor academics, who have him all figured out and ready to serve. The many "contradictions" they find in his politics are contradictions only of a given party line, not of decency, personal experience and moral principle — which are the palpable forces in his writing.

To quote Lionel Trilling again on Orwell: "If we ask what it is that he stands for, what he is the figure of, the answer is: the virtue of not being a genius, of fronting the world with nothing more than one's simple, direct undeceived intelligence, and a respect for the powers one does have, and the work one undertakes to do."

That says it, or much of it. I may yet become a Lionel Trilling bug.

Zerkle runs into Wheeling's past

A tyranny of five reigns in Wheeling.

Through its misguided leadership the basic form of government under which the village operates is being subverted. If not remedied immediately, it will drag Wheeling back into the muck and mire of dirty politics from which the vilage has only recently emerged.

Village Pres. William Hein and a majority of his supporter on the Wheeling Village Board are the tyrants and if left uncurbed will thrust an air of rotten politics at the steps of Wheeling Village Hall.

Time was when a man named James Stavros ran the village. He called the shots, pulled the strings and sold the zoning. He and an up-and-coming trustee, William Hein, also handpicked a police chief in a secret meeting in 1972, according to court testimony by that former chief.

Stavros was caught and jailed. But Hein prospered. Today he and his crew are trying to repeat an old trick. They want to use their political power to secretly appoint a new police chief.

Their power grab is providing a lesson to village employes — take orders from those with clout or get out. Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle became the leading example of that lesson this week.

In the face of vocal protests from residents, Hein and his followers voted to ask Zerkle to resign because he refused to bow to private, political pressure to appoint Hein's hand-picked man to replace retiring Police Chief M. O. Horcher.

The pressure, documented by a memo Zerkle prepared for the village board, sought to undermine the authority of the village manager to appoint the police chief without political pressure.

Hein and his cohorts made it clear they wanted Police Lt. Ted Bracke appointed chief and they didn't care whether there were more qualified persons to be found in the 150 applications the village received.

The political meddling on the part of Hein and his followers should end, and it should end now.

Pets and people—love and conflict

Today's question: Should household pets be banntd?

Many of the headlines and major articles in your paper refer to vandalism, crime and pollution of our skies, water and land, all of which are caused by people, not pets.

It is laughable when people complain about the noise a neighbor's pet may make when I listen to the noise created by jets flying into or out of O'Hare, idiot teenagers screeching their tires around corners or dragging down public streets and power saws, jackhammers, etc.

It is ludicrous to listen to complaints about pets "relieving" themselves on lawns or even sidewalks when people have poured their wastes into our waterways and skies, polluting them to a degree that is unbelievable and of genuine concern and alarm to the general populace.

Man's selfishness, ignorance, cruelty and supreme egotism are responsible for the seemingly endless and insurmountable problems facing the world today, among which are: overpopulation, defilement and destruction of our environment and lack of food and energy resources.

It is obvious that what is necessary is people control, not pet control.

Maria Zahareas

'Pets costly and wasteful'

Yes, for reasons cited on the Aug. 8 editorial page, pets should be banned.

Living on a corner and opposite a park, our yard gets more than an average share of dog waste. Only one dog walker in the neighborhood removes her pet's solid wastes. Several residents carelessly allow their dogs to bark, making sleep difficult at certain hours and spoiling our use of the backyard at other times.

My personal irritation notwithstanding, ecological considerations point to the need for elimination of household pets in this country. Among other negative considerations, dog feces must represent the principal urban breeding ground for flies, whose larvae feed in such matter.

We have had a cat for many years. She was spayed at an early age and has always been confined to the interior of our house. Food, cat litter and energy consumption connected with maintaining her is expensive and wasteful. This family will have no more such pets!

Charles R. Miller

'Incurable pet owner'

I am an incurable pet owner and cannot imagine living in a community where pets are banned. I agree that some people ignore their responsibilities as pet owners, but they should not spoil it for others.

I feel that raising my children with pets teaches them many things they could never learn from a book. They learn responsibility of feeding and caring for a living thing. Sex education is not a problem but a natural happening. They learn the need for birth control as well as witnessing the miracle of birth. They have a friend to comfort them and to share their joys.

Vicki Vesper
Elk Grove Village

'Limit pet numbers'

The number of pets should be limited to one per household, txcept in the country. Laws should be strict and police officers should enforce them when they see one running loose or hear one constantly barking, without having to be called!

Most people who have animals have no consideration for their neighbors. It seems that when someone moves to the suburbs they automatically get a dog. While I really like animals, I believe that they, like children, should be trained, not turned out in the yard or street to annoy others.

Animals should be limited when other animals have to be killed to feed them, such as the wild horses they were going to round up for dog food.

Jacqueline Baker

'Teach right from wrong'

I am very much in awe of the statement in question, "Should household pets be banned½" I own two beautiful dogs, who give much pleasure to my family, especially to my two children. They are not any hindrance to my neighbors, for they play in the backyard and my yard is immaculate. They protect my house and my family. They stay only on my property and art always on the leash when they leave it. They are well groomed and receive their rabies shots once a year, plus their village license.

I care for them as I do my own children. They do not roam the streets at night breaking windows, slashing tires, or stealing. I know where they are every minute.

There may be people who own animals who should not, and also those who have children and should not.

Any person who has any regard for life, be it human or animal should have respect for it, and teach it right from wrong, so that all can live happily together.

'Owners break laws'

I agree that cats, dogs and all pets should be banned from the urban and suburban areas as owners do not live up to any ordinances that exist.

The villages do not seem to enforce the pet ordinances.

'Would we ban kids?'

"Should children be banned?"

Having had dogs and cats and children, at this point, I prefer dogs or cats, who give many, many years of only love and devotion and fun. In their short span, one raises them as babies, teaches them, watches them grow and mature, with the same love and devotion and fun. Can one say the same for children?

Who are these people who would prefer material things to dogs and cats and children? They scare me.

P. J. Stuthridge

'Pets teach tenderness'

I hope my children never see the day when they have to travel to a dog and cat preserve to view man's best friends, from behind bars, or study him in school as the newest addition to the endangered species list. With man's relentless pursuit to destroy and imbalance nature, so too will be gone the beauty of man, his dog and his backyard. Ban household pets? Preposterous!

With our present highly specialized society, the household pet plays a truly important role. A child, our future citizen, can especially relate tenderness and loving kindness to a pet far more easily and readily than from Johnny down the street with the play machine gun. And what of all the lonely in this world who depend on the loyalty and devotion of their pet who in turn asks nothing but love in return? Give up all this so we can save our concrete world from dog poop and promise some starving person over yonder an extra helping of bone meal? Ridiculous and insulting!

'Pets need proper care'

Cats, dogs and other household pets should not be banned. I think they should be properly cared for and have their annual vaccinations and should be kept on home premises.

A lot of people receive much pleasure from their pets and they are good for children for education and responsibility in caring for a pet is good for children.

I think if a pet is well trained and well mannered, there is no harm in owning a pet.

I think reproduction of pets should be controlled because I don't like to see homeless pets.

I think people should be ashamed of themselves for suggesting banning pets!

Happy ending—finding the perfect age to retire

by MELVIN MADDOCKS

Once upon a time there was a myth of The Happy Ending. You worked all your life — sometimes six days a week, 50 weeks a year — and then one blessed day it stopped. You had arrived at the Promised Land. Vacation every day, 365 days a year. Retirement.

Retirement mean travel. The endless golf game. The good reading that, somehow, you never did. Learning how to play the tenor recorder. All this and a gold watch, too. Who could ask for more?

Just about everybody. Suddenly retirement has become a dirty word. If Congress does not abolish mandatory retirement at 65, the courts promise to de filled with energetic men and women in their 60s — and 70s — fighting against what used to be envied as the "easy life."

NOW ONE IS A "VICTIM" of retirement. An anonymous victim writing in the New York Times said he felt he had been officially declared "unwanted," unfit"—"a relic." A sort of handbook has been written, "Hanging in There: How to Resist Retirement," endorsed by "Miss Lillian" Carter.

Still, at the other end of the parade, all of these young people keep coming along. What's to be done?

A friend far from retirement age and therefore full to the brim with impartiality, you understand, thinks he has a solution. Young Dr. F. (as he shall be known) agrees with the Golden Age revolutionaries. Since they don't want to retire at 65, why should they? "They've all been brought up on the work-ethic," Dr. F. explained to a favored few as we symbolically rocked on his porch one August evening.

'Let's face it. Everybody who came to maturity before World War II is a workaholic. Such people can't live without work, both as a sanctification and a habit.

"OBVIOUSLY SOMEBODY has to go," Dr. F reasoned with himself and anybody who could stop slapping at the black flies and listen. "The only question is: Who shall retire?"

After a suspenseful pause young Dr. F provided an outrageously simple answer: "Leave the poor 65-year-olds alone. The very young — people between, say, 23 and 28 — are the ones who should be retired. 'Dr. F"s prime-time retirement' I call my plan, though I prefer the phrase 'free time' to 'retirement.'

"Here's my logic. People between 23 and 28 are often — what shall we say? — 'between things" anyway. They don't know what they want to do, and so they don't do it.

"Retirement is a cruel system for putting people out to pasture. It contains no sequel. It takes people with something to do and gives them nothing to do. The gold watch is for countdown purposes only.

"ON THE OTHER HAND, my free-time plan gives a young man or woman the leisure to learn what they really want to do with the rest of their lives instead of rushing into the first job that comes along. They are at the age to explore. With a little money — less than a 65-year-old would need, I might point out — and society's blessing, who knows what free-time participants might discover about the world or themselves? Usable truths that would escape them if they were just 'employed' or marking time in graduate school."

"OK, OK," interrupted Dr. F's father, who had just finished putting the "Dr." before F's name by paying for three years worth of graduate work in sociology. "We're agreed that retirement's not for 65. But how about the man in his 50s, needing a precious year or two before doing his last laps? Or the man in his 40s, thinking about a second career?"

You wouldn't believe the uproar that followed. Everybody suddenly understood that he or she was at the perfect age for retirement, whatever that age might be. A man of 39 who had never worked a day in his life built a passionate, airtight case for retirement just before 40.

Who knows where it all would have ended? Maybe a march on Washington. But then somebody's nephew who happens to work for Social Security spoke up. "I bring you news from the Great Cashier in Washington. As you know, we're wondering if we can pay our IOUs to people at the age of 65. We certainly can't pay them to people at 25 or 40. But that's what would make this prime-time retirement so marvelous for us. Now we could stick with 65 as the pay-off age and have all that extra time to scrape up the ante."

As young Dr. F said later, nobody can break up a party like a happy bureaucrat, saving the government money.

by GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All 434 house members have received a 93-page proposal that — among other things — would help guard against putting mistresses on commiitee pay-putting mistresses on committee payrolls.

The Commission on Administrative review, created by the House as a result of last summer's revelations of sex scandals, has put together its second major proposal carrying 43 specific recommendations for better accounting of how the taxpayer's money is being spent along with other suggestions to streamline housekeeping procedures.

The Obey Commission, named after its chairman, Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., would try to prevent a repeat of the Elizabeth Ray case by hiring an administrator with broad jurisdiction over all the "support services" that keeps the house operating.

HE WOULD BE the most powerful employe in Congress, which in itself is enough to ruffle the feathers of empire builders who have ruled over small armies of doorkeepers, folding room workers and elevator operators.

But there are a couple of other more provocative proposals in the massive report, such as "reallocation" of space currently held in the Capitol and office buildings and a procedure for legislative employes to file grievances such as sex, age, or color discrimination against their boss.

One sleeper in the report would permit members to travel at government expense anywhere for any reason despite the fact the trip does not pertain to the jurisdiction of a committee on which the member serves.

AT PRESENT, STUDY or inspection trips have to relate to a member's committee work.

All that the member needs for non-committee business travel abroad is conformance with regulations that his friends on the International Relations Committee would set and approval of the Clerk of the House.

And we all know who hires the clerk. Members of the house, of course.

Happy ending—finding the perfect age to retire

by MELVIN MADDOCKS

Once upon a time there was a myth of The Happy Ending. You worked all your life — sometimes six days a week, 50 weeks a year — and then one blessed day it stopped. You had arrived at the Promised Land. Vacation every day, 365 days a year. Retirement.

Retirement mean travel. The endless golf game. The good reading that, somehow, you never did. Learning how to play the tenor recorder. All this and a gold watch, too. Who could ask for more?

Just about everybody. Suddenly retirement has become a dirty word. If Congress does not abolish mandatory retirement at 65, the courts promise to de filled with energetic men and women in their 60s — and 70s — fighting against what used to be envied as the "easy life."

NOW ONE IS A "VICTIM" of retirement. An anonymous victim writing in the New York Times said he felt he had been officially declared "unwanted," unfit"—"a relic." A sort of handbook has been written, "Hanging in There: How to Resist Retirement," endorsed by "Miss Lillian" Carter.

Still, at the other end of the parade, all of these young people keep coming along. What's to be done?

A friend far from retirement age and therefore full to the brim with impartiality, you understand, thinks he has a solution. Young Dr. F. (as he shall be known) agrees with the Golden Age revolutionaries. Since they don't want to retire at 65, why should they? "They've all been brought up on the work-ethic," Dr. F. explained to a favored few as we symbolically rocked on his porch one August evening.

'Let's face it. Everybody who came to maturity before World War II is a workaholic. Such people can't live without work, both as a sanctification and a habit.

"OBVIOUSLY SOMEBODY has to go," Dr. F reasoned with himself and anybody who could stop slapping at the black flies and listen. "The only question is: Who shall retire?"

After a suspenseful pause young Dr. F provided an outrageously simple answer: "Leave the poor 65-year-olds alone. The very young — people between, say, 23 and 28 — are the ones who should be retired. 'Dr. F's prime-time retirement' I call my plan, though I prefer the phrase 'free time' to 'retirement.'

"Here's my logic. People between 23 and 28 are often — what shall we say? — 'between things" anyway. They don't know what they want to do, and so they don't do it.

"Retirement is a cruel system for putting people out to pasture. It contains no sequel. It takes people with something to do and gives them nothing to do. The gold watch is for countdown purposes only.

"ON THE OTHER HAND, my free-time plan gives a young man or woman the leisure to learn what they really want to do with the rest of their lives instead of rushing into the first job that comes along. They are at the age to explore. With a little money — less than a 65-year-old would need, I might point out — and society's blessing, who knows what free-time participants might discover about the world or themselves? Usable truths that would escape them if they were just 'employed' or marking time in graduate school."

"OK, OK," interrupted Dr. F's father, who had just finished putting the "Dr." before F's name by paying for three years worth of graduate work in sociology. "We're agreed that retirement's not for 65. But how about the man in his 50s, needing a precious year or two before doing his last laps? Or the man in his 40s, thinking about a second career?"

You wouldn't believe the uproar that followed. Everybody suddenly understood that he or she was at the perfect age for retirement, whatever that age might be. A man of 39 who had never worked a day in his life built a passionate, airtight case for retirement just before 40.

Who knows where it all would have ended? Maybe a march on Washington. But then somebody's nephew who happens to work for Social Security spoke up. "I bring you news from the Great Cashier in Washington. As you know, we're wondering if we can pay our IOUs to people at the age of 65. We certainly can't pay them to people at 25 or 40. But that's what would make this prime-time retirement so marvelous for us. Now we could stick with 65 as the pay-off age and have all that extra time to scrape up the ante."

As young Dr. F said later, nobody can break up a party like a happy bureaucrat, saving the government money.

Reuschel in groove, tames Pirates, 4-2

by ART MUGALIAN

Cub righthander Rick Reuschel tried, without success, to puncture Chuck Tanner's fabled optimism Wednesday.

But all Reuschel succeeded in doing at packed Wrigley Field was 1) frustrate Tanner's Pittsburgh Pirates; 2) wrap up his seventh route-going victory; 3) win his career-high 16th game; and 4) strike out more batters than any Cub pitcher had been able to fan in one game this year.

Of course Reuschel's 4-2 victory, aided by a pair of home runs by Bobby Murcer, resuscitated the Cubs' slim hopes of getting back into the Eastern Division title race. It also pushed the second-place Pirates a full five games in back of Philadelphia in the standings. The Cubs moved to within a game and a half of Pittsburgh.

BUT TANNER, who has enough good thoughts for the entire National league, refused to be morose, as well he might be after his team lost its 36th game in 60 tries on the road.

Tanner was busy praising Reuschel as if the big righty was his own when the phone rang in the visiting manager's office. . .er, cubicle. "Excuse me," said Chuck, "but I have to talk to Herman Franks. What do you bet that's Herman on the phone?"

Sure enough, it was the Cub manager administering a post-game needle to Tanner, whose Pirates are finding it just as hard to win in Chicago as anywhere else during their travels. But Tanner wasn't going to let Franks get his goat.

"I just won a bet here," the ex-White Sox manager told Franks. "I knew you were going to call. Hey, your guy really pitched a helluva game."

TANNER SMILED and chomped on a dollar cigar. He hung up the phone and continued his praise of Reuschel, who hiked his record to 16-5 with an eight-hit, 11-strikeout effort.

"He had a good sinker, a quick curve, and the best fastball I've ever seen him throw," said Tanner. "And our team can hit. . .

"But we'll be back tomorrow," he said with a grin. "In our last 44 games, we've won 30. If we can keep at that pace we'll win it. That's something like .680 baseball.

"It doesn't matter to me where we win," said Tanner, trying to minimize his team's poor road performance. "We're doing better than we're supposed to at home (45-15), so it should even out."

REUSCHEL CONTRIBUTED to Tanner's out-of-town woes by challenging the fierce Pittsburgh lineup instead of playing around the corners of the strike zone as he usually does.

"Everything I threw, all my pitches, I threw as hard as I could," said big Rick. "Every time I take something off a pitch, they hit it to the opposite field for a hit. So I decided today that I'd go all out with everything."

It worked, although it was a nine-inning struggle for Reuschel who hadn't won since July 28 partly due to a muscle spasm in his arm. He bailed out of major jams in the second, fourth, and eighth innings. In the fourth, Pittsburgh had the bases loaded with one out and couldn't score. In all, the Pirates left nine runners.

"I was really tired the last two innings," Reuschel admitted. "I was struggling with my control, trying to get the ball over the plate. I wish those innings could have been 1-2-3."

AL OLIVER RIPPED Rick for a two-out double in the eighth but Murcer made a leaping catch of Rennie Stennett's deep drive to end that threat. In the ninth, with Willie Hernandez warming up in the bullpen, Reuschel allowed a hit and a walk, then tossed a couple of wild pitches before striking out Phil Garner, the tying run, to end the game.

Murcer, whose heady baserunning helped win Tuesday's 15-inning thriller, provided the winning margin Wednesday with his 22nd and 23rd homers, solo clouts in the fourth and seventh.

The Cubs also scored unearned runs in the first and sixth, driven in with singles by Bill Buckner and Gene Clines. Jerry Morales, back in the lineup after a five-game absence, contributed a single to the first-inning uprising.

"Having Jerry out hurt us," Murcer admitted. "Him and (Ivan) DeJesus and (Bruce) Sutter. Those are the guys that got us the eight-game lead. Now when we get them all back, who knows?"

DeJESUS SAT OUT another game with his bruised throwing arm while Dave Rosello played shortstop. Sutter is due back next Tuesday. But the Cubs had more bad news in the form of a chipped right thumb for utility infielder Mick Kelleher. The injury occurred Tuesday on a ninth-inning grounder that took a bad hop.

"The doctor called to say that Kelleher can pinch hit in two weeks," laughed Franks. "Who the hell needs him to pinch hit? But he was just telling me that Kelleher will be able to hit before he can throw."

Kelleher was in uniform Wednesday but he will go on the disabled list, to be replaced on the roster with a minor leaguer.

Sox looking for pitchers during two-day vacation

Bill Veeck may be hosting another of his versions of "Let's Make A Deal" right now — and the White Sox need it.

After Tuesday's heartbreaking 11-10 loss to the Yankees, it was never more obvious the Sox need a big boost in the bullpen if they are going to remain contenders.

Pitchers are at a premium in the stretch, but Sox hitters may strike if what happened Tuesday happens again. Staging a six-run rally in the top of the ninth to take a 10-9 lead, the Sox were beaten by a two-run homer by Chris Chambliss off Randy Wiles in the bottom half of the inning.

THE LOSS, the 13th in 17 games, was tagged to Wiles, but he was just the last in a string of ineffective relievers. Two of Wiles' predecessors, Dave Hamilton and Lerrin LaGrow, failed even to get a single out in their stints.

"It's never easy to lose, but this one's got to grab you a little bit more," White Sox manager Bob Lemon said after the horror show at Yankee Stadium. "We've got to get a pitcher who can get somebody out."

Where to find that pitcher is Veeck's problem, but until one is found Sox hitters will be haunted with the memory of Tuesday's game when they found a six-run rally and a 10-run production weren't enough.

Veeck, who usually doesn't need lessons on the art of wheeling and dealing, may want to take a tip from the Cubs. They purchased proven reliever Dave Guisti from Oakland recently to bolster their bullpen.

IF THAT ROUTE fails, Veeck will have to turn to his farm system for help. But the Sox staff is presently 10th of the 14 American League clubs with an earned run average near 4.30.

The Sox are in their second day of an unusual two-day break in the schedule before opening a four-game weekend series in Milwaukee Friday night. Seven of the Sox' next 11 games are against the Brewers, who come to Chicago the following weekend.

In between the two series against the second-division Brewers, the Sox have two-game series with Baltimore and New York.

The remaining Sox schedule indicates the Sox are still in good shape, since they have already finished play this season with division powers Texas and Kansas City. Six games remain to be played against first-place Minnesota, though.

IHSA changes swimming seasons for boys, girls

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—Illinois high school principals voted by a margin of 515-79 to change the sports seasons in seven of the 23 sports in which state tournament series are conducted, a count of the votes showed Wednesday.

The results of the special Illinois High School Assn. referendum will move the girls' swimming season from the fall to the winter and the boys' swimming season from winter to spring. In addition, the seasons in basketball, golf and tennis, all for girls, were lengthened by two weeks and the seasons in gymnastics and track also for girls, were lengthened by one week.

The special referendum was required when the Office of Civil Rights ruled that the sports season package approved in the regular fall referendum was not in compliance with Title 9 of the Education Act of 1972 and that member schools would lose federal funding.

There were five spoiled ballots and a total of 599 were received in the IHSA office as of Wednesday.

Living on the backstretch

Arlington Park 50th anniversary

(Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of articles saluting the 50th anniversary of Arlington Park Race Track)

by JEFF TRIMBLE

Northwest of the track at Arlington Park, removed from the bustling grandstand and the gaze of racegoers, 50 buildings stand on 170 acres of land known as the backstretch.

Although the backstretch receives little attention, it serves a vital role in the racing operation. It is there that 1,900 precious race horses are stabled and cared for during the racing season.

The backstretch is also home for half of the 2,500 people who work with the animals. An entire community, a "subculture" as backstretch veterans call it, has evolved around the needs of the animals and the workers.

THE HORSES ARE boarded in box stalls in 35 barns and provided with veterinary service, backsmiths and exercise facilities.

The workers are housed in three dormitories, rooms in several of the barns and a trailer park. Available for their use are a cafeteria, recreation areas, church services and the "backstretch center," which offers a variety of personal services.

Backstretch veterans cite many changes that have come to the track over the years. But they agree the single most drastic change has been in the composition of the work force, which is now one third female.

Until the late 1960's, women were not even allowed on the backstretch after dark.

The 2,500 workers are employed in a variety of horse-related jobs.

HOT WALKERS AND other groom's assistants handle the daily chores of feeding and caring for the horses. A hot walker walks a horse around the barn until it cools down after a workout or race.

Supervising the hot walkers and assistants are the grooms, who are responsible to the trainer for the horse's fitness and health.

The trainers set the regimen to prepare the animals for racing, while exercisers and jockeys ride the horses.

Pay for the average backstretch worker is low by local standards and the living accommodations poor.

Hot walkers and other groom's assistants rarely make more than $90 per week.

GROOMS, EXERCISERS, jockeys and trainers fare better. Exercisers make as much as $200 per week, grooms about $175.

The earnings for trainers and jockeys, vary, depending on the number of horses they work with and whether the horses are finishing in the money.

Most of the 1,200 workers living on the backstretch are housed in dormitories which were built in the last five years.

Crystal Lake's Barbara Feltz is a 22-year-old groom's assistant living in a converted tack room in one of the barns.

THE DAY BEGINS early for Barbara, who is working her third season at Arlington Park.

Like most track workers, Barbara rises at 4:45 a.m., allowing time for breakfast before starting her daily chores. She returns to the barn and washes out feed tubs, gives the animals fresh water and cleans their stalls.

She prepares the horses for the morning workouts. While the horse is on the track, she finishes cleaning.

After the workout, Barbara bathes and brushes the horses. By 11 a.m., her work day is finished and she heads for the cafeteria and lunch.

Her love for the horses is evident as she carefully brushes them down.

"I WANT TO BE a jock (jockey)," she said. "With this job, I'm around horses all the time, so I might get a chance to ride."

After the season ends at Arlington, Barbara says she will go to another area track for the winter season, possibly Sportsman's Park.

Barbara works for trainer Jerry McGrath, a Palatine resident for the last nine of his 12 years at Arlington.

McGrath is one of the many trainers who likes to have women working with the horses.

Reuschel in groove, tames Pirates, 4-2

by ART MUGALIAN

Cub righthander Rick Reuschel tried, without success, to puncture Chuck Tanner's fabled optimism Wednesday.

But all Reuschel succeeded in doing at packed Wrigley Field was 1) frustrate Tanner's Pittsburgh Pirates; 2) wrap up his seventh route-going victory; 3) win his career-high 16th game; and 4) strike out more batters than any Cub pitcher had been able to fan in one game this year.

Of course Reuschel's 4-2 victory, aided by a pair of home runs by Bobby Murcer, resuscitated the Cubs' slim hopes of getting back into the Eastern Division title race. It also pushed the second-place Pirates a full five games in back of Philadelphia in the standings. The Cubs moved to within a game and a half of Pittsburgh.

BUT TANNER, who has enough good thoughts for the entire National league, refused to be morose, as well he might be after his team lost its 36th game in 60 tries on the road.

Tanner was busy praising Reuschel as if the big righty was his own when the phone rang in the visiting manager's office. . .er, cubicle. "Excuse me," said Chuck, "but I have to talk to Herman Franks. What do you bet that's Herman on the phone?"

Sure enough, it was the Cub manager administering a post-game needle to Tanner, whose Pirates are finding it just as hard to win in Chicago as anywhere else during their travels. But Tanner wasn't going to let Franks get his goat.

"I just won a bet here," the ex-White Sox manager told Franks. "I knew you were going to call. Hey, your guy really pitched a helluva game."

TANNER SMILED and chomped on a dollar cigar. He hung up the phone and continued his praise of Reuschel, who hiked his record to 16-5 with an eight-hit, 11-strikeout effort.

"He had a good sinker, a quick curve, and the best fastball I've ever seen him throw," said Tanner. "And our team can hit. . .

"But we'll be back tomorrow," he said with a grin. "In our last 44 games, we've won 30. If we can keep at that pace we'll win it. That's something like .680 baseball.

"It doesn't matter to me where we win," said Tanner, trying to minimize his team's poor road performance. "We're doing better than we're supposed to at home (45-15), so it should even out."

REUSCHEL CONTRIBUTED to Tanner's out-of-town woes by challenging the fierce Pittsburgh lineup instead of playing around the corners of the strike zone as he usually does.

"Everything I threw, all my pitches, I threw as hard as I could," said big Rick. "Every time I take something off a pitch, they hit it to the opposite field for a hit. So I decided today that I'd go all out with everything."

It worked, although it was a nine-inning struggle for Reuschel who hadn't won since July 28 partly due to a muscle spasm in his arm. He bailed out of major jams in the second, fourth, and eighth innings. In the fourth, Pittsburgh had the bases loaded with one out and couldn't score. In all, the Pirates left nine runners.

"I was really tired the last two innings," Reuschel admitted. "I was struggling with my control, trying to get the ball over the plate. I wish those innings could have been 1-2-3."

AL OLIVER RIPPED Rick for a two-out double in the eighth but Murcer made a leaping catch of Rennie Stennett's deep drive to end that threat. In the ninth, with Willie Hernandez warming up in the bullpen, Reuschel allowed a hit and a walk, then tossed a couple of wild pitches before striking out Phil Garner, the tying run, to end the game.

Murcer, whose heady baserunning helped win Tuesday's 15-inning thriller, provided the winning margin Wednesday with his 22nd and 23rd homers, solo clouts in the fourth and seventh.

The Cubs also scored unearned runs in the first and sixth, driven in with singles by Bill Buckner and Gene Clines. Jerry Morales, back in the lineup after a five-game absence, contributed a single to the first-inning uprising.

"Having Jerry out hurt us," Murcer admitted. "Him and (Ivan) DeJesus and (Bruce) Sutter. Those are the guys that got us the eight-game lead. Now when we get them all back, who knows?"

DeJESUS SAT OUT another game with his bruised throwing arm while Dave Rosello played shortstop. Sutter is due back next Tuesday. But the Cubs had more bad news in the form of a chipped right thumb for utility infielder Mick Kelleher. The injury occurred Tuesday on a ninth-inning grounder that took a bad hop.

"The doctor called to say that Kelleher can pinch hit in two weeks," laughed Franks. "Who the hell needs him to pinch hit? But he was just telling me that Kelleher will be able to hit before he can throw."

Kelleher was in uniform Wednesday but he will go on the disabled list, to be replaced on the roster with a minor leaguer.

Sox looking for pitchers during two-day vacation

Bill Veeck may be hosting another of his versions of "Let's Make A Deal" right now — and the White Sox need it.

After Tuesday's heartbreaking 11-10 loss to the Yankees, it was never more obvious the Sox need a big boost in the bullpen if they are going to remain contenders.

Pitchers are at a premium in the stretch, but Sox hitters may strike if what happened Tuesday happens again. Staging a six-run rally in the top of the ninth to take a 10-9 lead, the Sox were beaten by a two-run homer by Chris Chambliss off Randy Wiles in the bottom half of the inning.

THE LOSS, the 13th in 17 games, was tagged to Wiles, but he was just the last in a string of ineffective relievers. Two of Wiles' predecessors, Dave Hamilton and Lerrin LaGrow, failed even to get a single out in their stints.

"It's never easy to lose, but this one's got to grab you a little bit more," White Sox manager Bob Lemon said after the horror show at Yankee Stadium. "We've got to get a pitcher who can get somebody out."

Where to find that pitcher is Veeck's problem, but until one is found Sox hitters will be haunted with the memory of Tuesday's game when they found a six-run rally and a 10-run production weren't enough.

Veeck, who usually doesn't need lessons on the art of wheeling and dealing, may want to take a tip from the Cubs. They purchased proven reliever Dave Guisti from Oakland recently to bolster their bullpen.

IF THAT ROUTE fails, Veeck will have to turn to his farm system for help. But the Sox staff is presently 10th of the 14 American League clubs with an earned run average near 4.30.

The Sox are in their second day of an unusual two-day break in the schedule before opening a four-game weekend series in Milwaukee Friday night. Seven of the Sox' next 11 games are against the Brewers, who come to Chicago the following weekend.

In between the two series against the second-division Brewers, the Sox have two-game series with Baltimore and New York.

A NEW SHOE is hammered into place by Ken Patt, a track blacksmith. It takes Patt half an hour to put on a new set of shoes.

with the horses," McGrath said. He and the other trainers also believe the animals are calmer around women.

McGRATH SAYS the backstretch has opened up in the last 10 years and is no longer an isolated community.

"A lot of the people have cars now, and live off track," he said. "Even the ones living here get away more than they used to."

McGrath and others agree the most common problem on the backstretch is finding something to do once the work day is over. Since most of the workers are done by 11 a.m., they face a long day with little to do.

In the past five years, the workers have had an opportunity to fill their free time with educational programs sponsored by Harper College.

ABOUT 75 WORKERS now take advantage of the evening classes said Ann Hamrick, coordinator of the program for Harper. Classes offered include math, reading, art and horsemanship.

In addition, English as a second language is offered for the many Spanish speaking workers. Conversely, Spanish is offered for English speaking workers who want to communicate better with Spanish workers.

The program also includes mini-sessions in such varied areas as judo. Films and a bookmobile are also available through the program.

To assist in solving problems, the Illinois state racing board several years ago alloted funds to create a backstretch center to act as a base for assistance programs.

THE CENTER IS staffed by Traveler's Aid Workers, and offers counseling, food stamps and medical and dental services to help the workers.

The most popular service with workers is the dental clinic, said Diane Krause, a social worker with Traveler's Aid.

The clinic serves 45 people the three nights it is open each week, Ms. Krause said.

"We've had people use the dental clinic who tell me they've never had the chance to see a dentist in their lives," Ms. Krause said.

MANY OF THE workers move on to other tracks when the season ends, although some say they may try to stay at Arlington this year and get jobs working with the recently approved night harness racing.

But for others, closing day on Oct. 1 will mean a chance to return to their homes around the country to see their friends and families — at least until the season opens next year.

Wheeling volleyball plans

Wheeling's girls volleyball team will hold its first tryout and practice Monday, Aug. 22, at 9 a.m. in the gymnasium. Girls should come dressed to play.

Youth basketball signup Saturday

The Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Assn. registration for fourth, fifth and sixth grades will be held Saturday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lattof Motors Showroom, 800 Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. the registration fee is $29 for the first registrant and $24 for each additional family member.

A birth certificate will be required for registration unless the youth has previously participated in the Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Association program or in either football or baseball with the Arlington Heights Youth Athletic Association.

A second registration will be held Sept. 10, 9 to 2 p.m. at Lattof Motors to fill any vacancies on the teams. Registration for grades seventh and eighth will be held Dec. 3rd at Lattof Motors.

Any questions should be directed to Jerry Peterson, days 359-9289, evenings 259-3516.

A NEW SHOE is hammered into place by Ken Patt, a track blacksmith. It takes Patt half an hour to put on a new set of shoes.

with the horses," McGrath said. He and the other trainers also believe the animals are calmer around women.

McGRATH SAYS the backstretch has opened up in the last 10 years and is no longer an isolated community.

"A lot of the people have cars now, and live off track," he said. "Even the ones living here get away more than they used to."

McGrath and others agree the most common problem on the backstretch is finding something to do once the work day is over. Since most of the workers are done by 11 a.m., they face a long day with little to do.

In the past five years, the workers have had an opportunity to fill their free time with educational programs sponsored by Harper College.

ABOUT 75 WORKERS now take advantage of the evening classes said Ann Hamrick, coordinator of the program for Harper. Classes offered include math, reading, art and horsemanship.

In addition, English as a second language is offered for the many Spanish speaking workers. Conversely, Spanish is offered for English speaking workers who want to communicate better with Spanish workers.

The program also includes mini-sessions in such varied areas as judo. Films and a bookmobile are also available through the program.

To assist in solving problems, the Illinois state racing board several years ago alloted funds to create a backstretch center to act as a base for assistance programs.

THE CENTER IS staffed by Traveler's Aid Workers, and offers counseling, food stamps and medical and dental services to help the workers.

The most popular service with workers is the dental clinic, said Diane Krause, a social worker with Traveler's Aid.

The clinic serves 45 people the three nights it is open each week, Ms. Krause said.

"We've had people use the dental clinic who tell me they've never had the chance to see a dentist in their lives," Ms. Krause said.

MANY OF THE workers move on to other tracks when the season ends, although some say they may try to stay at Arlington this year and get jobs working with the recently approved night harness racing.

But for others, closing day on Oct. 1 will mean a chance to return to their homes around the country to see their friends and families — at least until the season opens next year.

Wheeling volleyball plans

Wheeling's girls volleyball team will hold its first tryout and practice Monday, Aug. 22, at 9 a.m. in the gymnasium. Girls should come dressed to play.

Youth basketball signup Saturday

The Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Assn. registration for fourth, fifth and sixth grades will be held Saturday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lattof Motors Showroom, 800 Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. the registration fee is $29 for the first registrant and $24 for each additional family member.

Registration is open to all youths in grades fourth, fifth and sixth who reside in Arlington Heights or within the boundaries of the Arlington Heights Park District. A birth certificate will be required for registration unless the youth has previously participated in the Arlington Heights Youth Basketball Association program or in either football or baseball with the Arlington Heights Youth Athletic Association.

A second registration will be held Sept. 10, 9 to 2 p.m. at Lattof Motors to fill any vacancies on the teams. Registration for grades seventh and eighth will be held Dec. 3rd at Lattof Motors.

Any questions should be directed to Jerry Peterson, days 359-9289, evenings 259-3516.

Sabers hold signup

Renee can compete in U.S. Open tennis

NEW YORK—The United States Tennis Association grudgingly gave transsexual Renee Richards permission Wednesday to compete as a woman in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills.

The USTA decision, which came a day after the New York Supreme Court barred efforts to keep Miss Richards out of the open, ended the 42-year-old transsexual's fight for more than a year to compete at Forest Hills.

The USTA said it decided to drop its opposition to Miss Richards playing in the tournament after the court prohibited chromosome tests to decide whether a player could compete as a woman.

Owners give Bowie Kuhn more clout

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Major league baseball owners Wednesday gave Commissioner Bowie Kuhn more power to deal with offenders in tampering incidents.

Wrapping up their traditional two-day summer meetings in just one day, the owners, in an amendment to the Major League Agreement, voted to give Kuhn two more measures to penalize offenders in tampering incidents — taking away draft rights and fines of up to $250,000.

Renee can compete in U.S. Open tennis

NEW YORK—The United States Tennis Association grudgingly gave transsexual Renee Richards permission Wednesday to compete as a woman in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships at Forest Hills.

The USTA decision, which came a day after the New York Supreme Court barred efforts to keep Miss Richards out of the open, ended the 42-year-old transsexual's fight for more than a year to compete at Forest Hills.

The USTA said it decided to drop its opposition to Miss Richards playing in the tournament after the court prohibited chromosome tests to decide whether a player could compete as a woman.

Owners give Bowie Kuhn more clout

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Major league baseball owners Wednesday gave Commissioner Bowie Kuhn more power to deal with offenders in tampering incidents.

Wrapping up their traditional two-day summer meetings in just one day, the owners, in an amendment to the Major League Agreement, voted to give Kuhn two more measures to penalize offenders in tampering incidents — taking away draft rights and fines of up to $250,000.

African teams won't boycott this time

SOFIA—The African nations who walked out of the 1976 Montreal Olympics promised Wednesday there would be no similar boycott at the World Student Games, which start today and end Aug. 28.

Abraham Ordia, Nigerian president of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa, told officials of the International Federation of Student Sports (FISU) that all the African nations entered for the Games would take part.

New lease's aim: to cut landlord-tenant disputes

by DAVE IBATA

Chicago-area landlords are studying a recently-released plain language apartment lease to determine whether the authors of the lease weeded out hard-to-understand "legalese" at the risk of increased court battles between tenants and lessors.

At issue is George E Cole Form L-19, prepared by the Chicago Council of Lawyers.

"The lease is designed to be more easily understood by the average citizen than other forms available in the Chicago area," said Jeffrey Jahns, Chicago attorney. Jahns headed the council of lawyers' Housing Committee, which spent three years drafting the lease and released the new form earlier this month

"IT IS A neutral lease, not favoring the lessor as many lease forms do, and it does not favor the tenant," Jahns said

"The lease emphasizes the fact that the lease agreement should be understood by the parties, should be changed by the parties, and should not be used as an immutable form, but as a basis for agreement," Jahns said

Jahns said he believes by ensuring tenants and landlords understand their lease, court disputes arriving out of lease disagreements will be reduced.

"It (L-19) tends to make sure the landlord and tenant are agreed to begin with," Jahns said. Besides, he said, "Every sentence and paragraph in every lease is subject to disagreement and subject to a lawsuit"

WHILE FORM L-19 drew from several existing leases widely used in the Chicago area, such as Chicago Real Estate Board Form No. 15, the new lease "is completely different," Jahns explained. "Every paragraph is modified to be a more neutral provision."

In appearance, L-19 differs from most other leases in its use of large, bold type, and short, clearly enumerated paragraphs. Unlike Form No 15, no magnifying glass is needed to read every detail of L-19

However, while landlords applaud the format of the lease, they question some of its contents.

Particularly at issue is the provision in L-19 for "self-help" The section states if a landlord fails to perform within 20 days of being notified of needed repairs, the tenant can take matters into his own hands and hire a serviceman

> 'It is a neutral lease, not favoring the lessor as many lease forms do.'

THE PROVISION says, "The reasonable cost to Tenant of any such remedy, to the extent evidence by bills or receipts, shall be deducted from Tenant's rent due or to come due under this agreement"

The section further states a landlord must perform within 36 hours of first notification to repair defective locks, windows, exterior doors, mailboxes or exterior lighting

David Mohl, president of the Multi-Family Housing Assn of Illinois, said, "This clause could work to the disadvantage of the tenant if he orders repair that turns out to be done poorly. He may end up paying for the repair that still does not accomplish the job"

Mohl continued, "Repairmen may overcharge besides, in which case who is to judge what is a reasonable charge?"

MOHL SAID his own property management firm, Downs, Mohl & Co of Chicago, often will direct a tenant to contract a repairman, "but it's a contractor I select, and have confidence in."

And 20 days, in many instances, is too short a time to effect repairs, Mohl said

"A good roof repair job can't be done while the roof is wet," Mohl explained. "It may take 30 days for the roof to dry, and at that time the roofer may have so much work to do he can't do the roof right away."

If it rains again before roof repairs are made, work might not begin for up to 60 days, Mohl said.

Johns said such a provision would prompt landlords to perform repairs as soon as possible

COMMENTING ON difficulties in meeting the 20-day deadline, Jahns said, "Well, if that's true for the landlord, it's true for the tenant If anything, the landlord has a better chance of getting material than the tenant"

Jahns said L-19 makes allowances "for delays beyond the control of the lessor"

Another point of controversy in L-19 include the requirement that the landlord act "reasonably" in allowing or denying alterations by tenants

L-19 follows a trend among leases in deleting the "confession of judgment" clause, in which a tenant gives the landlord the right to confess a judgment against the tenant without prior notification, Jahns said

"People are too aware it is too onerous a provision, and there is some doubt as to its validity," Jahns said

THE LEASE form also provides a tenant may break his lease, upon 90 days notice, because of involuntary change of place of employment or loss of his job

The provision, Mohl said, "probably is a good clause, although there should be a requirement that he (the tenant) somehow prove it"

The form also states the landlord may not "arbitrarily refuse to renew Tenant's occupancy of the premises under the same terms and conditions (or) for the reason that the premises are being converted to a cooperative or condominium form of ownership without 12 months' prior written notice to Tenant of an intention to so convert"

Jahns said, "Too frequently you will have landlords who arbitrarily, without reason, refuse to renew the lease."

Such instances often involve racial discrimination, or a move by landlords to throw out tenants who became too vocal in demanding their rights, Jahns said.

While Mohl protested the requirement for a 12-month notice before a conversion, Jahns said such a provision would be negotiable.

Home insulation helps to combat high fuel costs

In many parts of the United States, last winter was one of the most severe on record. In a once-a-week series of articles, the Christian Science Monitor News Service is providing some timely advice so that a homeowner might prepare for the heating season just ahead.

by PETER TONGE

In the fall of 1973, Harold Woodworth had his Boston home "pumped full" of insulation. He wasn't thinking much about energy conservation at the time. "Just comfort," he says.

Now, in the face of escalating fuel costs, he's doubly delighted with the decision to insulate. Not only does he save on gas in winter, but the window air conditioner works far less frequently in summer. Another plus: Street noises are "more muffled now."

In an era when solar heating is about to come into its own, when more efficient home furnaces are coming onto the market, when homeowners are turning back by the thousands to the old wood stove in an attempt to beat soaring heating costs, the most important need still is to insulate.

Why invest in expensive heating equipment, whether to capture the sun or burn a log of wood, if the bulk of that energy goes to heat the great outdoors?

SAVING ENERGY saves money in ever increasing quantities as fuel prices continue to rise. In fact, a report put out by the National Bureau of Standards states that energy-conservation improvements now can earn greater dividends than putting money in the bank. Moreover, interest on a bank account is taxable; dividends in the form of lower fuel bills are tax-free.

At current fuel rates, the cost of insulating an older home (in many instances good insulation will cut heating costs in half) can be recovered in five to nine years, according to Bureau of Standards estimates. After that, it's all gravy, as the saying goes.

Obviously, the best time to insulate a home is while it is being built. So where does this leave the estimated 40 million or so owners of uninsulated homes in the United States?

Fortunately, the insulating industry long ago developed a method of blowing fibers into the hollow outer walls of homes, thus making retrofit insulation relatively simple. The techniques have been refined over the years so that the settling of fibers within the walls no longer is a major problem if the job is properly done.

A SIMPLE TEST tells the owner if the walls of his home are insulated or not. Remove a baseboard from the bottom of the wall and drill a hole through the plasterboard. Insert a screwdriver into the hole. If the wall contains no insulation, the screwdriver will meet with no resistance until it bumps up against the outer wall.

Choosing an insulating material is a question the homeowner will face. There are four types available:

- Fiber glass, which is glass spun into fine threads or fibers.
- Rock wool, the waste slag from steel-making that is processed under tremendous heat into a fluffy insulating product.
- Cellulose, ground-up recycled newspaper that has been chemically treated to make it fireproof and water-repellent.
- Urea formaldahyde, a plastic foam that solidifies in 48 hours.

Home insulation helps to combat high fuel costs

In many parts of the United States, last winter was one of the most severe on record. In a once-a-week series of articles, the Christian Science Monitor News Service is providing some timely advice so that a homeowner might prepare for the heating season just ahead.

by PETER TONGE

In the fall of 1973, Harold Woodworth had his Boston home "pumped full" of insulation. He wasn't thinking much about energy conservation at the time. "Just comfort," he says.

Now, in the face of escalating fuel costs, he's doubly delighted with the decision to insulate. Not only does he save on gas in winter, but the window air conditioner works far less frequently in summer. Another plus: Street noises are "more muffled now."

In an era when solar heating is about to come into its own, when more efficient home furnaces are coming onto the market, when homeowners are turning back by the thousands to the old wood stove in an attempt to beat soaring heating costs, the most important need still is to insulate.

Why invest in expensive heating equipment, whether to capture the sun or burn a log of wood, if the bulk of that energy goes to heat the great outdoors?

SAVING ENERGY saves money in ever increasing quantities as fuel prices continue to rise. In fact, a report put out by the National Bureau of Standards states that energy-conservation improvements now can earn greater dividends than putting money in the bank. Moreover, interest on a bank account is taxable; dividends in the form of lower fuel bills are tax-free.

At current fuel rates, the cost of insulating an older home (in many instances good insulation will cut heating costs in half) can be recovered in five to nine years, according to Bureau of Standards estimates. After that, it's all gravy, as the saying goes.

Obviously, the best time to insulate a home is while it is being built. So where does this leave the estimated 40 million or so owners of uninsulated homes in the United States?

Fortunately, the insulating industry long ago developed a method of blowing fibers into the hollow outer walls of homes, thus making retrofit insulation relatively simple. The techniques have been refined over the years so that the settling of fibers within the walls no longer is a major problem if the job is properly done.

A SIMPLE TEST tells the owner if the walls of his home are insulated or not. Remove a baseboard from the bottom of the wall and drill a hole through the plasterboard. Insert a screwdriver into the hole. If the wall contains no insulation, the screwdriver will meet with no resistance until it bumps up against the outer wall.

Choosing an insulating material is a question the homeowner will face. There are four types available:

- Fiber glass, which is glass spun into fine threads or fibers.
- Rock wool, the waste slag from steel-making that is processed under tremendous heat into a fluffy insulating product.
- Cellulose, ground-up recycled newspaper that has been chemically treated to make it fireproof and water-repellent.
- Urea formaldahyde, a plastic foam that solidifies in 48 hours.

Memphis hotel to run on waste?

MEMPHIS, TENN. (UPI)—Bob Price has a plan for a Memphis convention hotel that would use the Mississippi River, the sun, the wind and the guests themselves for energy.

The guests in his proposed 800-room luxury hotel would create almost enough energy to run the hotel every time they flush the toilet.

Price is serious, although his plan draws giggles from those who don't believe him. Those who do include the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration and some city officials

"HUMAN WASTE would be sent to large methane gas collectors in the basement and this would produce enough gas to run steam turbine generators and produce electricity — about 80 per cent of the energy needed for the building," Price said

Price, who operates a log home construction business, has suggested the hotel could attract federal funds to pay for the $4 million to $5 million in energy equipment. He estimates total construction would cost $22 million.

As he sees it, the first 10 floors of the 25-story hotel would rise at a slant, with solar energy panels catching the sun's rays to heat tubes of circulating water. The design would give every guest a view of the river

The river would be a source of cooling, he said, because water in the depths of the river flows at an almost constant 56 degrees Fahrenheit Price said the water could be pumped into the building and circulated for cooling.

WITH THIS proposed hotel sitting on the river bluffs, a wind turbine could be run by the breezes that blow at an average of 10 miles an hour

"The officials at ERDA were going to give me 20 minutes to present my plan," he said. "They wound up giving me half a day They were very interested"

He said all the energy components are "beyond the experimental stage. They know it will work, but they've just never put it all together"

32% hike in building pact volume

Dollar volume of building contracts in the Chicago metropolitan area for the first half of 1977 are up 32 per cent over 1976, and contractors are predicting a continued slow increase through the remainder of the year, according to the Builder's Assn. of Chicago.

Residential and nonresidential building construction totaled $1 44 million for the first six months of 1977, the association reported.

However, when adjusted for inflation, the total is still only 88 per cent of the dollar volume through June, 1973, the association said

Activity in the suburbs has been brisk, especially in industrial construction, the association said. Suburban projects cited as examples by the association included the new Palatine headquarters for the Square/D electronics components firm, and new headquarters for Allstate Insurance and International Mining & Chemical in Northbrook

John C. Telander, association president, cited competitive prices by contractors, contracts with local construction trade unions in effect through May 31, 1979, and favorable credit conditions as factors in increased building contracts.

Memphis hotel to run on waste?

MEMPHIS, TENN. (UPI)—Bob Price has a plan for a Memphis convention hotel that would use the Mississippi River, the sun, the wind and the guests themselves for energy.

The guests in his proposed 800-room luxury hotel would create almost enough energy to run the hotel every time they flush the toilet.

Price is serious, although his plan draws giggles from those who don't believe him. Those who do include the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration and some city officials.

"HUMAN WASTE would be sent to large methane gas collectors in the basement and this would produce enough gas to run steam turbine generators and produce electricity — about 80 per cent of the energy needed for the building," Price said.

Price, who operates a log home construction business, has suggested the hotel could attract federal funds to pay for the $4 million to $5 million in energy equipment. He estimates total construction would cost $22 million.

As he sees it, the first 10 floors of the 25-story hotel would rise at a slant, with solar energy panels catching the sun's rays to heat tubes of circulating water. The design would give every guest a view of the river.

The river would be a source of cooling, he said, because water in the depths of the river flows at an almost constant 56 degrees Fahrenheit. Price said the water could be pumped into the building and circulated for cooling.

WITH THIS proposed hotel sitting on the river bluffs, a wind turbine could be run by the breezes that blow at an average of 10 miles an hour.

"The officials at ERDA were going to give me 20 minutes to present my plan," he said. "They wound up giving me half a day. They were very interested."

He said all the energy components are "beyond the experimental stage. They know it will work, but they've just never put it all together."

32% hike in building pact volume

Dollar volume of building contracts in the Chicago metropolitan area for the first half of 1977 are up 32 per cent over 1976, and contractors are predicting a continued slow increase through the remainder of the year, according to the Builder's Assn. of Chicago.

Residential and nonresidential building construction totaled $1.44 million for the first six months of 1977, the association reported.

However, when adjusted for inflation, the total is still only 88 per cent of the dollar volume through June, 1973, the association said.

Activity in the suburbs has been brisk, especially in industrial construction, the association said. Suburban projects cited as examples by the association included the new Palatine headquarters for the Square/D electronics components firm, and new headquarters for Allstate Insurance and International Mining & Chemical in Northbrook.

John C. Telander, association president, cited competitive prices by contractors, contracts with local construction trade unions in effect through May 31, 1979, and favorable credit conditions as factors in increased building contracts.

Air Field near Newton, N.J., complete with control tower, runways, helicopter field and hangar space for two dozen planes.

UPON BUYING the $3.5 million airport, one receives a bonus of two lakes, five houses and a farm complex adjacent to the field.

But Previews' most popular properties are island hideways, Reilly said.

"Island properties have a tremendous appeal for about everyone — to own property for as far as you can see," Reilly said.

Prices for islands in the Bahamas, the Carribean, the West Indies and the western Pacific Ocean range from $150,000 to $900,000.

Previews find many of its Chicago-area customers in the lake-shore high rise apartments — "cliff dwellers" looking for the privacy and quiet they lack in the city, Reilly said.

"WE APPEAL TO people of the high rises and condominiums of larger cities, those who want to get away from city life, and the busy-ness of city life," Reilly said.

"Some of it is the idea of buying a home with a view to ultimate retirement," Reilly said. He said many buy "simply from the standpoint as a hedge against inflation."

Increasing numbers of Europeans are buying into the U.S. market, largely because of political unreast in their home countires, Reilly said.

Many oil-rich Arabs also are investing in U.S. property, primarily through U.S. banks to keep as low a profile as possible, Reilly said. While Americans buying commercial property would demand a 12 per cent return on their investment, Arab businessmen are satisfied with less, he said.

NEARLY ALL PAY close to the prices listed in the guide, Reilly said.

"If we can create activity so there's enough interest in our properties, usually the seller sits back and says, 'The one who pays my price gets my property,'" Reilly said.

"Usually you'll pay for the property without too much bargaining," he said.

So, interested buyer, check your bank account before you send away for the guide, available by mail for $5 plus $1 to cover postage and handling from Previews, Inc., 51 Weaver St., Greenwich, Conn. 06830.

LET'S TALK IT OVER

JERRY BOUSCHARD

There's a big difference between "top market price" and "overpriced." Everyone who sells a house wants to get as much for it as possible. But, asking and receiving are two different things. Buyers make comparisons. They shop and notice what price other property is selling for. They will not pay an excessive price.

An overpriced property sits on the market for weeks or months. Good prospects have bought elsewhere. There may be some deterioration so that repairs must be made. Too late, the necessary price reduction is made. It's far better to set the price properly from the beginning.

Let's "Talk It Over." We'll give you a realistic idea of what price you can expect to get for your property. Stop in or phone. No obligation.

Make no mistake in finding house you can afford

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

Life is full of miscalculations but, happily, most of them are easily rectified once the error becomes apparent.

Unfortunately, though, there is one miscalculation that is as deadly as it is common: "How much house can I afford?" A bad guess here can haunt you for years.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am selling my present home and purchasing a new one.

I will have $50,000 in cash on hand from the sale of the old home to invest toward the new one, which costs $69,000.

Should I place it all down on the new home, leaving a low mortgage of $19,000 at 8 per cent interest over 20 or 30 years, or place 20 per cent ($13,800) down and assume high monthly mortgage payments over 30 years and invest the excess?

My taxable income is $18,000 a year and I can afford $300 a month for principal and interest. — Mr. A.F.

Usually, a person shopping for a new home has to start from point "A" in determining how much he can afford — point "A" being the amount of money he has available for a down payment. This, at least, isn't a matter of concern with you.

What does concern you, though, is that you can afford to pay $300 for principal and interest. Working backward from this point, we find that you don't have to put the entire $50,000 down but you DO have to put considerably more down than the 20 per cent that you suggest.

Making a down payment of $13,800 would leave you with a mortgage balance of $55,200 (based on a 30-year mortgage at a more realistic 9 per cent). Monthly payments for principal and interest would be about $444 — $140 more a month than you can afford.

However, if you make a down payment of about $31,000, you will be left with a mortgage of about $38,000 and payments that are more in line with your pocketbook — about $308 a month.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband and I have owned our home 18 years and it is valued at $65,000 on today's market. We only owe about $12,000 on it.

We have two sons — one in medical school and the other in law school — and a daughter who is about to enter college.

We have been thinking about refinancing our home to meet the scholastic expenses, but our relatives are horrified. Is it all that bad, or dangerous? — Mrs. P.L.

I think your relatives are a little old-fashioned. There's nothing wrong with refinancing a home in which you have a large equity for a worthwhile purpose — and what could be more worthwhile than your child'n's education?

The only times I recoil at this sort of suggestion is when the individual proposing it wants to use the equity for some frivolous purpose — buying a new car, a boat or some bit of fluff like that.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband, who is near retirement age, thinks we should put our savings down on a small, 30-unit motel near the edge of town. He thinks this would be a good investment for our retirement. I'm pretty cold to the idea. What do you think? — Mrs. F.V.

I'm with you. Also, I'm not merely "cold" to the idea — I'm frigid.

While an occasional "Mom and Pop" motel still manages to get along, they are, generally, a dying breed — the chain operations have murdered them with more comfort, convenience and efficiency.

Anyway, what kind of a retirement is this for YOU? Does he want to turn you into a seven-days-a-week housekeeper while he sits and collects room rents? Get him interested in a hobby.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I own a small apartment complex that I would like to sell, but a friend says I can't do so as long as I've got leases outstanding. Does this sound right to you? — Mr. T.G.

Good grief, NOTHING would ever get sold if you had to juggle lease expiration dates around to a common date. Forget it.

Home mortgage rate climbs to 9 per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Home mortgage interest rates increased in July for the third consecutive month, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Monday.

The board said the effective rate for new home mortgages climbed to 9 per cent. The rate was 9.02 per cent for mortgages on previously occupied homes.

The cost of borrowing for home buyers was on the decline for seven months before the upswing began in May. With the recent increases, mortgage interest rates in July returned to levels of a year ago.

In other developments, the board said the average price of a new home in July was $53,700 — up $4,400 from a year earlier. Older homes were selling for an average of $47,400 — an increase of $4,200. The average down payment was $13,700 for new homes and $13,800 for older homes.

Make no mistake in finding house you can afford

Don G. Campbell

About real estate

Life is full of miscalculations but, happily, most of them are easily rectified once the error becomes apparent.

Unfortunately, though, there is one miscalculation that is as deadly as it is common: "How much house can I afford?" A bad guess here can haunt you for years.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I am selling my present home and purchasing a new one.

I will have $50,000 in cash on hand from the sale of the old home to invest toward the new one, which costs $69,000.

Should I place it all down on the new home, leaving a low mortgage of $19,000 at 8 per cent interest over 20 or 30 years, or place 20 per cent ($13,800) down and assume high monthly mortgage payments over 30 years and invest the excess?

My taxable income is $18,000 a year and I can afford $300 a month for principal and interest. — Mr. A.F.

Usually, a person shopping for a new home has to start from point "A" in determining how much he can afford — point "A" being the amount of money he has available for a down payment. This, at least, isn't a matter of concern with you.

What does concern you, though, is that you can afford to pay $300 for principal and interest. Working backward from this point, we find that you don't have to put the entire $50,000 down but you DO have to put considerably more down than the 20 per cent that you suggest.

Making a down payment of $13,800 would leave you with a mortgage balance of $55,200 (based on a 30-year mortgage at a more realistic 9 per cent). Monthly payments for principal and interest would be about $444 — $140 more a month than you can afford.

However, if you make a down payment of about $31,000, you will be left with a mortgage of about $38,000 and payments that are more in line with your pocketbook — about $308 a month.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband and I have owned our home 18 years and it is valued at $65,000 on today's market. We only owe about $12,000 on it.

We have two sons — one in medical school and the other in law school — and a daughter who is about to enter college.

We have been thinking about refinancing our home to meet the scholastic expenses, but our relatives are horrified. Is it all that bad, or dangerous? — Mrs. P.L.

I think your relatives are a little old-fashioned. There's nothing wrong with refinancing a home in which you have a large equity for a worthwhile purpose — and what could be more worthwhile than your children's education?

The only times I recoil at this sort of suggestion is when the individual proposing it wants to use the equity for some frivolous purpose — buying a new car, a boat or some bit of fluff like that.

Dear Mr. Campbell: My husband, who is near retirement age, thinks we should put our savings down on a small, 30-unit motel near the edge of town. He thinks this would be a good investment for our retirement. I'm pretty cold to the idea. What do you think? — Mrs. F.V.

I'm with you. Also, I'm not merely "cold" to the idea — I'm frigid.

While an occasional "Mom and Pop" motel still manages to get along, they are, generally, a dying breed — the chain operations have murdered them with more comfort, convenience and efficiency.

Anyway, what kind of a retirement is this for YOU? Does he want to turn you into a seven-days-a-week housekeeper while he sits and collects room rents? Get him interested in a hobby.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I own a small apartment complex that I would like to sell, but a friend says I can't do so as long as I've got leases outstanding. Does this sound right to you? — Mr. T.G.

Good grief, NOTHING would ever get sold if you had to juggle lease expiration dates around to a common date. Forget it.

Home mortgage rate climbs to 9 per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Home mortgage interest rates increased in July for the third consecutive month, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Monday.

The board said the effective rate for new home mortgages climbed to 9 per cent. The rate was 9.02 per cent for mortgages on previously occupied homes.

The cost of borrowing for home buyers was on the decline for seven months before the upswing began in May. With the recent increases, mortgage interest rates in July returned to levels of a year ago.

In other developments, the board said the average price of a new home in July was $53,700 — up $4,400 from a year earlier. Older homes were selling for an average of $47,400 — an increase of $4,200. The average down payment was $13,700 for new homes and $13,800 for older homes.

Frequent cleaning keeps spray nozzles working

Herman Baum

The house doctor

Dear House Doctor: How do you keep spray paint can nozzles from becoming clogged? I save unclogged nozzles from empty cans and use these as replacements, but there must be a better way. —E.P.

The "better way" is to follow a few simple rules and you will seldom have this trouble.

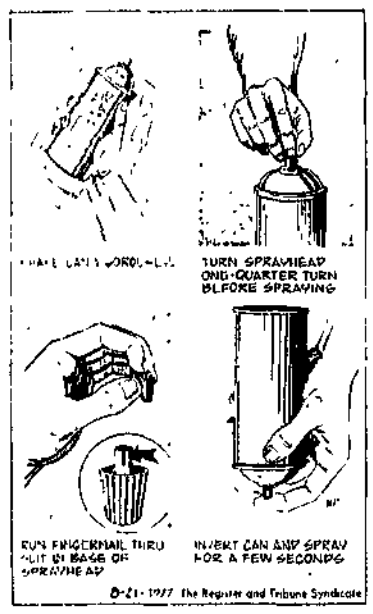
Naturally, the pigment in spray paint settles to the bottom of the can. A small tube extends from the bottom of the can to the nozzle so its lower end is in the thickened paint. Hence, you are certain to clog the spray head the first instant you depress it. A steel ball inside the can helps to distribute the pigment, but shaking the can is so important that it is impossible to overdo it.

Before you start painting, give the spray head a one-quarter turn. Make additional quarter turns every few minutes while painting.

Should the spray head become clogged, immediately turn the can upside-down and depress the head for a few seconds until clear gas comes out. If this does not work, pull the head from the can and run your fingernails gently through the slit in its base. Replace the head with a twisting motion while pointing the can away from you and with your finger covering the spray hole.

When you have completed painting, invert the can with the nozzle pointing away from you and depress the spray head until clear gas comes out. Wipe off any paint from around the spray hole.

Under no circumstances should you push pins, nails or other sharp objects into the opening in the top of the can.



Outpatient clinic

H. W.— Your picnic table, which you have treated with linseed oil for many years, has darkened and discolored because this is normal for oil treatment exposed to weather. Sanding with an electric belt sander may possibly lighten the color.

Mrs. W. B. D.. — You need nothing more than a primer coat followed by gloss enamel for painting your knotty pine kitchen cabinet.

N. A. — There is little that can be done to quiet the hot air furnace you installed in the closet between the bedrooms. The closet probably has a louvered door to admit air for combustion and this defeats the purpose of any noise abatement insulation that you may add.

Dear House Doctor: The plastered walls and ceilings in my 50-year-old home have been painted many times with flat oil base wall paint. Now, all painters and paint stores are telling me to use flat interior latex paint. I believe this is contrary to information you once published. — A. L. M.

You should have no problem if you use the flat interior latex paint over the oil paint, provided the oil paint is still firmly attached to the plaster. I stated that exterior latex paint applied over oil base paint may peel unless a special primer is applied first, but this does not apply to interior paint.

"MONEY TALKS"

Home ownership is still within reach of most Americans

Statements to the effect that housing prices throughout the nation have climbed out of the reach of most Americans are simply not true.

This is an interesting discovery of the United States League of Savings Associations based on reports by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the National Association of Realtors, the U.S. Department of Commerce, and its own figures.

DONALD F. MORTON
Chairman & President

Newspaper releases stating that the average cost of a new home jumped to $53,000 last March present a badly distorted picture of the nation's housing market, the U.S. League reports.

It notes that the average is twisted out of shape by luxury homes selling for well into six figures. New houses with price tags of $65,000 or more constituted only 16% of the 1.2 million single-family homes built last year.

More importantly, such news stories ignore completely the much larger market in existing homes which represented three-fourths of home sales last year.

Using conventional yardsticks as to the amount of income (25%) that families can spend for monthly mortgage principal and interest payments, taxes, and insurance and assuming an 80% loan with a 25-year term at 9% interest rate, the U.S. League study showed that, while a good number of families are priced out of the new home market, existing homes remain available at almost all income levels.

A household with an annual income of $7,000 to $9,999, representing 12.7% of all U.S. households, would have found that 16.1% of existing homes were sold in 1976 at an affordable price range of $15,039 to $21,489.

Families with annual income ranging between $10,000 and $20,000 had available over half of the existing homes sold last year (53.8%). These were within their affordable capacities of from $24,489 to $42,967.

About one-fourth of the existing homes (27.4%) sold last year for between $42,967 and $64,450 and up were within the price range of households with annual income over $20,000. Only 8.4% of existing homes were sold in 1976 for $64,450 and more.

While new homes were sold last year at an average price of $48,400, over one-third (35.9%) went for less than $40,000 and 12.4% were sold for less than $30,000.

These figures indicate that most Americans can still attain their goal of home ownership, especially in the existing home market.

A household with an annual income of $7,000 to $9,999, representing 12.7% of all U.S. households, would have found that 16.1% of existing homes were sold in 1976 at an affordable price range of $15,039 to $21,489.

Families with annual income ranging between $10,000 and $20,000 had available over half of the existing homes sold last year (53.8%). These were within their affordable capacities of from $24,489 to $42,967.

About one-fourth of the existing homes (27.4%) sold last year for between $42,967 and $64,450 and up were within the price range of households with annual income over $20,000. Only 8.4% of existing homes were sold in 1976 for $64,450 and more.

While new homes were sold last year at an average price of $48,400, over one-third (35.9%) went for less than $40,000 and 12.4% were sold for less than $30,000.

These figures indicate that most Americans can still attain their goal of home ownership, especially in the existing home market.

New housing starts rise 8.1%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Construction of new homes and apartments soared to an annual rate of more than 2 million units in July to continue housing's strong contribution to national economic growth, the U S Commerce Dept. reported this week.

But the construction surge has caused shortages of insulation, wallboard and other supplies, according to Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Assoc of Home Builders.

Housing starts rose 8 1 ptr cent from June at a seasonally adjusted annual rate to the second highest level in four years, Commerce said

CONSTRUCTION DECLINED from May to June, but monthly fluctuations are not unusual The important factor was that building has proceeded at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of more than 1 9 million units for the past five months

Primary reason for the big gain in July was the jump in multi-family construction because of federal funding of low-income housing under the Section 8 program.

Government-financed housing has been started at a rate of about 13,000 units in each of the past three months, which breaks out to an annual rate of about 150,000 units,

Construction of single-family homes remained above 1.4 million units for the sixth consecutive month.

"This is an excellent rate," said Sumichrast He said construction has boomed because people are anxious to buy homes.

SUMICHRAST SAID new and existing homes accounted for 50 per cent of consumer spending in terms of the gross national product in recent months "Housing is clearly giving the Carter administration strong economic growth at the moment," he said

It was the second time this year that housing starts exceeded 2 million units at an annual rate There was a 2 039-million advance in March — the highest level since May 1973. Starts were estimated at 2 064 million last month, up from 1 91 million in June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Construction of new homes and apartments soared to an annual rate of more than 2 million units in July to continue housing's strong contribution to national economic growth, the U.S. Commerce Dept. reported this week.

But the construction surge has caused shortages of insulation, wallboard and other supplies, according to Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the National Assoc. of Home Builders.

Housing starts rose 8.1 ptr cent from June at a seasonally adjusted annual rate to the second highest level in four years, Commerce said.

CONSTRUCTION DECLINED from May to June, but monthly fluctuations are not unusual. The important factor was that building has proceeded at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of more than 1.9 million units for the past five months.

Primary reason for the big gain in July was the jump in multi-family construction because of federal funding of low-income housing under the Section 8 program.

Government-financed housing has been started at a rate of about 13,000 units in each of the past three months, which breaks out to an annual rate of about 150,000 units.

Construction of single-family homes remained above 1.4 million units for the sixth consecutive month.

"This is an excellent rate," said Sumichrast. He said construction has boomed because people are anxious to buy homes.

SUMICHRAST SAID new and existing homes accounted for 50 per cent of consumer spending in terms of the gross national product in recent months. "Housing is clearly giving the Carter administration strong economic growth at the moment," he said.

It was the second time this year that housing starts exceeded 2 million units at an annual rate. There was a 2.039-million advance in March — the highest level since May 1973. Starts were estimated at 2.064 million last month, up from 1.91 million in June.

Home costs rise 11% nationwide

"Panic buying" has been used by some real estate analysts to describe the 1977 home market. The home boom has been universal throughout the nation, but panic is too strong a term for conditions in most regions, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said in its bi-monthly review, Economic Perspectives.

The average price of existing homes, nationally, was up 11 per cent in April from a year earlier, according to the National Assn. of Realtors. Home prices in the seventh federal reserve district average 10 to 11 per cent higher than last year, both for new and existing homes.

According to the Federal Reserve Bank:

Apartment construction has increased substantially from the low point of early 1975. However, the rate of multi-family starts in 1977 has been less than half that reached in the peak year of 1972. Demand for existing apartments also has increased, as indicated by rapidly rising rents for desirable units and stronger prices for condominiums.

HOUSING STARTS are expected to total 1.9 to 2.0 million in 1977, up from 1.5 million in 1976 and less than 1.2 million in 1975. The 1975 total was the smallest number since 1946 when the industry was reviving after World War II. The all-time peak of 2.4 million was reached in 1972.

From a low point of 270,000 in 1975, multi-family starts rose to 375,000 last year and have approached a 500,000 rate in recent months. This is still only half the 1972 level, however, while single-family starts are running 12 per cent higher than in 1972. As a result, the proportion of apartment starts to the total is unlikely to much exceed 25 per cent this year.

Official estimates place the number of households in March 1976 at 73 million; the current number probably approaches 75 million. The number of households has doubled since World War II, while the population has increased by less than 60 per cent. In the past decade households have increased 25 per cent, while the population has risen 10 per cent.

Residential mortgage debt totaled over $660 billion at the end of 1976, up 12 per cent during the year, with most of the gain in the second half. Mortgage debt doubtless will rise more than 10 per cent this year as more new homes and apartments are completed and the number of transactions in existing properties continues at a record pace and at ever-rising prices.

Most observers of housing market trends expect that new home construction will remain strong in 1978, although single-family starts may be somewhat fewer than in 1977. A further expansion in multi-family construction is widely expected. Vacancy rates have declined to the lowest level in several years, and rising rents will justify additional projects. HUD is reported to be pushing hard for additional subsidized housing.

Registration set for real estate appraisal class

Registration is being accepted for a real estate appraisal course offered by the Illinois Chapter 6 of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and co-sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate Board.

"Basic Principles, Methods and Techniques of Real Estate Appraisal," known as Course I-A, will be offered this fall on two weekday evenings in the Loop. The course usually is presented by Airea at major universities throughout the nation but is being offered on an extension basis in the Chicago area.

Successful completion of the final examination for the class is required and counts as credit toward the institute's professional designation of "Member, Appraisal Institute."

Course I-A will meet Mondays and Thursdays from Sept. 12 through Nov. 3, with the final examination Nov. 5. Instructors for the course will be William E. McDonnell, of Great American Federal Savings & Loan Assn. and William Schwandt, owner of Schwandt Realty Co.

Tuition is $275 exclusive of texts; the course is open to any person with a high school education or the equivalent.

Registration for the course as well as further information may be obtained by contacting Mary Lu Olszowy at the real estate board, Suite 800, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Home costs rise 11% nationwide

"Panic buying" has been used by some real estate analysts to describe the 1977 home market. The home boom has been universal throughout the nation, but panic is too strong a term for conditions in most regions, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said in its bi-monthly review, Economic Perspectives.

The average price of existing homes, nationally, was up 11 per cent in April from a year earlier, according to the National Assn. of Realtors. Home prices in the seventh federal reserve district average 10 to 11 per cent higher than last year, both for new and existing homes.

According to the Federal Reserve Bank:

Apartment construction has increased substantially from the low point of early 1975. However, the rate of multi-family starts in 1977 has been less than half that reached in the peak year of 1972. Demand for existing apartments also has increased, as indicated by rapidly rising rents for desirable units and stronger prices for condominiums.

HOUSING STARTS are expected to total 1.9 to 2.0 million in 1977, up from 1.5 million in 1976 and less than 1.2 million in 1975. The 1975 total was the smallest number since 1946 when the industry was reviving after World War II. The all-time peak of 2.4 million was reached in 1972.

From a low point of 270,000 in 1975, multi-family starts rose to 375,000 last year and have approached a 500,000 rate in recent months. This is still only half the 1972 level, however, while single-family starts are running 12 per cent higher than in 1972. As a result, the proportion of apartment starts to the total is unlikely to much exceed 25 per cent this year.

Official estimates place the number of households in March 1976 at 73 million; the current number probably approaches 75 million. The number of households has doubled since World War II, while the population has increased by less than 60 per cent. In the past decade households have increased 25 per cent, while the population has risen 10 per cent.

Residential mortgage debt totaled over $660 billion at the end of 1976, up 12 per cent during the year, with most of the gain in the second half. Mortgage debt doubtless will rise more than 10 per cent this year as more new homes and apartments are completed and the number of transactions in existing properties continues at a record pace and at ever-rising prices.

Most observers of housing market trends expect that new home construction will remain strong in 1978, although single-family starts may be somewhat fewer than in 1977. A further expansion in multi-family construction is widely expected. Vacancy rates have declined to the lowest level in several years, and rising rents will justify additional projects. HUD is reported to be pushing hard for additional subsidized housing.

Registration set for real estate appraisal class

Registration is being accepted for a real estate appraisal course offered by the Illinois Chapter 6 of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and co-sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate Board.

"Basic Principles, Methods and Techniques of Real Estate Appraisal," known as Course I-A, will be offered this fall on two weekday evenings in the Loop. The course usually is presented by Airea at major universities throughout the nation but is being offered on an extension basis in the Chicago area..

Successful completion of the final examination for the class is required and counts as credit toward the institute's professional designation of "Member, Appraisal Institute."

Course I-A will meet Mondays and Thursdays from Sept. 12 through Nov. 3, with the final examination Nov. 5. Instructors for the course will be William E. McDonnell, of Great American Federal Savings & Loan Assn. and William Schwandt, owner of Schwandt Realty Co.

Tuition is $275 exclusive of texts; the course is open to any person with a high school education or the equivalent.

Registration for the course as well as further information may be obtained by contacting Mary Lu Olszowy at the real estate board, Suite 800, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60603.

Consider safety when preparing for power failure

Since the recent power failure in New York City, I have been flooded with inquiries as to how to be prepared for such an event. For example:

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Though we don't live in New York, we do live in a large city and are deeply concerned about being prepared for such a terrible catastrophe, should it happen here.

What should we have on hand, and how should we treat our appliances in the event of a power failure? — Cautious.

The most obvious answer is to provide light for safety as well as convenience. You should keep a supply of candles in your house and several flashlights. Check from time to time to be sure the batteries are working. Keep extra batteries on hand.

If a power failure takes place during the winter, the biggest problem is providing heat. If you have a fireplace, build a fire and keep your family close to it. Close off the other rooms of your house. Naturally, you will have to keep a supply of wood. Use outside doors as little as possible.

All major appliances should be disconnected as soon as the power goes off. When the power is restored, connect them one at a time. This can prevent a dangerous overload.

Spoilage of food in refrigerators and freezers can be prevented if you open the doors as little as possible. Don't open the freezer door at all, and food will keep for approximately a day and a half.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband and I are just about ready to sign an agreement of sale for 7.5 acres. It has already passed the percolation test and we believe it is good farm land. There is only one hitch. In the deed is a restriction against all animals except two horses and a colt.

My husband does not want a lot of animals. It's just that after he buys the land he wants to at least have the option of considering a few chickens.

Is there any way to get this restriction out of the deed or would we be stuck with it? We would be grateful for any advice you could give us. — Isn't it Unfair?

It has been my experience not to pay attention to deed restrictions that do not make sense. Lawyers may feel otherwise. But I think this is a practical question. Many properties contain a clause in the deed prohibiting the use of the property for purposes such as a glue factory or rendering plant. These restrictions were generally established many years ago, and were done for the common good of the community.

Bernard Meltzer

On real estate

In all cases, the deed restrictions predate any zoning ordinances. At one time, when your property was sold, the man next door may have disliked animals and therefore placed the restriction in the deed for two horses and a colt. However, if you check it out you will probably find that this man has been gone for many, many years and it is a good bet that nobody in the neighborhood cares any more. If you like the property, I'd suggest that you buy it. Don't be chicken. Build your chicken house and see what happens.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: This may seem silly to you, but I'm such a fuss pot that I like everything to be perfect. So don't think I'm a nut.

I'm moving into a spanking new apartment. It's a dream — just what I always wanted. Everything is perfect. The floors are gorgeous, the kitchen is a model of electricity and the walls don't even have a tiny crack.

I have many pictures to hang, and I'm nutty enough not to trust anyone but myself. I want to hang each one so that I can be certain not to crack the plaster or mar the walls. Can you tell me the best and most efficient way to do this? — Perfectionist.

No, I don't thing you're silly. You'd be surprised at how many people approach hanging anything on a wall with a feeling of panic.

My suggestion to you is to visit a good hardware store. Today there are so many ingenious wall fasteners available that will handle any size picture or wall hanging without doing damage to the wall.

On example is the brass hook with a thin nail running through it at an angle. This is very simple to hammer into the wall.

Another is the adhesive-backed cloth with a metal hook attached to it. These are for lightweight hangings. The cloth must be soaked in water. In a matter of minutes it is ready to be applied to the wall.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Lucky for us, we got an air conditioner for our bedroom this year. Until now we have suffered through many a summer. But with this terrible heat spell we've been having, we'd have been dead without it!

We want to know how to take care f it so that it will work most efficiently and so that it will last us a long time. We're a youngish couple with not very much money, and we can't afford to throw it around. — Want To Be Careful.

You are correct in wanting to take proper care of your air conditioning unit. Though today's models are very efficient, they do tend to decline in efficiency when they are neglected.

Maintenance of an air conditioner is very simple. As I wrote recently, it must be kept clean. Most units have permanently sealed bearings, so that lubrication is not necessary.

Filters should be inspected at least once a month. Clean the grill work and openings into the air conditioner with a vacuum cleaner. Keep other windows in the room closed.

Business briefs

L.A. Times faces 'unfair' ad charges

The Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday the publishers of the Los Angeles Times are guilty of discrimination by charging small advertisers more for ad space than big advertisers, a practice common throughout the newspaper industry. The Times Mirror Co., Inc., said the FTC action was unwarranted and the Times would defend itself in court, if necessary. It suggested this was a test case, and that the FTC would contest all volume discounts in advertising rates. The FTC said Times Mirror, the largest publicly held publishing company in the country, used a rate structure under which high volume advertisers were 'systematically paying substantially lower rates than their competitors whose advertising volume is smaller.

Personal income up 0.8%

Bigger social security checks in July pushed American's personal income up .8 per cent for the 24th consecutive monthly gain, the Commerce Dept. said Wednesday. Commerce said a 5.9 per cent boost in social security benefits accounted for $5 billion of the $11.7 billion income gain. Personal income from wages, salaries, investments, social security, welfare and other sources was estimated at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1 54 trillion. That breaks down to about $7,100 for each man, woman and child — before taxes. The July gain exceeded every month this year except February and March when the economy was rebounding from widespread job layoffs and factory closings in January. In another development, Commerce said businesses increased inventories 0 7 per cent in June while sales were marginally stronger than May. June sales rose 1 2 per cent, all at the manufacturing level.

Copper firms lower prices

Two copper producers, Asarco of New York and the Duval Mining Division of Pennzoil Co. of Houston, Wednesday cut the basic price of electrolytic copper to 60 cents a pound from 65 cents. Duval said the reduction would take effect today but there would be no changes in the price differentials for various copper-shaped products. ASARCO, which said its price cut was effective immediately, also maintained price differentials on shapes. Its new wirebar price is 60.625 cents a pound.

N.Y. to end stock transfer tax

Gov Hugh Carey of N.Y. announced Wednesday that he had signed a bill to phase out New York City's tax on stock transfers, part of an effort to keep the two major stock markets and the 140,000 related jobs from moving out-of-state. Under terms of a compromise worked out between Senate Republicans and Assembly Democrats, the state will make up half of the revenue the city will lose. Special state payments will amount to $16 million in the current state fiscal year and will increase to $108 million in 1982-83 and thereafter.

'Pessimistic pension experts'

Most private pension plan officials appear to be somewhat pessimistic about the present state of the U.S. economy, the International Foundation of Employe Benefit Plans said Wednesday. The foundation conducted a survey of pension fund managers' investment attitudes in connection with the third anniversary of the Pension Reform Act. The chief conclusion was that the fund managers' attitudes are generally very conservative and cautious about investing pension assets in anything except blue chip securities. They apparently do not believe the present state of the economy is conductive to widespread growth and consequent appreciation of other securities.

Trade seminar is Sept. 12

Travel agents to meet Sept. 7

A meeting of area travel agents and industry associates will be Sept. 7 in Mount Prospect to organize a study group to pursue the Institute of Certified Travel Agent course leading to professional accreditation. Interested participants are asked to contact Kay McNellis, American Express Travel in the Woodfield Mall, Schaumburg, or ICTA headquarters (617) 237-0280 for information on the meeting.

From super stars to a horse's... —an award for every occasion

by LEA TONKIN

Recognition is a way of life for entrepreneur Don Thompson.

Trophies for avid anglers, plaques for sales promoters, monogramed glassware for company bigwigs and gaundy, bejeweled crowns for would-be royalty are Thompson's stock-in-trade

"We even have a 'Lover of the Year' award," says Thompson, owner of the Creative Awards by Lane, 1575 Elmhurst Rd., Elk Grove Village

"We're in the recognition business," Thompson says. "People like a pat on the back, a glad hand"

SOME FOLKS want recognition so badly that they'll even buy awards and present them to themselves. It's comforting to these people, just to have a reminder that they sold the most widgets last year, or the "Silver Trowel" for excellence in craftsmanship, Thompson says

"You can give people a thousand dollars and it slips right through their fingers," he said. "But you give some guys an award, it's surprising how much one of these means to some people"

Awards run the gamut from traditional loving cups and plaques to ash trays, medallions, small sculptures and crystal stemware. Marble desk sets, a three-foot-long gavel, gold shovels for groundbreaking ceremony participants and a variety of trinkets are shown in the Creative Awards by Lane Elk Grove Village show room

There is even a custom-made trophy for the winners of a corn-shelling contest It's the likeness of a bronzed hand holding an ear of corn

Sales, service, safety and sports are the major categories of awards sold by Lane. Thompson says the bulk of his business is for commercial accounts, such as real estate and banking associations.

ALTHOUGH CREATIVE AWARDS by Lane sells many of its trophies and desk sets by mail, Thompson says he takes pride in his show room and the custom design service he can provide customers.

"We call this our idea center," Thompson says of the display area newly opened in Elk Grove Village. "People come here, then they get ideas, they tell us about them and we come up with designs" A "Super Star" plaque is among the newest designs sketched and produced by Thompson and his staff.

Custom designs are translated into the finished product at a Chicago plant. Engravers add the finishing touches — the recipient's name, and the occasion for the award — at the Elk Grove Village facility. Then the items are shipped to accounts across the United States and several foreign countries

Thompson got into the business in 1940, working for Dodge Trophies. "I was a punk making $22 a week. I was happy to get it," he says of the company which now has a plant in Crystal Lake.

Then, seven years later, Thompson went to work for Edwin W. Lane, a Chicago distributor of awards and trophies. He bought out the business in 1962, changing the company name to Creative Awards by Lane. The firm still maintains a sales and display office at 32 W. Randolph, Chicago.

"I WANT THE 'creative' to stand out," Thompson says of his company's name. Although he's in a competitive business, Thompson says he likes to think of his work as more than distribution of trophies. The creativity is important because each customer wants to present distinctive awards, he says.

Thompson spends most of his time in marketing and calling on accounts, although he has several sales representatives. He also takes special interest in custom accounts.

"I'm a silly nut to get as involved as I do," Thompson says. "But our customers have created this business with us."

Giveaway gifts such as keychains and pencils, and a recently acquired greeting card company round out Thompson's business. He is reporting a steady increase in sales, with an annual $1.5 million volume. The majority of Creative Awards by Lane's sales are accounted for by awards and trophies costing $5 on up to several hundred dollars.

Thompson says he enjoys calling on his accounts, and meeting new people in the recognition business. He gets a kick out of occasional requests for unusual awards, such as the "horse's ass" for a poor sales record.

A single plaque adorns Thompson's office wall. It commemorates his prize catch, a good-size sailfish. "I gave it to myself," Thompson said.

"PEOPLE LIKE a pat on the back, a glad hand," says Don Thompson, owner of the Creative Awards by Lane business in Elk Grove Village.

Walkout idles coal workers

WALTONVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Walkouts have idled some 1,000 United Mine Workers union members at two Freeman-United Coal Co mines, a UMW spokesman said Wednesday.

The strike began Tuesday afternoon at the Orient No 3 mine in a dispute over interpretation of an arbitrator's decision and spread Wednesday to the company's Orient No. 6 mine, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, major coal users may turn elsewhere for adequate and secure coal supplies if West Virginia coal production continues to nosedive, a coal official said Wednesday

The warning came from Edwin K Wiles, president of the West Virginia Coal Assn., which represents about 80 per cent of the state's production.

L.A. Times faces 'unfair' ad charges

The Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday the publishers of the Los Angeles Times are guilty of discrimination by charging small advertisers more for ad space than big advertisers, a practice common throughout the newspaper industry. The Times Mirror Co., Inc., said the FTC action was unwarranted and the Times would defend itself in court, if necessary. It suggested this was a test case, and that the FTC would contest all volume discounts in advertising rates. The FTC said Times Mirror, the largest publicly held publishing company in the country, used a rate structure under which high volume advertisers were 'systematically paying substantially lower rates than their competitors whose advertising volume is smaller.

Personal income up 0.8%

Bigger social security checks in July pushed American's personal income up .8 per cent for the 24th consecutive monthly gain, the Commerce Dept. said Wednesday. Commerce said a 5.9 per cent boost in social security benefits accounted for $5 billion of the $11.7 billion income gain. Personal income from wages, salaries, investments, social security, welfare and other sources was estimated at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.54 trillion. That breaks down to about $7,100 for each man, woman and child — before taxes. The July gain exceeded every month this year except February and March when the economy was rebounding from widespread job layoffs and factory closings in January. In another development, Commerce said businesses increased inventories 0.7 per cent in June while sales were marginally stronger than May. June sales rose 1.2 per cent, all at the manufacturing level.

Copper firms lower prices

Two copper producers, Asarco of New York and the Duval Mining Division of Pennzoil Co. of Houston, Wednesday cut the basic price of electrolytic copper to 60 cents a pound from 65 cents. Duval said the reduction would take effect today but there would be no changes in the price differentials for various copper-shaped products. ASARCO, which said its price cut was effective immediately, also maintained price differentials on shapes. Its new wirebar price is 60.625 cents a pound.

N.Y. to end stock transfer tax

Gov. Hugh Carey of N.Y. announced Wednesday that he had signed a bill to phase out New York City's tax on stock transfers, part of an effort to keep the two major stock markets and the 140,000 related jobs from moving out-of-state. Under terms of a compromise worked out between Senate Republicans and Assembly Democrats, the state will make up half of the revenue the city will lose. Special state payments will amount to $16 million in the current state fiscal year and will increase to $108 million in 1982-83 and thereafter.

'Pessimistic pension experts'

Most private pension plan officials appear to be somewhat pessimistic about the present state of the U.S. economy, the International Foundation of Employe Benefit Plans said Wednesday. The foundation conducted a survey of pension fund managers' investment attitudes in connection with the third anniversary of the Pension Reform Act. The chief conclusion was that the fund managers' attitudes are generally very conservative and cautious about investing pension assets in anything except blue chip securities. They apparently do not believe the present state of the economy is conductive to widespread growth and consequent appreciation of other securities.

From super stars to a horse's... —an award for every occasion

by LEA TONKIN

Recognition is a way of life for entrepreneur Don Thompson.

Trophies for avid anglers, plaques for sales promoters, monogramed glassware for company bigwigs and gaundy, bejeweled crowns for would-be royalty are Thompson's stock-in-trade.

"We even have a 'Lover of the Year' award," says Thompson, owner of the Creative Awards by Lane, 1575 Elmhurst Rd., Elk Grove Village.

"We're in the recognition business," Thompson says. "People like a pat on the back, a glad hand."

SOME FOLKS want recognition so badly that they'll even buy awards and present them to themselves. It's comforting to these people, just to have a reminder that they sold the most widgets last year, or the "Silver Trowel" for excellence in craftsmanship, Thompson says.

"You can give people a thousand dollars and it slips right through their fingers," he said. "But you give some guys an award, it's surprising how much one of these means to some people."

Awards run the gamut from traditional loving cups and plaques to ash trays, medallions, small sculptures and crystal stemware. Marble desk sets, a three-foot-long gavel, gold shovels for groundbreaking ceremony participants and a variety of trinkets are shown in the Creative Awards by Lane Elk Grove Village show room.

There is even a custom-made trophy for the winners of a corn-shelling contest. It's the likeness of a bronzed hand holding an ear of corn.

Sales, service, safety and sports are the major categories of awards sold by Lane. Thompson says the bulk of his business is for commercial accounts, such as real estate and banking associations.

ALTHOUGH CREATIVE AWARDS by Lane sells many of its trophies and desk sets by mail, Thompson says he takes pride in his show room and the custom design service he can provide customers.

"We call this our idea center," Thompson says of the display area newly opened in Elk Grove Village. "People come here, then they get ideas, they tell us about them and we come up with designs." A "Super Star" plaque is among the newest designs sketched and produced by Thompson and his staff.

Custom designs are translated into the finished product at a Chicago plant. Engravers add the finishing touches — the recipient's name, and the occasion for the award — at the Elk Grove Village facility. Then the items are shipped to accounts across the United States and several foreign countries.

Thompson got into the business in 1940, working for Dodge Trophies. "I was a punk making $22 a week. I was happy to get it," he says of the company which now has a plant in Crystal Lake.

Then, seven years later, Thompson went to work for Edwin W. Lane, a Chicago distributor of awards and trophies. He bought out the business in 1962, changing the company name to Creative Awards by Lane. The firm still maintains a sales and display office at 32 W. Randolph, Chicago.

"I WANT THE 'creative' to stand out," Thompson says of his company's name. Although he's in a competitive business, Thompson says he likes to think of his work as more than distribution of trophies. The creativity is important because each customer wants to present distinctive awards, he says.

Thompson spends most of his time in marketing and calling on accounts, although he has several sales representatives. He also takes special interest in custom accounts.

"I'm a silly nut to get as involved as I do," Thompson says. "But our customers have created this business with us."

Giveaway gifts such as keychains and pencils, and a recently acquired greeting card company round out Thompson's business. He is reporting a steady increase in sales, with an annual $1.5 million volume. The majority of Creative Awards by Lane's sales are accounted for by awards and trophies costing $5 on up to several hundred dollars.

Thompson says he enjoys calling on his accounts, and meeting new people in the recognition business. He gets a kick out of occasional requests for unusual awards, such as the "horse's ass" for a poor sales record.

A single plaque adorns Thompson's office wall. It commemorates his prize catch, a good-size sailfish. "I gave it to myself," Thompson said.

"PEOPLE LIKE a pat on the back, a glad hand," says Don Thompson, owner of the Creative Awards by Lane business in Elk Grove Village.

Walkout idles coal workers

WALTONVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Walkouts have idled some 1,000 United Mine Workers union members at two Freeman-United Coal Co. mines, a UMW spokesman said Wednesday.

The strike began Tuesday afternoon at the Orient No. 3 mine in a dispute over interpretation of an arbitrator's decision and spread Wednesday to the company's Orient No. 6 mine, the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, major coal users may turn elsewhere for adequate and secure coal supplies if West Virginia coal production continues to nosedive, a coal official said Wednesday.

The warning came from Edwin K. Wiles, president of the West Virginia Coal Assn., which represents about 80 per cent of the state's production.

'Carter recession' not yet in sight

NEW YORK—The merchants of hysteria are at it again. As they tell it, the economy has just hit a terrible air pocket and the U.S. is about to enter (or, depending on their degree of panic, has already arrived at) "the first Carter recession." Well, sorry, gang, but—as is so often the case with these professional pessimists—what they are talking is the veriest bunk.

Louis Rukeyser

Don't misunderstand me. Its's not all peaches and cream out there, either—and you don't have to be either unemployed or a close student of the leading economic indicators to realize that. The most serious of our long-term problems, from inflation to energy to lagging investmennt productivity, remain dangerously unsolved. But the U.S. has staged an extraordinary recovery from its last recession, and the nation's best forecasters are convinced that we are nowhere near the next one.

Economic forecasting is not to be taken as gospel, of course. Indeed, it should be taken like a lot of other things in life (lover's pledges, baseball managers' predictions, political campaign speeches)—with a hefty helping of salt.

HENCE IT IS always useful to hear from Robert J. Eggert, the astute former chief economist for the Ford Motor Co. and then for RCA, who now makes a monthly practice of reporting and averaging fully 36 different forecasts by some of the banks, universities and business economists whose track records over the years have been particularly noteworthy. What he comes up with, in the form of Eggert Economic Enterprises' "Blue Chip Economic Indicators," is as close as we're likely to come to an informed consensus of what lies ahead.

As Eggert's top-level forecasters see it, 1977 will enter the economic history books as a year of vigorous growth—though, understandably (and desirably), not quite so runaway boomy as the first two quarters—and 1978 will run it a close second.

Eggert's consensus of the three dozen forecasts, all made this month, sees real, noninflationary growth for this year coming in at 5 per cent—which, incidentally, means that the last six months will show an even greater improvement over the second half of 1976, with its much publicized "pause." For 1978, the forecasters see inflation a hair higher and growth a hair lower—though, at 4.4 per cent, it would still be well above the long-term performance of the U.S. economy. They expect the unemployment rate to continue to come down slowly, from 6.9 per cent now to an average 6.6 per cent in 1978.

In short, the forecast can be expressed as: continued improvement, but at a slightly slower rate. That's scarcely utopia, of course, yet it is a distinct disservice to all of us to miss the essentially optimistic undertone. If the country doesn't lose its nerve, and if Washington doesn't race to "help," 1978 could be a pretty good year.

Stocks continue slump; drop 4.59

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, suffering its fourth setback in five sessions, fell to a 19-month low Wednesday amid persistent investor concern about rising interest rates. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.59 points to 864.69, the lowest level since it closed at 858.71 on Jan. 2, 1976. The average has lost 58.73 points since July 22.

Many invtstors apparently sold in anticipation of the federal reserve board's weekly money supply report late Thursday. A recent surge in the supply has forced the Fed to tighten credit.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index shed .02 to 53.51 and the average price of a common share dipped one cent. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, aded .01 to 97.74. Declines topped advances, 733 to 540, among the 1,856 issues crossing the composite tape. Big Board volume totaled 20,920,000 shares, up from the 19,340,000 traded Tuesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 24,500,180 shares, compared with 22,549,550 Tuesday.

Stocks continue slump; drop 4.59

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, suffering its fourth setback in five sessions, fell to a 19-month low Wednesday amid persistent investor concern about rising interest rates. Trading was moderate.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 4.59 points to 864.69, the lowest level since it closed at 858.71 on Jan. 2, 1976. The average has lost 58.73 points since July 22.

Many invtstors apparently sold in anticipation of the federal reserve board's weekly money supply report late Thursday. A recent surge in the supply has forced the Fed to tighten credit.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index shed .02 to 53.51 and the average price of a common share dipped one cent. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, aded .01 to 97.74. Declines topped advances, 733 to 540, among the 1,856 issues crossing the composite tape. Big Board volume totaled 20,920,000 shares, up from the 19,340,000 traded Tuesday.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 24,500,180 shares, compared with 22,549,550 Tuesday.

Inflation is not going to disappear

Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON—Management of inflation is likely to prove the most difficult of all problems for President Carter to solve in the next year or two. That's the considered view at the Brookings Institution, as well as the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris.

I wrote in this column a few weeks ago of a proposal by Gar Alperovitz, of the Washington-based Exploratory Project for Economic Alternatives, to tackle inflation by concentrating on four areas that hit hardest at most consumers — food, energy, health, and housing.

For example, the inflation in housing prices is little short of tragic for young persons. The median price of a home today is about $45,000, and is likely to double to $90,000 by 1985.

MY MAIL AND phone calls indicate that no domestic problem is of more concern to citizens than inflation. I find a great interest in new approaches, although many are convinced that one simple solution to inflation is to drastically reduce government spending.

Alperovitz and associate Jeff Faux have now published a paper by Leslie Nulty offering an analysis of the causes of the "new" inflation. She makes these points:

• Around 80 per cent of American households spend 70 per cent of their budgets on food, energy, health, and housing — and no price relief is on the horizon.

• The old tools for inflation control have little impact in these areas. Tight money or restrictive fiscal policy have no effect on high world food and oil prices. In some cases, these policies can make things worse. For example, high interest rates may dampen spending, but they also drive up housing costs.

• Therefore, specially targeted policies are needed to deal with the underlying problems in each of the four areas. Examples: more mass transit to help control energy wasted by private cars; lower utility company rates for a basic supply of home-use energy; subsidies for family farms to help stabilize consumer food prices; a study of ways in which insurance companies boost the cost of hospital and health care; and some allocation of land and capital for low-cost housing programs.

The immediate question, of course, is whether any government can wisely decide such priorities. Conventionally, we have relied on the marketplace, not a planned society. But a pure marketplace solution — which means that price is the sole allocator of resources — doesn't make sense, either.

IN TODAY'S WORLD, the marketplace needs help — probably less than Alperovitz and Faux would provide, but certainly more than President Carter has proposed in a toothless anti-inflation "program."

Carter, moreover, has added to inflationary pressures in a series of protectionist actions ranging from giving American unions a 10 per cent preference in cargo shipping to quotas on shoes and color television sets.

The administration has had some access to Alperovitz' and Faux' ideas. A new look at them and at more conventional proposals is in order. These include controls a la Galbraith, and a more selective Wage Price Board as suggested by Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns as far back as December 1970. Brookings' Arthur Okun has made suggestions providing tax incentives for labor compliance with wage guideposts, and Henry Wallich along with Sidney Weintraub have proposed a tax on corporations that exceed agreed-upon wage limits.

The essential point is that the Carter administration needs to buckle down and work out an anti-inflation program that has some meanings. If it doesn't, mark down Carter's promise of balanced budgets and full employment in 1981 as just so much hogwash.

Elderly shoplifters peril mart

BETHLEHEM, PA. (UPI) — The future of Bethlehem's only downtown supermarket is clouded by a peculiar problem — elderly shoplifters.

Robert Schoenen Jr., 30, one of the owners of the market, says it might go out of business if the shoplifters are not prosecuted. But, he says, it might go out of business even if they are prosecuted.

"If someone died, I'd probably close up," Schoenen said. "I don't know, I don't think I could live with it."

When the shoplifters are arrested, they are taken into custody and fingerprinted.

Schoenen said the shoplifters are creating serious financial problems for the market, eating up $1 out of every $100 profit and the situation is affecting the quality of the market.

Schoenen said "90 per cent" of the items taken are not necessities. He said the more common stolen goods are steaks and finer cheeses and that an average of $70 in cartons of cigarets disappear weekly.

Schoenen said the downtown market "doesn't stock many of the best brands anymore and prices have risen to offset losses."

Canned foods help keep you cool

Conservation of energy — both personal and commercial — is on the upswing. Hot weather entertaining is at its best when cooking and cooling are kept to a minimum. Rapid recipes, using canned convenience foods, not only offer a wonderful way to keep cool, but are guaranteed to conserve gas and electricity.

CREAMY CHEESY RAVIOLI

½ cup coarsely chopped carrots
½ cup coarsely chopped onions
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas
2 cans (15 ounces) cheese ravioli in beef and tomato sauce
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dried dill weed

Place carrots, onions, lemon juice and ¼ cup water in blender. Blend for 3 minutes. Pour into 1 quart sauce pan, add margarine, frozen peas and remaining water. Cover, simmer for 10 minutes. Add ravioli, sour cream and dill; simmer for 10 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

PEACH VICTOR

1 can (29 ounces) peach halves
1 cup salad oil
1 lemon, juice only
1 clove garlic
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons finely minced parsley
2 packages seasoning and broth
1 whole bay leaf
2 cups water
1 onion, thinly sliced
Salad greens

Drain peaches; set aside. Combine remaining ingredients except onion and salad greens. Boil liquid down to about one-half amount. Add onion, cook for 1 minute longer; remove from heat. Add peaches and marinate 1 hour at room temperature. To serve, arrange peach halves on salad greens. Serves 6 to 8.

EGGPLANT — CHEESE RAVIOLI BAKE

½ cup salad oil
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 medium eggplant, peeled and sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
2 cans (15½ ounces) cheese ravioli in beef and tomato sauce
3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese

Set oven at 375 degrees. Heat oil. Mix flour and salt together. Coat eggplant slices with seasoned flour. Fry in oil until eggplant is tender and browned. Place eggplant slices in bottom of a 2-quart casserole dish. Add onion to oil and cook until onion is tender but not browned. Spoon over onion. Sprinkle cheese over top. Bake 25 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

UPSIDE-DOWN PEACH CAKE

1 can (16 ounces) peach slices
¼ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
3 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour, sifted
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt

Drain peaches, saving liquid. Set aside. Heat butter in 10-inch frying pan.* Add brown sugar and cook over low heat about 10 minutes. Arrange peaches decoratively on this; set aside to cool. Beat eggs with sugar until fluffy. Add ¼ cup saved peach syrup. Sift flour again with baking powder and salt; fold into egg mixture. Pour over peaches. Bake uncovered in 350-degree oven 45 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

*Use only all-metal pans or remove perishable handles if possible.

QUICK FRUIT SOUP

2 cans (30 ounces) fruit cocktail
4 whole cloves
2 lemons, juice and grated rind
2 packages (3 ounces) raspberry gelatin
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup sour cream
Toasted slivered almonds, optional

Drain fruit cocktail, save syrup. Heat saved syrup with cloves and grated lemon rind. Simmer 5 minutes. Add lemon juice and gelatin. Stir well to dissolve gelatin. Add 1 cup cold water and drained fruit cocktail. Keep at room temperature until ready to serve. Add sugar to sour cream. Garnish soup with dollop of sour cream and toasted almonds. Serves 6 to 8.

3 EASY WAYS TO MAKE ICED TEA

Easy: Bring 1 quart of freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil in a saucepan. Remove from the heat and immediately add 15 teabags or ⅓ measuring cup loose tea. Stir, cover and let stand 5 minutes. Stir again and strain into a pitcher holding an additional quart of fresh cold water. Do not refrigerate. Keep at room temperature and pour over ice when ready to serve. Makes 2 quarts.

Easier: Fill a quart pitcher or container with cold tap water. Add 8 to 10 teabags (remove tags). Cover. Let stand at room temperature or in the refrigerator at least 6 hours or overnight. Then remove teabags, squeezing against side of container. When ready to serve, pour into ice-filled glasses. Makes 1 quart. Recipe may be doubled.

Easiest: Use instant tea powder or the sweetened, flavored iced tea mixes that dissolve instantly in cold water. Or easiest of all, open a can of iced tea, already sweetened and flavored with lemon. Chill before serving or pour over ice.

TIME & ENERGY-SAVING DO'S AND DON'TS

DO assemble all ingredients and utensils needed before starting to cook. This will save time and footwork.

DO use pans of the appropriate size with tight-fitting lids. Foods will cook faster with less heat.

DO cover any leftovers tightly with foil or plastic wrap and refrigerate promptly.

DO as much advance preparation as possible — peeling, chopping, grating, etc. — before starting to cook.

DO keep can-convenience foods often used on your kitchen shelves. Replenish supplies when needed.

DON'T use the oven for just one dish . . . plan a complete oven meal including main dish, vegetable and dessert that can be cooked together.

DON'T open oven or refrigerator doors unnecessarily.

DON'T put anything on to cook and then walk away and forget it. Set your timer to remind yourself not to overcook, thus saving energy and vitamins.

DON'T throw out liquids from canned fruits, vegetables or main dish items. Save for use as flavor boosters in soups, salads and gelatins.

DO cover any leftovers tightly with foil or plastic wrap and refrigerate promptly.

DO as much advance preparation as possible — peeling, chopping, grating, etc. — before starting to cook.

DO keep can-convenience foods often used on your kitchen shelves. Replenish supplies when needed.

DON'T use the oven for just one dish . . . plan a complete oven meal including main dish, vegetable and dessert that can be cooked together.

DON'T open oven or refrigerator doors unnecessarily.

DON'T put anything on to cook and then walk away and forget it. Set your timer to remind yourself not to overcook, thus saving energy and vitamins.

DON'T throw out liquids from canned fruits, vegetables or main dish items. Save for use as flavor boosters in soups, salads and gelatins.

Cook finds joy in home canning

NOTHING STOPS an ambitious canner like Jane Farmer of Des Plaines, who finds canning good therapy as well as good fun.

An imcomparable satisfaction comes from possessing shelves well stocked with home-canned food. Jane Farmer of Des Plaines knows this feeling well, as she has been canning since she was married and remembers days past when vendors came down the alleys in Des Plaines selling bushels of Georgia peaches for canning.

Prior to air conditioning, housewives lamented that produce always ripened when the weather was the hottest. But Jane can testify that weather wasn't the only inconvenience. She recalls the time when her three peach trees came to fruition while she was in the hospital delivering her fourth baby, and came home to find several bushels of peaches in the kitchen waiting for her attention!

BUT NOTHING stops an ambitious canner who appreciates the special flavor and nutritional value of home-canned fruits and vegetables. Jane has canned pickles and plums, pears and applesauce, peaches and preserves. The mother of five grown children and grandmother of eight, she recently moved from a nine-room home to an apartment and brought all of her canning equipment with her. She expects to continue canning, if in smaller quantities.

Even when they were young, Jane's children recognized the superior quality of homemade applesauce compared to the commercial variety. Jane usually picks her own apples at a local orchard, preferring McIntosh and Cortland apples.

Cooking the applies with their skins on gives the sauce a pink tinge, and after they ar put through a Foley's mill, the pulp is sweetened with sugar. Jane pours the applesauce into clean jars, and then uses the boiling water bath for processing.

TWO UNUSUAL preserves are Jane's tomato jam and carrot marmalade. Both can be made in small quantities and are relatively easy to prepare. The carrot marmalade isn't dependent on any season, but can be made year 'round. Oranges and lemons give it an appealing citrus-like flavor.

In addition to tomatoes, the tomato jam calls for oranges and lemons, with a cinnamon stick adding a touch of spice. "This is a most appetizing jam, with a shocking pink color and sweet tomato flavor with a lemony tang," Jane said. Both the jam and marmalade are delicious on toast or English muffins, and the jewel-like jars are ideal for giving as gifts.

Lois Seiler
Cook of the week

Jane calls herself "a homemaker at heart," considering cooking, baking and canning both good therapy and fun. A former president of Des Plaines Homemakers, she has been active with this group for 25 years. Jane is a member of chapter KK of PEO, and a deacon at the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines. Her hobbies include bowling, golf and collecting antique glass, and she enjoys taking all types of courses at adult evening school.

APPLESAUCE

1 bushel McIntosh or Cortland apples
Sugar

Wash, core and quarter apples. Place in a large kettle and fill kettle ¼ to 1/3 full of water, depending on how juicy the applies are. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, until apples are soft. Put cooked apples through a Foley's mill and measure pulp. Add 3/4 to 1 cup sugar to 4 cups apple pulp while pulp still is hot, and mix well to dissolve sugar. Pour into hot, clean jars and seal.

Place jars in wire holder in canning kettle. Add water to the top of the jars. Bring water to a boil and boil 20 minutes. One bushel of apples will yield 14 quarts of applesauce.

TOMATO JAM

2 pounds ripe tomatoes
8 cups sugar
2 large oranges
4 lemons
1½ sticks cinnamon

Scald tomatoes to remove skins and chop fine. Add sugar, juice and grated rind of oranges and lemons and cinnamon sticks. Cook over low heat until mixture jells on spoon, approximately 1½ hours. Skim, pour into sterilized jars and seal.

CARROT MARMALADE

3 cups carrots, boiled and chopped
2 lemons
1 large orange
6 cups sugar

Carrots should be boiled until just tender, drained well and chopped fine. (Do not put them through a food grinder.) Add juice and grated rind of lemons and orange and sugar.

Cook slowly, uncovered, for a half hour or until mixture jells on a spoon. Skim, pour into sterilized jars and seal. Parafin may be used to seal the jars, if desired.

Coffee may get iron boost

Breads and cereals have been fortified with iron for years. Now coffee could be added to the list, says Teresa Shaffer, an extension food and nutrition specialist in Lincoln, Neb.

Ms. Shaffer says the iron fortification of java was investigated by the Agricultural Research Service at Grand Forks.

She thinks iron-fortified coffee might appeal to dieters, especially women, who are so weight-conscious they don't eat enough bread and cereal to get all the iron they need for good health. Coffee's advantages include its popularity and no-calorie status when taken without sugar

She said research showed four cups of iron-fortified coffee could supply about 70 per cent of an adult female's minimum daily requirement. (UPI)

Bread a common purchase

A trade magazine's list of the most-used supermarket grocery products provides insight into American eating habits.

The first three items on the list of 175 are non-foods. The first food listed is wrapped bread in fourth place. It is bought by 96.8 per cent of the people queried for the Target Group Index, 1976 study charted in the July issue of "Progressive Grocer" magazine.

Table Salt, mayonnaise and similar dressings, catsup and granulated sugar are sixth through ninth, following bar soaps in fifth place.

Flour, ice cream, ice milk and sherbet and margarine are, respectively, 11th, 12th and 13th. Canned soup comes in 15th, followed by American cheese, mustard and flavored or salted crackers.

Canned and jarred vegetables are 35th place, frozen vegetables, 53rd and cottage cheese, 63rd.

Canned fruit juices and drinks, excluding orange juice, came in a poor 78th, compared with colas and other carbonated drinksiin 42nd place.

Meat extenders were the lowest-ranking food, in 173rd place. (UPI)

Cheesecake brownies a yummy treat

A summer day . . . a dish of smooth, cool ice cream . . . a plate of rich, moist brownies . . . who could ask for anything more?

Well, there is more if the brownies are Chocolate Cheesecake Brownies. These brownies, of velvety chocolate marbled with a tangy-sweet cheesecake mixture, stand at the head of the class. Serve them warm with scoops of chocolate and vanilla ice cream for dessert or snacking pleasure.

CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE BROWNIES

Cheesecake Batter:
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¾ cup cottage cheese, sieved
1 egg
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Chocolate Batter:
3 ounces unsweetened chocolate
¼ cup (½ stick) butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup unsifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon almond extract

To prepare cheesecake batter, cream butter and sugar together; beat in vanilla. Add cornstarch, cottage cheese, egg and lemon juice; beat well. Set aside.

To prepare chocolate batter, melt chocolate and butter over hot water; let cool. Beat eggs until thick. Gradually beat in sugar. Stir in chocolate mixture, flour, baking powder and salt. Add nuts, vanilla and almond extract; mix well.

Spread half of chocolate batter in buttered 9-inch square baking pan. Pour cheesecake batter over top. Distribute remaining chocolate batter on top of cheesecake batter (do not attempt to cover cheesecake batter completely). With spoon, swirl two mixtures together. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes. Cut into 16 squares while still warm.

Her dream recipe wins grand prize in contest

For Helen Bemis Black of Arlington Heights, winning the grand prize in the James Beard Creative Cookery Contest was literally a dream come true.

Mrs. Black first read about the contest shortly before going to sleep, and she said that very night "I dreamed about this recipe, and the next day I got up and tried it."

The recipe beat out some 22,000 others for the grand prize of a course in expert cooking techniques at the James Beard School in New York, plus an all expenses paid week in New York for two.

Mrs. Black, a native of Mississippi, said she enjoys making up her own recipes and has even published a cookbook of her favorites. Although she had previously entered contests, she had never won anything of this magnitude. "It was a real surprise," she said, "but I had tested it out on my sister and her husband and they thought it was a good recipe, which was encouraging."

RAISED MEXICAN CORN BREAD
2 packages dry yeast
1 cup corn meal
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon soda
2 eggs
1 cup buttermilk
½ cup cooking oil
1 medium size onion, finely chopped
3 hot canned chili peppers, finely chopped
1 cup cream-style corn
1½ cups sharp cheddar cheese, grated
5 cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup oleo, melted

Stir yeast into corn meal and soda. Heat oil, salt, sugar, onion and buttermilk to lukewarm. Stir into corn meal mixture. Add the 2 eggs and beat thoroughly. Add cream corn, chopped pepper and cheese. Add flour, 1 cup at a time until well mixed. Knead until smooth and elastic. Grease bowl and dough with melted oleo. Cover.

Let rise in warm place (85 degrees), free from drafts, until double in size, about 1 to 1½ hours. Grease 2 loaf pans (10¼ x 3 3/8 x 2 5/8 inches) with oleo and dust with corn meal lightly. Divide dough in half and place on a lightly floured surface. Roll each half into a rectangle about 8 x 18 inches, pressing firmly to eliminate air pockets. Fold to fit loaf pans, placing seamside down. Brush with oleo. Cover.

Let rise a second time, away from drafts, until double in size. Bake in preheated oven at 400 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pans to a wire rack immediately and brush with melted oleo to prevent a hard crust that tears when sliced. Cool completely. Wrap in foil and freeze — or eat and can be used to make rolls, too.

Iceberg lettuce popular

The most popular of all salad greens in the United States is iceberg lettuce.

TO SELECT:

Clean crisp, tender, with heads fairly firm to firm. Free from seedstems and leaves with ragged brown areas. Avoid excessive outer leaves.

Fresh approach

TO STORE:

Core lettuce as you prepare to store it in the refrigerator. Should be cored before rinsing so the cleansing spray of water can run between lower leaves. To core head of lettuce, hold head core-end down and whack it on kitchen counter. Then simply twist and lift out the core with your fingers.

After rinsing, shake the lettuce vigorously to remove all water possible. Then set cored end down on paper towels to drain thoroughly. After draining, store head in refrigerator in bowl with airtight lid, or in plastic bag. Lettuce keeps best very cold and moist but not wet; excess moisture causes decay. The colder it is, the better the lettuce will keep. However, lettuce must not be permitted to freeze.

TO SERVE:

Wedges with favorite dressing. . leaves gntly torn with fingers to make tossed salad . . . lettuce slaw made by shredding lettuce and serving with favorite cole slaw dressing . . . lettuce also good served warm or hot . . . German wilted lettuce . . . braised lettuce in beef broth . . . lettuce stir-fry . . . a few lettuce leaves cooked with fresh peas makes a delightful French vegetable dish.

NUTRITION:

Lettuce contributes a useful amount of vitamin A, vitamin C, and iron, as well as other vitamins and minerals and roughage. A quarter of a four and three-fourth-inch head (113 grams) provides only 15 calories.

(Researched with the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.)

Cook chicken inside or out

Barbecued chicken comes in many flavors depending upon the sauce one uses and the marinade. A honey-lemon barbecued chicken first is marinated in lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce and then brushed with a seasoned honey sauce while it is grilling. This is a recipe that works well indoors with your broiler so it can be a year 'round dinner favorite.

HONEY-LEMON BARBECUED CHICKEN

- 1 chicken (2½ pounds), quartered
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons original Worcestershire sauce, divided
- 1 teaspoon salt, divided
- ¼ cup honey
- 1 tablespoon onion powder
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Place chicken in a tight-fitting bowl or double plastic bag. Combine lemon juice, 1 and ½ tablespoons of the Worcestershire sauce and ¾ teaspoon of the salt. Pour over chicken. Cover or seal and refrigerate 4 to 4 hours.

Remove chicken from marinade, reserving marinade. Place chicken, skin side down, on a rack over slow burning charcoal. Grill for 15 minutes. Turn and broil 15 minutes longer. Meanwhile, combine reserved marinade (about one-fourth cup) with honey, onion powder, garlic powder, remaining ½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Blend well. Use to brush over both sides of chicken.

Continue grilling, brushing and turning frequently, until chicken is tender, about 20 minutes longer. If desired, place chicken on a rack under a preheated moderate broiler. Cook following preceding instructions. Serves 4.

Core lettuce as you prepare to store it in the refrigerator. Should be cored before rinsing so the cleansing spray of water can run between lower leaves. To core head of lettuce, hold head core-end down and whack it on kitchen counter. Then simply twist and lift out the core with your fingers.

After rinsing, shake the lettuce vigorously to remove all water possible. Then set cored end down on paper towels to drain thoroughly. After draining, store head in refrigerator in bowl with airtight lid, or in plastic bag. Lettuce keeps best very cold and moist but not wet; excess moisture causes decay. The colder it is, the better the lettuce will keep. However, lettuce must not be permitted to freeze.

TO SERVE:

Wedges with favorite dressing. . leaves gntly torn with fingers to make tossed salad . . . lettuce slaw made by shredding lettuce and serving with favorite cole slaw dressing . . . lettuce also good served warm or hot . . . German wilted lettuce . . . braised lettuce in beef broth . . . lettuce stir-fry . . . a few lettuce leaves cooked with fresh peas makes a delightful French vegetable dish.

NUTRITION:

Lettuce contributes a useful amount of vitamin A, vitamin C, and iron, as well as other vitamins and minerals and roughage. A quarter of a four and three-fourth-inch head (113 grams) provides only 15 calories.

Cook chicken inside or out

Barbecued chicken comes in many flavors depending upon the sauce one uses and the marinade. A honey-lemon barbecued chicken first is marinated in lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce and then brushed with a seasoned honey sauce while it is grilling. This is a recipe that works well indoors with your broiler so it can be a year 'round dinner favorite.

HONEY-LEMON BARBECUED CHICKEN

- 1 chicken (2½ pounds), quartered
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons original Worcestershire sauce, divided
- 1 teaspoon salt, divided
- ¼ cup honey
- 1 tablespoon onion powder
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder

Place chicken in a tight-fitting bowl or double plastic bag. Combine lemon juice, 1 and ½ tablespoons of the Worcestershire sauce and ¾ teaspoon of the salt. Pour over chicken. Cover or seal and refrigerate 4 to 4 hours.

Remove chicken from marinade, reserving marinade. Place chicken, skin side down, on a rack over slow burning charcoal. Grill for 15 minutes. Turn and broil 15 minutes longer. Meanwhile, combine reserved marinade (about one-fourth cup) with honey, onion powder, garlic powder, remaining ½ tablespoon Worcestershire sauce and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Blend well. Use to brush over both sides of chicken.

Continue grilling, brushing and turning frequently, until chicken is tender, about 20 minutes longer. If desired, place chicken on a rack under a preheated moderate broiler. Cook following preceding instructions. Serves 4.

Practice needed in timing meals

Eileen Kelly

Let's learn to micro-cook

The microwave oven initially presents some problems in the timing of meals because of how fast it cooks and because foods are cooked in sequence. The cook must learn a new pattern for meal preparation. It takes some thought and some practice to finally get your meals to hang together perfectly.

I think a lot depends on how experienced a cook you are to begin with. The novice cook who has never coordinated a meal probably will experience more trial and error than one who has been at it for years. Veteran cooks will do well to recall some of their frustrations when they first started conventional cooking. It just takes time to get into the rhythm of the microwave method. Experience is the only solution.

HERE ARE SOME tips to help make things run smoothly:

- Be ready to cook: Decide what you want to serve, have the ingredients out and ready and have all the necessary cooking utensils close at hand;
- Read all recipes carefully;
- Know how long each food takes to cook;
- Think the meal through;
- Be ready to eat: Have the table set, the salad ready and the family within calling distance;
- Begin cooking: Foods that require cooling are done first. For foods that which takes the longest time first and that which takes the shortest time last.

Large foods take the longest to cook and hold heat the longest. For instance, if your roast is going to take one hour, your potatoes 2 minutes and your green peas six minutes, start with the roast. While it is standing, cook the potatoes and then he peas. While one food is cooking, be busy getting the next food ready to go into the oven.

IT IS POSSIBLE to cook something such as a meatloaf three-quarters of the way through and then remove it from the oven while you do something else such as potatoes. Then finish cooking the meatloaf while the potatoes are standing. When both the meatloaf and potatoes are finished, cook the vegetable. You will find all will be hot when brought to the table.

Remember the assets of reheating things in the microwave oven. Reheating takes minutes. Foods never bear any of the tasteless qualities often associated with conventionally reheated foods. You can prepare an entire meal well in advance of serving and then just reheat it. This is very nice when giving a party. Because foods reheat so beautifully in the microwave oven, you can endure all sorts of interruptions to your meal preparation and still have the meal turn out perfectly.

Keep in mind that you are not running a race with your microwave oven. The oven is there to serve you and to make your time in the kitchen more your own.

FROZEN VEGETABLES are a must do if you have a microwave oven. They take from six to 10 minutes to cook and are cooked and served in the same dish. The exception is vegetables in the plastic boilable pouches. Directions for cooking them are right on the box. Be sure to slit the plastic or the bag will burst in the oven.

If you buy the boxed or bagged frozen vegetables here's what to do. For 10 ounces, put the vegetables in a one-quart covered glass casserole. Microwave on high for six to 10 minutes. (I do just about all vegetables for six minutes as we like them on the crispy side.)

Remember vegetables have a standing time when they will continue to cook after being removed from the oven. The time varies from two to five minutes depending on how dense the vegetables are. If you are cooking something that comes out of the box in a block such as spinach, be sure to place it icy side up in the casserole and stir it during the cooking time to break up the clump.

You can add up to two tablespoons of hot water to the vegetables before you cook them, although I don't do this. If I'm going to add butter or seasonings I add them when I take the vegetables from the oven. Stir vegetables halfway through the cooking period.

Bowls help ripen summer produce

by JEANNE LESEM

A terrarium gave home economist Caryl Saunders the idea for a ventilated bowl that ripens fruits evenly and quickly at room temperature.

It solves a problem that has plagued fruit growers since they began mass marketing such things as peaches, nectarines, plums and pears at the rock-hard stage to ensure their reaching consumers unbruised.

Unfortunately, a lot of fruit never ripens. Or it ripens unevenly and begins to spoil before it is ready to eat. Until recently, the best available container was a brown paper bag to trap the ethylene gas that fruit gives off to induce ripening. Perforated plastic bags also can be used, but they tend to encourage mold growth and rapid spoilage.

THIS SUMMER, ripening bowls are being introduced that not only do a better job, but do it faster, more evenly and with less spoilage.

One model, an 11-inch sphere, is sold in supermarkets in scattered areas of the United States. It is expected to become much more widely available by next season. Three other models in two sizes are moving into retail stores now and also can be obtained from the gift fruits division of the Sacramento, Calif., fruit cooperative for which Ms Saunders is consumer affairs director.

The supermarket model was developed at the university of California in Davis with a grant from the California Tree Fruit Agreement.

CHARLES SANDERSON, the agency's marketing director, said the original production of 60,000 units was sold out during the first half of this year. Thirty thousand more are being made.

Ms. Saunders' designs, a large and small pear shape and a small peach shape, work on the same principle. The large bowl is 12 inches in diameter and thirteen and a half inches high. The smaller bowls are ten and a half inches in diameter, and 12 inches high (pear) and almost nine inches high (peach).

Ripening fruit gives off water vapor and two gases, ethylene and carbon dioxide. Ethylene naturally induces and promotes ripening. But excess carbon dioxide can create off-flavors and internal spoilage. Too much water vapor can cause mold; too little makes fruit shrivel.

THE RIPENING bowls and their domed lids have air vents scientifically spaced to let carbon dioxide and some vapor escape, but trap the ethylene gas.

Each holds about eight or nine pounds of mixed fruits, and works fastest if a piece of ripe fruit is put in with the green. But even all green fruit ripens in a few days at normal room temperatures away from sunlight.

The manufacturers recommend using the bowls when someone is home to check the contents daily and remove fruit that shows signs of spoilage to prevent contaminating the remainder. A thorough cleaning is advised if mold appears on any fruit in the bowl.

EACH PIECE of ripe fruit should be removed when it is ready to eat and refrigerated until serving time.

The bowls ripen the aforementioned peaches, plums, nectarines and pears; melons such as cantaloupes, honeydews and cranshaws; tomatoes, apples, bananas and avocados and exotica such as mangoes and papayas.

Ms. Saunders said she first proposed the idea while working for the tree fruit agency. She left there last year to join Blue Anchor Inc. She said she was helped in the technical research by Marie Ferre and Gordon Mitchell, both at UC in Davis. Ms. Ferre is an extension specialist in consumer marketing and Mitchell is a pomologist.

Delicious party punches need not be fattening

Low-calorie punches for the whole family are easy to make without adding sugar or using artificial sweeteners.

2 quart bottles club soda, chilled
1 orange, sliced

Steep tea in sunlight

Put Mother Nature and the sun to work brewing your tea — and save a little energy in the bargain, says August's Seventeen Magazine.

Tea steeped slowly in the sun has a nice, natural flavor, and even is easier than boiling water. First fill a clear glass canning or juice jar with cold water, then drop in the tea bags so the tags hang over the sides (allow two tea bags for each quart). Cover with a tight-fitting lid, and set the jar in strong sunlight. Brewing time will take from two to six hours, depending on the heat of the sun and time of year. When the tea is ready, remove the bags and drink it as is, or over ice. You can add more tea bags if you like it stronger, but keep in mind that sun-brewed tea goes further.

1. The Village of Arlington Heights will submit a Request for the Release of $319,000 of Title I Community Development Funds to the Department of Housing and Urban Development on Thursday, August 25, 1977.

2. Request for Funds relates to the Village of Arlington Heights' application under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

3. The Village of Arlington Heights proposes to use the above Community Development Entitlement Funds as follows:

a. Relocation of Sewer in Central Business District $140,000.00
b. Sidewalk construction $62,000.00
c. Acquisition of historical Property 60,000.0
d. Relocation expenses for the Acquisition of Historical Property 5,000.00

The remaining $32,000.00 of the Village's entitlement will be allocated for administrative expenses and contingencies

4. The Village of Arlington Heights has prepared an Environmental Review Record respecting each of the above activities. Said Reviews may be examined and copied by the public at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 North Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, Illinois, and in the Library of the Municipal Building, located at 33 South Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois.

5. Applicant herein described is the Village of Arlington Heights, located at 33 South Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois, 60005. The Chief Executive Officer is James T. Ryan, Village President

6. The Village of Arlington Heights will undertake the projects described above with block grant funds from the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development of Act of 1974.

The Village of Arlington Heights is certifying to HUD that the Village of Arlington Heights and James T. Ryan, Village President, in his official capacity as President, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to Environmental Reviews, decision-making and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the Village of Arlington Heights may use the block grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases:

a. That the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; or

b. That applicant's Environmental Review Record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process.

Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR, Part 58) and may be addressed to HUD at One North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois 60602. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objections received after September 12, 1977 will be considered by HUD.

Pollution Variance

Maple Hill Nursing Home, Long Grove, Illinois, has filed with the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and Illinois Pollution Control Board a Petition for Variance, Title IX of the Environmental Protection Act provides for individual variances upon proof by the Petitioner that compliance with specific provisions of the Act, related regulations and/or Board Opinions would impose upon the Petitioner an "arbitrary or unreasonable hardship." The Petitioner alleges such hardship and requests a variance until March, 1979 to allow the continued discharge of water pollution contaminants into Buffalo Creek.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency solicits the views of persons who might be adversely affected by the granting of the variance. Any comments or inquiries should be addressed to: Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, Variance Section, Division of Water Pollution Control, 2200 Churchill Road, Springfield, Illinois 62706 (217/782-2909). Formal objections to the petition may be filed in writing with the Clerk of the Illinois Pollution Control Board, 309 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois 60606

FANS OF ELVIS Presley began lining up at the gate of the singer's mansion in Memphis late Tuesday night to see the body during a two-hour public viewing. His death brought worldwide mourning.

Fans mob mansion to see Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The body of Elvis Presley was carried Wednesday behind the gates of Graceland Mansion — iron gates wrought with musical notes and a guitar — gates finally to be opened to the singer's adoring fans now that he is dead.

The city of Memphis lowered its flags to half staff, and President Carter lauded Presley as a symbol of the country's "vitality, rebelliousness and good humor."

Hundreds of fans hoping to get one final glimpse of the swivel-hipped singer who mesmerized his young female fans — and scared their parents — entwined flowers in the mansion gates while they waited to view the body.

THE WHITE hearse that returned the rock king's body from a funeral home slipped through a rear chain link gate to the mansion while hundreds of teary eyed fans — some of whom has kept a nightlong vigil in front of the mansion — raced to catch a glimpse of it.

A security guard leaped up on a brick wall to plead: "Please, for the family, go back — the family asks you to go back to the front gate.

"You've got to make them let the people see him more than two hours," one woman wailed — referring to the fact that Graceland's gates were to be opened for only two hours later in the day to allow fans to file past Presley's seamless copper casket.

President Carter's statement said the singer's death "deprives our country of a part of itself," and noted that "his music and his personality, fusing the styles of white country and black rhythm and blues, permanently changed the face of the American popular culture."

The city of Memphis was in mourning.

"THE WHOLE CITY is getting calls, there may be a shortage of flowers here," said Mrs. Anita Coghlin, owner of a florist shop across from Presley's mansion.

One flower arrangement, from British pop singer Elton John, stood in front of the gates, a card on it reading: "For all the inspiration."

Throughout the world, from London to Moscow and Tokyo and Tel Aviv, millions mourned the rock star, and another British pop star observed: "If there had been no Elvis, there would have been no Beatles."

An airline put on a special flight from Atlanta to Memphis to accommodate Presley fans streaming into the city, and every motel in Memphis was reported booked.

The family arrangel for fans to view the body from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. EDT. Private family services will be this afternoon with interment at Forest Hills Cemetery, where Presley's mother is buried. Officials predicted the route to the cemetery would be lined with tens of thousands of persons.

PRESLEY collapsed and died Tuesday on the red-carpeted floor of a bathroom near his bedroom on the second floor of his ornate, 18-room mansion. County medical examiner Dr. Jerry Francisco said an autopsy showed the cause of death was "cardiac arrythmia," or a severely irregular heartbeat.

Francisco said, however, the precise cause of Presley's death "may never be discovered."

Francisco said the rock singer suffered from high blood pressure and "some coronary artery disease."

Francisco and Presley's personal physician, Dr George C. Nichopoulos, said there were no signs of drugs in Presley's body, other than those he had taken for his illnesses.

Just hours before Presley died, however, one of the singer's former body guards told a Chicago Sun-Times reporter that Presley had a drug problem that was so severe that "I'm convinced he is in danger of losing his life."

DELBERT WEST, who helped guard Presley for 16 years, said the singer needed drugs to get up, drugs to perform, and drugs to go to the bathroom.

"Sometimes I couldn't believe it," West said in the Sun-Times interview. "Elvis would be sitting there, his eyes closed, his head hanging down, his mouth open. He was on pills all day long and he would give himself shots in the arm or the leg with those little plastic syringes."

The body of the 42-year-old singer was discovered by his road manager, Joe Esposito at 2:30 p.m. CDT Tuesday, but doctors said he may have died 5½ hour earlier.

Minutes after the world was advised of Presley's death, the Memphis telephone system was overwhelmed with thousands of calls from persons asking the same question: "Is it true?"

Fans gathered outside Baptist Hospital to weep, and disc jockeys around the world hauled out Presley's hits — "You Ain't Nothing but a Hound Dog," "Blue Suede Shoes" and "Heartbreak Hotel" — in a tribute to the former $40-a-week truck driver who changed the musical tastes of much of the world.

Fans stormed the record shops Wednesday, virtually cleaning the shelves of anything that had Presley's name on it.

Presley had been to the dentist Monday evening and had played racquetball on his private court with members of his entourage until 6 a.m. Tuesday. Nichopoulos said everyone in the house was asleep when Esposito found Presley lying face down on the bathroom floor.

The doctor said the mansion soon became a scene of "total confusion" with "everyone running around trying to find an ambulance." Nichopoulos said Esposito tried to give Presley mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and that he (Nichopoulos) took over when he reached the mansion minutes later.

During a seven-minute ambulance ride to Baptist Hospital, Nichopoulos pleaded with the singer: "Come on Presley, breathe — breathe for me."

After the singer was pronounced dead at the hospital, the doctor returned to Graceland to inform Presley's father, Vernon, that the rock star had died. The father broke the news to Presley's only child, Lisa Marie, 9, a daughter born to Presley by his divorced wife, Priscilla.

A 20-year-old Memphis beauty queen, Ginger Alden, who was soon to be Presley's second wife, was at the mansion when he died.

ALTHOUGH ELVIS boasted of his many loves, he married only once. Priscilla Beaulieu was married to Presley in Las Vegas in 1967.

Woman-loving Presley only married once

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Elvis Presley, who once boasted that he dated a different girl every night, was married only once.

He remained a bachelor until 1967, dating beautiful women like Ann-Margret and Natalie Wood.

"I'd be crazy to get married now," he said. "I like to play the field."

Elvis once told reporters, "Girls like me to look sullen, brooding, something of a menace. That's why I try not to smile in pictures. My fans don't like it —. You can't be sexy if you smile."

Before his heart stopped Tuesday, there were rumors that Elvis intended to marry Ginger Alden, a photogenic 20-year-old television model.

The only woman ever to marry Elvis met him when she was 14 and he was stationed with the army in Germany in 1959. Priscilla Beaulieu, whose stepfather was an Air Force officer, then moved back to Memphis to stay at the Presley mansion, Graceland.

Memphis laden with grief, tribute to favorite singer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — "Let's keep it moving," the burly cop growled, waving on motorists inching along Elvis Presley Boulevard in front of Presley's beloved Graceland Mansion Tuesday night.

Cars moved bumper to bumper along the four-lane street and a crowd clustered around the heavy wrought iron gates of the $1 million, 18-room mansion where the King of Rock 'n' Roll was found dead Tuesday of what later was diagnosed as an "erratic heartbeat."

Fred Stoll, for 14 years one of the guards of Graceland, was informed of the death at home while waiting for his night shift to begin at 6 p.m.

Tuesday night, he was at his guardpost just inside the gate, joined by Memphis police and deputies from the Shelby County Sheriff's office. They were there to prevent a possible rush on the grounds by grief-stricken Elvis fans.

Many in the crowd waiting outside the electrically-operated gates snapped pictures of Presley's relatives and friends passing through the gates, the main entrance to the 13-acre grounds surrounded by a 10-foot-high brick wall.

A sobbing Cricket Butler, 29, who identified herself as the president of a Memphis-based Elvis fan club, said she walked four miles from her home to Graceland after she was informed that an ambulance had been sent there.

"I didn't believe it until I called Elvis' cousin," she said. "I had been dreaming all week he was going to die. He was alone in his room. He just died (in the dream)," she said.

Illness not new to the aging star

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Although Elvis Presley was only 42 when he died of heart failure Tuesday, he had been no stranger to sickness for several years.

Fighting an often unsuccessful battle with overweight in his 30's, Presley was hospitalized five times in the past four years for various illnesses including hypertension and an enlarged colon.

The hypertension first was diagnosed in 1973 when Presley was admitted to Baptist Hospital for treatment of "recurrent pneumonia." After a 16-day stay, doctors reported the singer also was given medication for hypertension.

The last report of health problems prior to Presley's death came in April when he was hospitalized for four days for treatment of what doctors called "intestinal flu and fatigue."

Upon his release, Presley's personal physician and friend, Dr. George Nichopoulos, said the singer never had been in better health.

Presley's mother also died at the age of 42. The singer was serving as a private in the Army, stationed in Germany, when he was told that his mother was ill. She also was the victim of coronary trouble.

FANS OF ELVIS Presley began lining up at the gate of the singer's mansion in Memphis late Tuesday night to see the body during a two-hour public viewing. His death brought worldwide mourning.

Fans mob mansion to see Elvis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The body of Elvis Presley was carried Wednesday behind the gates of Graceland Mansion — iron gates wrought with musical notes and a guitar — gates finally to be opened to the singer's adoring fans now that he is dead.

The city of Memphis lowered its flags to half staff, and President Carter lauded Presley as a symbol of the country's "vitality, rebelliousness and good humor."

Hundreds of fans hoping to get one final glimpse of the swivel-hipped singer who mesmerized his young female fans — and scared their parents — entwined flowers in the mansion gates while they waited to view the body.

THE WHITE hearse that returned the rock king's body from a funeral home slipped through a rear chain link gate to the mansion while hundreds of teary eyed fans — some of whom has kept a nightlong vigil in front of the mansion — raced to catch a glimpse of it.

A security guard leaped up on a brick wall to plead: "Please, for the family, go back — the family asks you to go back to the front gate.

"You've got to make them let the people see him more than two hours," one woman wailed — referring to the fact that Graceland's gates were to be opened for only two hours later in the day to allow fans to file past Presley's seamless copper casket.

President Carter's statement said the singer's death "deprives our country of a part of itself," and noted that "his music and his personality, fusing the styles of white country and black rhythm and blues, permanently changed the face of the American popular culture."

The city of Memphis was in mourning.

"THE WHOLE CITY is getting calls, there may be a shortage of flowers here," said Mrs. Anita Coghlin, owner of a florist shop across from Presley's mansion.

Diana DuBroff would prefer people settle spats out of court

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Diana DuBroff strode through the lobby of the Hyatt Regency, checking her watch, waving to acquaintances and looking for all the world like the frazzled wife of an American Bar Association conventioneer.

But Ms. DuBroff wasn't spending her time at last week's Chicago ABA convention rushing to parties and queuing to see King Tut. The New York City attorney was too busy selling her colleagues on divorce insurance, elimination of "legalese" and a new nationwide program, the Practicing Justice Institute, that would teach laymen to settle legal disputes out of the courtroom.

If Ms. DuBroff's novel ideas sound decidedly unlawyerish, it's because she herself doesn't fit the staid, pinstripe mold. She has been fighting the traditional legal system for most of her 67 years — as a schoolteacher, longtime matrimonial lawyer and judge in New York's Small Claims Court. She's also been a Legal Aid Society member, founder of the Gregorians, an organization exploring the causes of juvenile delinquency, and an outspoken advocate of divorce reform.

Her latest venture is the Practicing Justice Institute, a group of psychologists, financial experts, religious counselors and other professionals who serve as pre-lawyers to confused and bitter clients. The institute will operate as a neighborhood panel, said Ms. DuBroff, with local residents paying a small fee to air their gripes. The first panel will be in Ms. DuBroff's own New York neighborhood, but she plans to expand the program across the country.

ACCORDING TO HER blueprint, a resident disgruntled over a property dispute with his neighbor would come to a weekly session, listen to the advice of several professionals and then — and only then — decide either to drop the lawsuit or hire an attorney.

The panel members would bone up on the law via videotapes that are now used to reach attorneys, she said, and they would have to pass a written examination before dispensing advice. The panelists would have access to several lawyers if needed, but their main function would be an educational one.

"Everything that lawyers learn from instructions on how to litigate to the art of cross-examination, can be learned by laymen, too," she maintained. "We're going to publish a 'primer' that will include the same kind of information that law books do — but ours will use graphic illustrations and simple concepts that any 10-year-old could understand."

The result?

"We'll begin to have clients that go to a lawyer only when they really need one — and when they do hire an attorney, it will be with an educated attitude," she said. "This is really nothing more than pre-legal counseling, but you won't have to spend $100 an hour in an attorney's office to get it."

An "educated attitude" could also be achieved by eliminating "legalese," she added. The legal profession, she maintains, has held on to antiquated, tongue-twisting terms to "keep the public mystified . . .after all, they have a vested interest in keeping their clients dependent on them."

"WHEN YOU THINK about it, it makes a lot of sense," she continued. "It starts with the legislature, because most of the lawmakers are lawyers. No wonder most people don't know what's going on."

The idea of electing new legislators and getting rid of complex jargon may raise eyebrows in the legal profession, but Ms. DuBroff's five-year push for divorce insurance has been as controversial with the general public as with lawyers, skyrocketing divorce rates notwithstanding.

Under the plan devised by Ms. DuBroff and espoused by several sociologists and anthropologists like Margaret Mead, newlyweds would take out insurance as a guarantee that their children would be provided for in the event of divorce.

"It's just a purely realistic solution for any couple who plans to have children," she said. "It's no secret that the divorce rate is getting higher all the time, and most parents are just not financially prepared for a divorce. There's no reason a divorced father should have to give up his house in the suburbs and move into a furnished room."

Whether the wage earner can't or won't pay, child support payments are often late or non-existent after a divorce, said Ms. DuBroff. Insurance would create a fund to cushion those payments and provide temporary income for the first few years after a divorce; if the couple does not split up, the money could be used for a vacation, college education or retirement fund.

MS. DuBROFF ENVISIONS the fund could be created in several ways. A major casualty insurance program, with regular premiums, is one option, payment made only if the couple divorced. Another alternative would be an enforced savings plan, with the money to be withdrawn either in the event of divorce or as "a reward to a good marriage" 20 years later.

Despite the advantages some kind of divorce insurance offers, Ms. DuBroff candidly admits there's still plenty of opposition, especially from insurance companies who argue divorce is an uninsurable risk.

"The plan has been generating much more interest in the past few years, but insurance companies haven't offered a policy because they believe the outcome of the marriage can be controlled by the husband and wife," she said.

What's needed now, she says, is research by insurance companies to determine the causes of divorce, as well as more young couples taking a hard-line approach to their own compatibility. But until starry-eyed lovers begin adding up the pluses and minuses of their relationship before the wedding vows, Ms. DuBroff is convinced that divorce insurance is the best way to cope with the end of a marriage.

Understandably, the legal profession has greeted Ms. DuBroff's proposals for change with something less.than a six-gun salute. The American Bar Association ignored her divorce insurance proposal; the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers "didn't say a word" about its chances for success.

BUT HER PROFESSION'S cold shoulder doesn't faze the feisty attorney in the least: "I've never sought acceptance from the bar . . . in fact, most lawyers are afraid of me because they think my ideas will be jeopardizing their incomes," she said.

"But my proposals would simply weed out those attorneys who are forgetting that they're dealing with human beings. That's what we've all got to get back to."

Over-counter drugs

Labels tell more

by CLARENCE ZAITZ

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—"Have you read any good labels lately?" is a public service message the Food and Drug Administration is using to encourage consumers of drugs and medicines to read before they swallow.

There is a lot of new information on them, partly because a group of 250 experts have, for five years, been reviewing all over-the-counter drugs marketed in the United States.

There are as many as 500,000 such drugs, according to Dr. John H. Moxley III, who recently retired as chairman of the group, which has never been formally named and goes simply as the FDA study group on over-the-counter drugs.

Moxley talked about the work in his office at the University of California School of Medicine, where he is dean.

"I am convinced," he said, "that when you and I go into a drugstore or supermarket to buy over-the-counter medicine, it is much more properly labeled, safer, and more effective than it was five years ago."

HE SAID pharmaceutical manufacturers had representation on the 17 review panels of experts in the project. In most cases, he said, they quietly reformulated their products, changed the advertising or removed them from the market.

"A number of the more popular medications for colds, headaches and upset stomachs have been quietly reformulated, and their advertising changed."

That action was taken, he said, because the drug industry became aware of the direction the review panels were taking and "brought the majority of their products into line with what they anticipated the new standards would be."

Alka Seltzer changed its advertising, Pepto Bismol changed its formulation, antibiotics were taken out of face soap — these are the kind of changes that have taken place by the hundreds.

"The whole point of the study," Moxley explained, "is truth in advertising." The safety of the drugs wasn't much in question, he said, because most had been used for many years.

"Our chief concern was that people were spending literally billions of dollars a year on patent medicines that no one had ever looked at to see if they were effective or if they were properly labeled."

"WHAT WE REALLY questioned: Are they (consumers) getting what they're paying for?"

Moxley, for one, was not interested in imposing more regulations. "I like as little regulation as possible," he said. "Present the facts, and let the consumers make their own judgments."

Though there are hundreds of thousands of nonprescriptic urugs, all are based on basically 200 active ingredients, according to Moxley, and that's why the study group was divided into 17 different panels, each studying certain ingredients.

The panels consisted of medical experts, consumers, manufacturers and others, and each had a professional staff.

It may be mid-1978 before the review is completed, and the recommendations accepted by the FDA.

"The major impact of our study," Moxley said, "has been to give consumers the assurance that what they are buying has been judged by an impartial group of scientists to be both safe and effective."

Also, he said, it has "forced drug advertisements to be more realistic so that the consumer can expect a greater 'truth in packaging' from drug manufacturers."

Vacationing at home can prove life's full of happy surprises

by ELOISE T. LEE

A friend told me about seeing a hitchhiker who held up a hand-lettered sign which said, "ANYWHERE."

"Of course he didn't really mean it," she observed wryly. "He meant 'Anywhere else.' "

Sometimes parents and kids feel that way about home — they just wish it were "somewhere else." If vacation doldrums are appearing in your family, don't settle for survival/boredom until school starts. Take action: Lazy August days and nights offer lots of possibilities for family treats.

• Duplicate at home a Grand Tour of Europe. Serve French onion soup (any cookbook has the recipe) for a make-believe visit to Paris; spaghetti while in Rome. We took an excursion boat along the Chicago lakefront last full moon and pretended we were on an ocean liner.

• Improvise a beach if there's none near — the essentials are a big beach towel spread out on the grass, a tall glass of lemonade ("What, no sand in it?"), and, if you can stand it, a radio going full blast (beaches have lots of radios these days.)

• Share a book. If the dozen you thought you'd read this summer eluded you, modify your goal and begin one now. Lazily. Stretched out in a hammock or flat on the living room floor. Put bookmarks in to keep the read-aloud places — nice sharing idea for after dinner.

• A spur-of-the-moment mini-tour to some place of interest nearby. Take a picnic with you.

• Let each member of the family, in turn, have a "day off." Hassle-free. Arrange to cover the chores he or she usually does. Let him get up when he wants to or not at all, according to his inclination. Don't make a single plan for him, and don't hold him accountable for the time.

One youngster may chose a day of pampering, another a day of solitude. Honor the spirit of the occasion and don't dissuade him from his preference. Just let him have the heady experience of running his universe to his own taste from sunup till bedtime. In exchange, of course, for a promise of reciprocity when each other family member has his/her "day off."

• Vary the number of people who do things together — do something alone, sometimes by twos, sometimes with everybody.

• Trade children with a friend — other people's children seem nicer when you're tired of your own! And your will seem that way to your friend.

I've often wondered why board games, jigsaw puzzles, the simple pleasures that pass the time at summer cottagts, are used so little at home. Maybe they're not accessible enough — or maybe you need to inventory what you have and make a few replacements.

To banish summer doldrums, be a little patient, a little imaginative, a little venturesome, a little innocent. Guard against whining, complaining, feeling bored, looking bored.

Right now is a good time to prove to your children that life is interesting, varied, full of happy surprises.

Don't turn up nose at real McCoy

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

Time was, the snooty antiques dealers wouldn't give shelf space to the subject of today's column — McCoy Pottery. American Art Pottery stopped, with the purists, with Rookwood and Weller, and any company which was still in business — well, just wasn't in business in collecting. Even the later Rookwoods, with the famous RP mark and exact Roman numeral dating, had to be at least pre-1930.

Then researchers and writers and collectors began to realize there were — and are — many other companies turning out interesting wares at prices new collectors could afford. McCoy is one of these, and it has an old and interesting history.

THERE HAS BEEN a McCoy engaged in pottery-making since the mid-1800s, but the pottery collected today began in 1899 in Roseville, Ohio, by James W. McCoy. In the beginning McCoy made utility wares, but within a few months production was expanded to include ornamental jugs, tankards, jardinieres (such as the three shown), pedestals, umbrella stands, etc. By 1902 daily production was about 5,000 pieces, and 100 workers were employed.

Then, as so often happened in glass and pottery plants, in April, 1903, the entire place was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt, and production continued. One of the first art lines was called Mont Pelee, which had a dull black iridescent finish. Much of this ware was destroyed in the fire. In the middle of 1906 the company introduced a matte green finish and a "standard brown underglaze" which was used by most potters of the time and was usually artist-decorated. McCoy called its standard brown "Loy-Nel-Art" made by combining the given names of McCoy's sons.

THE HISTORY OF McCoy shows many changes, various mergers and names, including Brush-McCoy, and another plant was started in 1911 at nearby Zanesville, Ohio. Seven years later that plant was also destroyed by fire and all operations were contained in the Roseville site.

Much of the early McCoy was distributed unmarked, and early marked pieces are, of course, snapped up by wise collectors. Later wares marked "McCoy" impressed or embossed are still quite plentiful and the prices not too high. Many of these are vases, planters, teapots, etc., in soft matte finishes and pastel colors. I seem to see a great many of these at flea markets, but that isn't unusual, because during the decade of the '40s McCoy was the largest producer of pottery in the country.

I have noticed in the department and hardware stores a line of McCoy kitchen ware which is quite attractive, consisting of mixing bowls, canister sets, mugs, etc., of a pretty creamy color with blue and mauve trim. This might be something to collect, for it is relatively inexpensive (as I recall, a mug was $2) and may be made for a limited time only. This is a free Grace Carolyn bottom floor tip, but don't blame me if you don't make a killing.

ONE WRITER ON art pottery, Dr. Paul Evans, says in his book "Art Pottery of the United States," "Little of the . . . McCoy art lines was ever of a very high quality, and the mass-produced late lines can hardly be considered art pottery. For this reason little of the work is ever found with marks. One exception is the Loy-Nel-Art ware." Now, personally, I am inclined to agree hedgingly with Dr. Evans, but then we used to sniff at the middle period Roseville Pottery also, and I just saw a pitcher I bought for 10 cents in 1950 sell for $28 at a show.

One couple who appreciates McCoy is the Huxfords, Bob and Sharon, who have written two books on pottery and are now engaged on the same project with McCoy. Their first two books are excellent, and I expect the same from their latest. Also of interest is a fascinating little newspaper which is growing in size and interest with every issue, "the glaze," which proclaims "if it's pottery, the glaze covers it." It's well worth the subscription price of $5.50 for 10 issues, available from P.O. Box 4929 G S., Springfield, Mo. 65804.

Diana DuBroff would prefer people settle spats out of court

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Diana DuBroff strode through the lobby of the Hyatt Regency, checking her watch, waving to acquaintances and looking for all the world like the frazzled wife of an American Bar Association conventioneer.

But Ms. DuBroff wasn't spending her time at last week's Chicago ABA convention rushing to parties and queuing to see King Tut. The New York City attorney was too busy selling her colleagues on divorce insurance, elimination of "legalese" and a new nationwide program, the Practicing Justice Institute, that would teach laymen to settle legal disputes out of the courtroom.

If Ms. DuBroff's novel ideas sound decidedly unlawyerish, it's because she herself doesn't fit the staid, pinstripe mold. She has been fighting the traditional legal system for most of her 67 years — as a schoolteacher, longtime matrimonial lawyer and judge in New York's Small Claims Court. She's also been a Legal Aid Society member, founder of the Gregorians, an organization exploring the causes of juvenile delinquency, and an outspoken advocate of divorce reform.

Her latest venture is the Practicing Justice Institute, a group of psychologists, financial experts, religious counselors and other professionals who serve as pre-lawyers to confused and bitter clients. The institute will operate as a neighborhood panel, said Ms. DuBroff, with local residents paying a small fee to air their gripes. The first panel will be in Ms. DuBroff's own New York neighborhood, but she plans to expand the program across the country.

ACCORDING TO HER blueprint, a resident disgruntled over a property dispute with his neighbor would come to a weekly session, listen to the advice of several professionals and then — and only then — decide either to drop the lawsuit or hire an attorney.

The panel members would bone up on the law via videotapes that are now used to reach attorneys, she said, and they would have to pass a written examination before dispensing advice. The panelists would have access to several lawyers if needed, but their main function would be an educational one.

"Everything that lawyers learn from instructions on how to litigate to the art of cross-examination, can be learned by laymen, too," she maintained. "We're going to publish a 'primer' that will include the same kind of information that law books do — but ours will use graphic illustrations and simple concepts that any 10-year-old could understand."

The result?

"We'll begin to have clients that go to a lawyer only when they really need one — and when they do hire an attorney, it will be with an educated attitude," she said. "This is really nothing more than pre-legal counseling, but you won't have to spend $100 an hour in an attorney's office to get it."

An "educated attitude" could also be achieved by eliminating "legalese," she added. The legal profession, she maintains, has held on to antiquated, tongue-twisting terms to "keep the public mystified . . .after all, they have a vested interest in keeping their clients dependent on them."

"WHEN YOU THINK about it, it makes a lot of sense," she continued. "It starts with the legislature, because most of the lawmakers are lawyers. No wonder most people don't know what's going on."

The idea of electing new legislators and getting rid of complex jargon may raise eyebrows in the legal profession, but Ms. DuBroff's five-year push for divorce insurance has been as controversial with the general public as with lawyers, skyrocketing divorce rates notwithstanding.

Under the plan devised by Ms. DuBroff and espoused by several sociologists and anthropologists like Margaret Mead, newlyweds would take out insurance as a guarantee that their children would be provided for in the event of divorce.

"It's just a purely realistic solution for any couple who plans to have children," she said. "It's no secret that the divorce rate is getting higher all the time, and most parents are just not financially prepared for a divorce. There's no reason a divorced father should have to give up his house in the suburbs and move into a furnished room."

Whether the wage earner can't or won't pay, child support payments are often late or non-existent after a divorce, said Ms. DuBroff. Insurance would create a fund to cushion those payments and provide temporary income for the first few years after a divorce; if the couple does not split up, the money could be used for a vacation, college education or retirement fund.

MS. DuBROFF ENVISIONS the fund could be created in several ways. A major casualty insurance program, with regular premiums, is one option, payment made only if the couple divorced. Another alternative would be an enforced savings plan, with the money to be withdrawn either in the event of divorce or as "a reward to a good marriage" 20 years later.

Despite the advantages some kind of divorce insurance offers, Ms. DuBroff candidly admits there's still plenty of opposition, especially from insurance companies who argue divorce is an uninsurable risk.

"The plan has been generating much more interest in the past few years, but insurance companies haven't offered a policy because they believe the outcome of the marriage can be controlled by the husband and wife," she said.

What's needed now, she says, is research by insurance companies to determine the causes of divorce, as well as more young couples taking a hard-line approach to their own compatibility. But until starry-eyed lovers begin adding up the pluses and minuses of their relationship before the wedding vows, Ms. DuBroff is convinced that divorce insurance is the best way to cope with the end of a marriage.

Understandably, the legal profession has greeted Ms. DuBroff's proposals for change with something less than a six-gun salute. The American Bar Association ignored her divorce insurance proposal; the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers "didn't say a word" about its chances for success.

BUT HER PROFESSION'S cold shoulder doesn't faze the feisty attorney in the least: "I've never sought acceptance from the bar . . . in fact, most lawyers are afraid of me because they think my ideas will be jeopardizing their incomes," she said.

"But my proposals would simply weed out those attorneys who are forgetting that they're dealing with human beings. That's what we've all got to get back to."

Over-counter drugs

Labels tell more

by CLARENCE ZAITZ

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—"Have you read any good labels lately?" is a public service message the Food and Drug Administration is using to encourage consumers of drugs and medicines to read before they swallow.

There is a lot of new information on them, partly because a group of 250 experts have, for five years, been reviewing all over-the-counter drugs marketed in the United States.

There are as many as 500,000 such drugs, according to Dr. John H. Moxley III, who recently retired as chairman of the group, which has never been formally named and goes simply as the FDA study group on over-the-counter drugs.

Moxley talked about the work in his office at the University of California School of Medicine, where he is dean.

"I am convinced," he said, "that when you and I go into a drugstore or supermarket to buy over-the-counter medicine, it is much more properly labeled, safer, and more effective than it was five years ago."

HE SAID pharmaceutical manufacturers had representation on the 17 review panels of experts in the project. In most cases, he said, they quietly reformulated their products, changed the advertising or removed them from the market.

"A number of the more popular medications for colds, headaches and upset stomachs have been quietly reformulated, and their advertising changed."

That action was taken, he said, because the drug industry became aware of the direction the review panels were taking and "brought the majority of their products into line with what they anticipated the new standards would be."

Alka Seltzer changed its advertising, Pepto Bismol changed its formulation, antibiotics were taken out of face soap — these are the kind of changes that have taken place by the hundreds.

"The whole point of the study," Moxley explained, "is truth in advertising." The safety of the drugs wasn't much in question, he said, because most had been used for many years.

"Our chief concern was that people were spending literally billions of dollars a year on patent medicines that no one had ever looked at to see if they were effective or if they were properly labeled."

"WHAT WE REALLY questioned: Are they (consumers) getting what they're paying for?"

Moxley, for one, was not interested in imposing more regulations. "I like as little regulation as possible," he said. "Present the facts, and let the consumers make their own judgments."

Though there are hundreds of thousands of nonprescriptio drugs, all are based on basically 200 active ingredients, according to Moxley, and that's why the study group was divided into 17 different panels, each studying certain ingredients.

The panels consisted of medical experts, consumers, manufacturers and others, and each had a professional staff.

It may be mid-1978 before the review is completed, and the recommendations accepted by the FDA.

"The major impact of our study," Moxley said, "has been to give consumers the assurance that what they are buying has been judged by an impartial group of scientists to be both safe and effective."

Also, he said, it has "forced drug advertisements to be more realistic so that the consumer can expect a greater 'truth in packaging' from drug manufacturers."

Vacationing at home can prove life's full of happy surprises

by ELOISE T. LEE

A friend told me about seeing a hitchhiker who held up a hand-lettered sign which said, "ANYWHERE."

"Of course he didn't really mean it," she observed wryly. "He meant 'Anywhere else.' "

Sometimes parents and kids feel that way about home — they just wish it were "somewhere else." If vacation doldrums are appearing in your family, don't settle for survival/boredom until school starts. Take action: Lazy August days and nights offer lots of possibilities for family treats.

• Duplicate at home a Grand Tour of Europe. Serve French onion soup (any cookbook has the recipe) for a make-believe visit to Paris; spaghetti while in Rome. We took an excursion boat along the Chicago lakefront last full moon and pretended we were on an ocean liner.

• Improvise a beach if there's none near — the essentials are a big beach towel spread out on the grass, a tall glass of lemonade ("What, no sand in it?"), and, if you can stand it, a radio going full blast (beaches have lots of radios these days.)

• Share a book. If the dozen you thought you'd read this summer eluded you, modify your goal and begin one now. Lazily. Stretched out in a hammock or flat on the living room floor. Put bookmarks in to keep the read-aloud places — nice sharing idea for after dinner.

• A spur-of-the-moment mini-tour to some place of interest nearby. Take a picnic with you.

• Let each member of the family, in turn, have a "day off." Hassle-free. Arrange to cover the chores he or she usually does. Let him get up when he wants to or not at all, according to his inclination. Don't make a single plan for him, and don't hold him accountable for the time.

One youngster may chose a day of pampering, another a day of solitude. Honor the spirit of the occasion and don't dissuade him from his preference. Just let him have the heady experience of running his universe to his own taste from sunup till bedtime. In exchange, of course, for a promise of reciprocity when each other family member has his/her "day off."

• Vary the number of people who do things together — do something alone, sometimes by twos, sometimes with everybody.

• Trade children with a friend — other people's children seem nicer when you're tired of your own! And your will seem that way to your friend.

I've often wondered why board games, jigsaw puzzles, the simple pleasures that pass the time at summer cottagts, are used so little at home. Maybe they're not accessible enough — or maybe you need to inventory what you have and make a few replacements.

To banish summer doldrums, be a little patient, a little imaginative, a little venturesome, a little innocent. Guard against whining, complaining, feeling bored, looking bored.

Right now is a good time to prove to your children that life is interesting, varied, full of happy surprises.

Don't turn up nose at real McCoy

Grace Carolyn

Collecting

Time was, the snooty antiques dealers wouldn't give shelf space to the subject of today's column — McCoy Pottery. American Art Pottery stopped, with the purists, with Rookwood and Weller, and any company whch was still in business — well, just wasn't in business in collecting. Even the later Rookwoods, with the famous RP mark and exact Roman numeral dating, had to be at least pre-1930.

Then researchers and writers and collectors began to realize there were — and are — many other companies turning out interesting wares at prices new collectors could afford. McCoy is one of these, and it has an old and interesting history.

THERE HAS BEEN a McCoy engaged in pottery-making since the mid-1800s, but the pottery collected today began in 1899 in Roseville, Ohio, by James W. McCoy. In the beginning McCoy made utility wares, but within a few months production was expanded to include ornamental jugs, tankards, jardinieres (such as the three shown), pedestals, umbrella stands, etc. By 1902 daily production was about 5,000 pieces, and 100 workers were employed.

Then, as so often happened in glass and pottery plants, in April, 1903, the entire place was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt, and production continued. One of the first art lines was called Mont Pelee, which had a dull black iridescent finish. Much of this ware was destroyed in the fire. In the middle of 1906 the company introduced a matte green finish and a "standard brown underglaze" which was used by most potters of the time and was usually artist-decorated. McCoy called its standard brown "Loy-Nel-Art" made by combining the given names of McCoy's sons.

THE HISTORY OF McCoy shows many changes, various mergers and names, including Brush-McCoy, and another plant was started in 1911 at nearby Zanesville, Ohio. Seven years later that plant was also destroyed by fire and all operations were contained in the Roseville site.

Much of the early McCoy was distributed unmarked, and early marked pieces are, of course, snapped up by wise collectors. Later wares marked "McCoy" impressed or embossed are still quite plentiful and the prices not too high. Many of these are vases, planters, teapots, etc., in soft matte finishes and pastel colors. I seem to see a great many of these at flea markets, but that isn't unusual, because during the decade of the '40s McCoy was the largest producer of pottery in the country.

I have noticed in the department and hardware stores a line of McCoy kitchen ware which is quite attractive, consisting of mixing bowls, canister sets, mugs, etc., of a pretty creamy color with blue and mauve trim. This might be something to collect, for it is relatively inexpensive (as I recall, a mug was $2) and may be made for a limited time only. This is a free Grace Carolyn bottom floor tip, but don't blame me if you don't make a killing.

ONE WRITER ON art pottery, Dr. Paul Evans, says in his book "Art Pottery of the United States," "Little of the . . . McCoy art lines was ever of a very high quality, and the mass-produced late lines can hardly be considered art pottery. For this reason little of the work is ever found with marks. One exception is the Loy-Nel-Art ware." Now, personally, I am inclined to agree hedgingly with Dr. Evans, but then we used to sniff at the middle period Roseville Pottery also, and I just saw a pitcher I bought for 10 cents in 1950 sell for $28 at a show.

Chewing gum won't banish bad breath

I have just started chewing gum because I have bad breath. I never chewed gum before. Lately I accidentally swallow the gum. I swallow about two pieces a week. Will it hurt me? And does it really take four years for it to digest or get out of your stomach?

No, it doesn't take four years to eliminate the gum. It passes through the digestive system on schedule. It won't harm you in that regard. If it is sweetened gum, it may not be so good for your teeth.

Gum chewers also tend to swallow air — giving rise to gas problems which you might not like either.

Finally, chewing gum will not cure bad breath You may be able to mask some odor momentarily, but most persistent cases of bad breath are more complicated than that It can bt from infected tissues around the edges of the teeth, from sinus problems or even from odors of chemicals exhaled from your lungs. You can't eliminate bad breath from chemicals in your exhaled air by gum chewing or by mouth wash.

I think you need to have a better understanding about bad breath so I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-4, Halitosis: The Breath Problem and What to Do About It Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I am a woman in her early 50s and have been suffering severe heavy bleeding with my menstrual periods for the last few years. I have a large fibroid tumor and was advised to undergo a hysterectomy at that time but I refused.

I want to know what I can do to lessen the heavy bleeding. I must change every hour for two days and during work-time this isn't possible. Can I take water pills or have the menstrual blood removed safely by suction each month? How long is this condition expected to last? And, how much is the tumor expected to shrink?

The excessive bleeding is caused by your fibroid tumor. One of the good indications for removal of a fibroid tumor is a tumor that causes excessive bleeding. That is one way you could solve your problem

The bleeding is not likely to stop until after you have stopped having menstrual periods The location of the tumor has a lot to do with the bleeding and the seeping of blood will be constant during the menses That means suction isn't the answer Water pills have nothing at all to do with preventing bleeding and won't help in that regard.

The tumor may shrink when you go through your menopause and cease to produce as much female hormones as you do now. But you have no guarantee of that. Besides, if you need and take ftmale hormones for support through the menopause phase, this will keep the fibroid from shrinking. It may even increase in size

It's your fibroid, but you might consider taking your doctor's advice

We were growing a little wtary of that dear but bland vegetable, yellow crookneck squash. For years I'd served it with butter and either thinly sliced onions or minced garlic. Decided to experiment, and the resulting dish was super After washing the squash, dropping thickly sliced pieces into lightly salted water and boiling them for 15 minutes, I drained off the water. Then, while the squash still sat in a hot pan, I addel a little butter and sprinkled two tablespoons finely chopped provolone cheese over them. Turned the heat on low, and in one minute we had a taste treat. No leftovers either!

Make your own shoes

SEDGWICK, Maine (UPI) — You can make yourself a pair of shoes for less than $25, and they'll probably outlast any shoes you buy, says cobbler Chris Lewis Clark.

Ms. Clark, 36, makes her own shoes. For about seven years she has earned her living by making shoes for other people. Now she has written "The Make-it-yourstlf Shoe Book" (Knopf, $10 hardcover, $4.95 paper).

She went into shoemaking as a hobby about a year after she quit teaching English in California.

"And a cheap hobby it is," said Ms. Clark, who uses hand tools which cost only about $20.

"THE LEATHER costs come up to about $7 a pair, and you can make shoes right in your own living room."

She is self-taught ". . . because there is practically no information available to anyone who wants to make shoes by hand.

"I felt other people shouldn't have to waste six years of their life to learn the process."

The book explains the shoemaking process step-by-step, with many illustrations and sources for materials and supplies.

Ms. Clark's custom-made shots go for $30 to $95 per pair.

Mr. and Mrs. David A. Phipps

Karen Krebs – David A. Phipps

Karen Krebs and David A. Phipps were married at 7 p.m. July 23 in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, and then greeted 90 guests at a reception in the Des Plaines home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt H. Krebs.

For the candlelight, double ring ceremony, Karen wore a white nylon gown with a long bouffant veil and carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis.

Her three attendants were gowned alike in multicolored pastel floral prints and carried yellow fuji mums. Susie Proctor, Richton Park, was maid of honor and the bride's sisters, Janet and Liesel, were bridesmaids.

THE GROOM IS the son of Mrs. K. C. Cox and C. F. Phipps of Bel Air, Md. David attended North Carolina University and is now working at Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. in Mount Prospect.

He chose John Brainard, Palatine, as his best man and John O'Briskie, Schaumburg, as groomsman.

After a week's honeymoon in the Canadian Rockies, the newlyweds are living in Rolling Meadows.

There's always risk of pregnancy

Listen to Marian

Dear Marian,

My girlfriend and I are having an argument. She says it's impossible to get pregnant the first time you do it. I say it doesn't matter. Who is right? We're both 13.

A K.

Dear A. K.,

You are right, it is quite possible for a girl to become pregnant the first tume she has sexual intercourse.

Dear Marian,

My father is dead and my mother works all day. I have an older brother who works and helps my mother pay for the house. My brother has a good friend who comes over a lot. Lately a couple of times my brother's friend has come over when my brother is not home and instead of leaving he hugs me and tries to kiss me and stuff. I really hate it, but I'm afraid to tell my brother bicause he has a bad temper and I'm afraid he'll beat the guy up. How can I get him to leave me alone? P.S. I'm 12 years old.

S. J.

Dear S. J.:

Tell your brother. The creep doesn't deserve any consideration from you. If you don't have your brother get rid of this guy, you will find yourself in a lot of trouble.

Today on TV

Diane Mermigas

American family strongest TV star

The American family is alive and well on television this fall — blazing rugged pioneer trails, tightening their belts in a contemporary Midwest industrial town and tackling life's problems in a comfortable suburban home.

It may be the networks' answer to yanking off gratuitously violent programs and replacing them with something wholesome in the unofficial family hours of prime time.

The family has become the most popular forum for drama and comedy on television in the new fall season. It is the kind of form that attracts a lot of varied viewers and, therefore, a wealth of advertising dollars which spells ratings and profits for the networks.

Television families to date have proved valuable commodities to the networks. There are the Cunninghams on "Happy Days," a typical 1950s family which has "adopted" the Fonz and whose patriarch owns a hardware store.

"The Jeffersons," as they say, are "movin' on up," the "Little House on the Prairie" clan is still settling the wilderness and "The Brady Bunch," as American - as - apple pie as they are, will continue to show up in late afternoon reruns and occasional prime time specials.

Of course, "All in the Family's" Bunker clan was the one that helped to air out every viewing family's hang-ups. In more recent seasons, however, television producers have dared to take a serious, heartfelt look at family life in such highly rated series as "Family" and "The Waltons," which will trudge along this coming season without the presence of John-Boy (Richard Thomas) who is taking his talents to feature films.

Perhaps as a throwback to the underlying theme of "My Three Sons" (which WGN-TV, Channel 9 plans to begin rebroadcasting in the fall), television has lately been profiling single-parent families with much success in series like "One Day at a Time."

The chance to empathize, sympathize and identify with the problems and experiences of the Waltons, the Cunninghams, the Franklins, the Jeffersons and other families seems overwhelmingly appealing to the American viewing audience.

So, it is little wonder that the networks are offering another heavy dose of more of the same in the way of new shows this fall.

ABC has already launched one of its family shows, "Eight is Enough," that splendidly meshes comedy with drama in the lives of a newspaper writing father, his eight offsprings and their pets.

A mother (played by Diana Hyland) completed the scene when the hour-long show was first launched as a spring pilot. With the untimely death of Ms. Hyland, the mother has been written out of the script and will be replaced by a live-in tutor and housekeeper.

"I think our show has got distinction. We try not to be too moralizing or goodie, goodie," said Dick Van Patten who plays the part of the father, Tom Bradford.

"There's plenty there for everyone to identify with because there are eight children, all of different ages. You can cry with us one minute and laugh with us the next," he said.

Van Patten admits that there seems to be a resurgence of family-fare.

"The family seems very secure on television and it's a trend now. It's just the time for family shows again. People can tune into a family show each week and care and have feelings about what they see. They can't do it with action shows. They are more fantasy," he said.

"CBS's contribution to the family circuit will be "The Fitzpatricks," a blue-collar, Irish-Catholic family of six living in Flint, Mich., where the father is employed as a steel worker. The only problem with the logistics is that there aren't any steel mills in Flint, Mich.

But, no matter. This is television, remember.

Mother Maggie works part-time as a waitress to help make ends meet but, the suburban condition takes hold, and she finds herself pregnant. It's the king of head-banging, insult-tossing family that is forever over-extending itself financially but managing to get by and its dinner table is always set for an extra little fellow — a black playmate from down the street.

Philip Mandelker, executive producer of "The Fitzpatricks" said he and the show's writers have spent time in Flint observing the lifestyle "so that we can present a very accurate picture of family life there. Not the kind of family people wish they were, but the kind of family they actually are," he said.

"Mulligan's Stew" is NBC's contemporary family series premiering this fall, billed as a family of nine that spans everything from light-hearted sibling rivalry to painful and serious encounters with reality.

Elinor Donahue (veteran of the "Father Knows Best" seres) portrays the mother of three natural children and four who were inherited from deceased relatives. The father, a high school teacher and football coach, is forever attempting to stretch his salary far enough to feed and clothe nine people.

"This new television family of mine is different from the one I starred in with Robert Young, but times have changed. Families talk about more serious things with each other in real life and on television. They encounter life head on," Ms. Donahue said.

"That's why I think family shows are so popular now. People are just taking a look at themselves, really."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• David Soul, the Hutch part of "Starsky and Hutch," hosts his own first variety special at 7 p.m. an Channel 7 starring England Dan and John Ford Coley, and Dick Clark.

• John Kenneth Galbraith winds up his "Age of Uncertainty" series at 8 p.m. on Channel 11 with a round table discussion on economics that includes Henry Kissinger, Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham and historian Arthur Achlesinger.

Dicken's life highlights Channel 11's summer fest

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Charles Dickens' life was filled with the same kind of anxieties, joys and colorful characters that have made his fictitious novels timeless works of pleasure.

Dickens' rags-to-riches career and personal life unfold in a 10-part series, "Dickens of London," which opens a new season of "Masterpiece Theater" on WTTW, Channel 11, and is part of the public broadcasting station's Midsummer Festival, Friday through Aug. 28.

The opening hour-long episode of the new series presents a lot of high contrast as an ill and aged Dickens allows his overactive imagination to bring him back to his childhood days. The flashbacks tell the story of the author's youth, heavily steeped in the poverty and social outcasting that highlighted his novels.

It is a very close and honest but somewhat pathetic relationship that is revealed between young Dickens, one of eight children, and his father, John. Charles is an articulate and imaginative boy who serves as the bright spot in his father's dismal, frustrating life.

While the elder Dickens encourages his son to aspire to the best things in life, he himself practices the irresponsible, lowly manners of a scoundrel.

There are scenes of father and son carrying on brisk conversation in the natural beauty of the English countryside contrasted with scenes of them contemplating the family's financial straits as they walk the filthy, dark back streets of London.

Three different actors take on the task of portraying Dickens in his yough, adulthood and old age. The series will prove how Dickens' own life experiences greatly influenced his socially conscious writings like "Oliver Twist" and "Nicholas Nickleby," which served to bring about some major reforms to benefit London's poor.

"Dickens of London," will premier on the final day of the Midsummer Festival, Aug. 28, at 8 p.m.

Another new series that will make its premiere during the festival is "Eyewitness," a "60 Minutes" kind of indepth news show that probes recent and controversial news stories.

The first hour-long episode, Aug. 26, at 9 p.m., recreates the circumstances of a South Carolina airplane crash in 1974 based on the inflight recording of cockpit conversations. The segment reveals serious lapses in awareness on the part of the cockpit crew that will be startling to the average airline passenger.

"Eyewitness" also reaccounts a 1975 Boston trial from the transcripts in which the male defendant was acquitted on charges of prostitution because state law regarding the offense was written only in reference to females — providing a striking example of legislated inequality between the sexes.

The final part of the show, the first of four, will recreate some of the courtroom drama dealing with the 1976 Karen Ann Quinlan trial and her parents' request to turn off the life support systems that kept her alive.

Channel 11's Midsummer Festival also will be highlighted by specials, rebroadcasts of several performances, the final episode of some ongoing series and live coverage of the "1977 Drum Corps International Championship."

WTTW-TV will push for subscriptions during the nine-day Midsummer Festival. Its current 120,000 subscribers provide a majority of the funds that the station needs to operate. Today on TV

Diane Mermigas

American family strongest TV star

The American family is alive and well on television this fall — blazing rugged pioneer trails, tightening their belts in a contemporary Midwest industrial town and tackling life's problems in a comfortable suburban home.

It may be the networks' answer to yanking off gratuitously violent programs and replacing them with something wholesome in the unofficial family hours of prime time.

The family has become the most popular forum for drama and comedy on television in the new fall season. It is the kind of form that attracts a lot of varied viewers and, therefore, a wealth of advertising dollars which spells ratings and profits for the networks.

Television families to date have proved valuable commodities to the networks. There are the Cunninghams on "Happy Days," a typical 1950s family which has "adopted" the Fonz and whose patriarch owns a hardware store.

"The Jeffersons," as they say, are "movin' on up," the "Little House on the Prairie" clan is still settling the wilderness and "The Brady Bunch," as American - as - apple pie as they are, will continue to show up in late afternoon reruns and occasional prime time specials.

Of course, "All in the Family's" Bunker clan was the one that helped to air out every viewing family's hang-ups. In more recent seasons, however, television producers have dared to take a serious, heartfelt look at family life in such highly rated series as "Family" and "The Waltons," which will trudge along this coming season without the presence of John-Boy (Richard Thomas) who is taking his talents to feature films.

Perhaps as a throwback to the underlying theme of "My Three Sons" (which WGN-TV, Channel 9 plans to begin rebroadcasting in the fall), television has lately been profiling single-parent families with much success in series like "One Day at a Time."

The chance to empathize, sympathize and identify with the problems and experiences of the Waltons, the Cunninghams, the Franklins, the Jeffersons and other families seems overwhelmingly appealing to the American viewing audience.

So, it is little wonder that the networks are offering another heavy dose of more of the same in the way of new shows this fall.

ABC has already launched one of its family shows, "Eight is Enough," that splendidly meshes comedy with drama in the lives of a newspaper writing father, his eight offsprings and their pets.

A mother (played by Diana Hyland) completed the scene when the hour-long show was first launched as a spring pilot. With the untimely death of Ms. Hyland, the mother has been written out of the script and will be replaced by a live-in tutor and housekeeper.

"I think our show has got distinction. We try not to be too moralizing or goodie, goodie," said Dick Van Patten who plays the part of the father, Tom Bradford.

"There's plenty there for everyone to identify with because there are eight children, all of different ages. You can cry with us one minute and laugh with us the next," he said.

Van Patten admits that there seems to be a resurgence of family-fare.

"The family seems very secure on television and it's a trend now. It's just the time for family shows again. People can tune into a family show each week and care and have feelings about what they see. They can't do it with action shows. They are more fantasy," he said.

"CBS's contribution to the family circuit will be "The Fitzpatricks," a blue-collar, Irish-Catholic family of six living in Flint, Mich., where the father is employed as a steel worker. The only problem with the logistics is that there aren't any steel mills in Flint, Mich.

But, no matter. This is television, remember.

Mother Maggie works part-time as a waitress to help make ends meet but, the suburban condition takes hold, and she finds herself pregnant. It's the king of head-banging, insult-tossing family that is forever over-extending itself financially but managing to get by and its dinner table is always set for an extra little fellow — a black playmate from down the street.

Philip Mandelker, executive producer of "The Fitzpatricks" said he and the show's writers have spent time in Flint observing the lifestyle "so that we can present a very accurate picture of family life there. Not the kind of family people wish they were, but the kind of family they actually are," he said.

"Mulligan's Stew" is NBC's contemporary family series premiering this fall, billed as a family of nine that spans everything from light-hearted sibling rivalry to painful and serious encounters with reality.

Elinor Donahue (veteran of the "Father Knows Best" seres) portrays the mother of three natural children and four who were inherited from deceased relatives. The father, a high school teacher and football coach, is forever attempting to stretch his salary far enough to feed and clothe nine people.

"This new television family of mine is different from the one I starred in with Robert Young, but times have changed. Families talk about more serious things with each other in real life and on television. They encounter life head on," Ms. Donahue said.

"That's why I think family shows are so popular now. People are just taking a look at themselves, really."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- David Soul, the Hutch part of "Starsky and Hutch," hosts his own first variety special at 7 p.m. an Channel 7 starring England Dan and John Ford Coley, and Dick Clark.
- John Kenneth Galbraith winds up his "Age of Uncertainty" series at 8 p.m. on Channel 11 with a round table discussion on economics that includes Henry Kissinger, Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham and historian Arthur Achlesinger.

Dicken's life highlights Channel 11's summer fest

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Charles Dickens' life was filled with the same kind of anxieties, joys and colorful characters that have made his fictitious novels timeless works of pleasure.

Dickens' rags-to-riches career and personal life unfold in a 10-part series, "Dickens of London," which opens a new season of "Masterpiece Theater" on WTTW, Channel 11, and is part of the public broadcasting station's Midsummer Festival, Friday through Aug. 28.

The opening hour-long episode of the new series presents a lot of high contrast as an ill and aged Dickens allows his overactive imagination to bring him back to his childhood days. The flashbacks tell the story of the author's youth, heavily steeped in the poverty and social outcasting that highlighted his novels.

It is a very close and honest but somewhat pathetic relationship that is rtvealed between young Dickens, one of eight children, and his father, John. Charles is an articulate and imaginative boy who serves as the bright spot in his father's dismal, frustrating life.

While the elder Dickens encourages his son to aspire to the best things in life, he himself practices the irresponsible, lowly manners of a scoundrel.

There are scenes of father and son carrying on brisk conversation in the natural beauty of the English countryside contrasted with scenes of them contemplating the family's financial straits as they walk the filthy, dark back streets of London.

Three different actors take on the task of portraying Dickens in his yough, adulthood and old age. The series will prove how Dickens' own life experiences greatly influenced his socially conscious writings like "Oliver Twist" and "Nicholas Nickleby," which served to bring about some major reforms to benefit London's poor.

"Dickens of London," will premier on the final day of the Midsummer Festival, Aug. 28, at 8 p.m.

Another new series that will make its premiere during the festival is "Eyewitness," a "60 Minutes" kind of indepth news show that probes recent and controversial news stories.

The first hour-long episode, Aug. 26, at 9 p.m., recreates the circumstances of a South Carolina airplane crash in 1974 based on the inflight recording of cockpit conversations. The segment reveals serious lapses in awareness on the part of the cockpit crew that will be startling to the average airline passenger.

"Eyewitness" also reaccounts a 1975 Boston trial from the transcripts in which the male defendant was acquitted on charges of prostitution because state law regarding the offense was written only in reference to females — providing a striking example of legislated inequality between the sexes.

The final part of the show, the first of four, will recreate some of the courtroom drama dealing with the 1976 Karen Ann Quinlan trial and her parents' request to turn off the life support systems that kept her alive.

Channel 11's Midsummer Festival also will be highlighted by specials, rebroadcasts of several performances, the final episode of some ongoing series and live coverage of the "1977 Drum Corps International Championship."

WTTW-TV will push for subscriptions during the nine-day Midsummer Festival. Its current 120,000 subscribers provide a majority of the funds that the station needs to operate. The Chicago station, which boasts an estimated 1.7 million viewing households that comprise about 59 per cent of the Chicago area viewing audience, is the most watched public broadcasting station in the country.

Old Bumble Puppy bombs

The Unlucky Expert has cornered us again. This time he was willing to take some of the blame for his troubles on his own shoulders.

"I was playing with Old Bumble Puppy as my partner. I had told him last week that when declarer bid two suits, it was frequently worthwhile to open a trump. I neglected to point out that when dummy had shown no interest in either suit and one suit remained unbid, it would be best to open that suit.

"In any event he opened a trump against the four spade contract. It took South approximately ten seconds to pull trump, knock out the ace of diamonds and collect twelve tricks."

We agreed that Bumble Puppy should have opened a heart and when diamonds were led he must duck the first round. Therefore, we absolved the Unlucky Expert of any real blame. Old Bumble Puppy was brought up in the school that never led away from a king unless unfortunate enough to have been dealt all four of the royal gentlemen.

So, although this hand really cried out for a heart lead we feel that Bumble Puppy would not have led that suit under any circumstances.

Ask Andy

Light energy moving in waves of particles

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1971 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Michael Belden, 12, of New Hartford, N.Y., for his question:

HOW IS LIGHT PRODUCED?

Can you imagine what the earth would be like without light? Only part of the problem would be the fact that we wouldn't be able to see, since light that comes to our eyes makes sight possible.

The simple truth is we couldn't live without light since we would have no food. Green plants use the light from the sun to grow and make food, and all of the food we eat comes either from plants or animals that eat the plants.

Light is a form of energy that travels freely through space. Sources either can be natural or artificial, but all of it comes from tiny particles of matter called atoms. Atoms release and absorb energy in tiny bundles called photons. Light consists of streams of photons.

Think of it this way: the higher the energy level an atom reaches before it drops back and releases a photon, the more energy that photon will have. All photons do not have the same amount of energy. Photons with different amounts of energy make up different colors of light.

Blue light requires the most energetic light photons while red light takes the least. White light takes a mixture of photons with energies that cover the whole range of visible light. As a result, white light consists of all the colors of light.

Atoms can be excited in a number of ways to give off photons. It can be done with heat, for example. A hot piece of iron taken from a furnace will glow white-hot. The white light changes to red as the iron cools a bit and becomes red-hot.

The sun, of course, is our most important source of light. The energy that excites atoms in the sun to emit photons comes from atomic reactions inside the sun that change matter into energy.

Photons of light act much like streams of particles, such as bullets being fired from a machine gun. They also act like waves, such as ripples on a pond. Scientists debated for many years whether light consisted of particles or waves. They couldn't understand how it could be both, yet they could not explain all they knew about light in terms of either waves or particles.

Although light seems to be both a particle and a wave, it is perhaps easier sometimes to think of light as simply particles or simply waves.

Whole books have been written on how light is produced, and Andy hopes that at least the surface of the subject has been scratched in these few lines.

Andy sends the book 200 Illustrated Science Experiments to Kenny Alongi, 11, of Island Lake, Ill., for his question:

WHY DO ONIONS MAKE YOU CRY?

Did you know the onion belongs to the amaryllis family? It's true. Onions often are added to meat dishes and salads because they are flavorful. Actually, however, they aren't too high in vitamin content or energy value.

Onions have a strong taste and odor. The odor comes from a mildly stimulating oil that readily forms into a vapor. As the vapor escapes into the air when the onion is either cut or peeled, it can affect nerves in the nose connected with the eyes, and the vapor can bring a flow of tears.

Onions first grew in Mongolia but were brought to North America about 1750. They are grown in California, Idaho, Michigan, New York, Oregon and Texas as well as some Canadian provinces.

Law tough on porno headed to suburbs

by KURT BAER

New county antipornography laws, using stringent zoning codes and neighborhood vigilance, would "make it difficult, if not impossible" for pornographers to move their businesses to the suburbs, Cook County officials said Wednesday.

"Operators of pornographic businesses will have to stand the light of public scrutiny in attempting to prove their business is beneficial to the area," Alex Seith, Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals said, speaking at a public hearing on proposed anti-smut amendments to the county zoning code.

The amendments would force operators of adult book stores, movie theaters, and nude dancing clubs to appear at a public hearing in the area where they want to do business.

"I cannot think of any village that would come before us (the zoning board) and say, 'I favor this business.' Nor do I know of any homeowners' group in Cook County that would say so," Seith said.

A PUBLIC HEARING before the zoning board would be part of a requirement that adult entertainment businesses apply for a special-use permit.

The ordinance would prohibit any such businesses within 1,000 feet of each other, or within 1,000 feet of a residential neighborhood. They would be restricted to just one of the county's eight commercial zoning categories.

Existing pornographic businesses would have only a limited amount of time with which to comply with the requirements or shut down, Seith said.

The idea is to make pornographic business so difficult that entrepreneurs can't prosper, officials said.

Steven Lenet, Palatine village planner, testifying at Wednesday's hearing, recommended the ordinance be made even more restrictive. Pornography shops also should be banned within 1,000 feet of schools, churches, commuter stops and businesses holding a liquor license, he said.

"THE VILLAGE of Palatine strongly supports this ordinance," Lenet told the zoning board and nine county commissioners present Wednesday.

Adult book stores and the 53 Drive-in movie theater near Rand Road and Rte. 53 in unincorporated Palatine Township have been a source of complaints by Palatine area residents.

The county ordinance would apply to the Rand Road-Rte. 53 area, Lenet said.

The Palatine Township board of auditors has voted unanimously to support the county plan.

Anthony Robert Martin-Trigona, who is opposing Seith for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, attacked the ordinance as a veiled attempt to export pornography from Chicago to the suburbs by legalizing it in certain zones.

"YOU WILL HAVE pornography in the suburbs as surely as you have toad stools in the spring if you pass this ordinance," Martin-Trigona said.

He was ruled out of order by County Board Pres. George Dunne when he said the crime syndicate was behind the proposed ordinance.

Morris Alexander, assistant state's attorney, said the amendments were "exceptionally good and would not be

Fame—too big a burden for Elvis?

by DIANE MERMIGAS

While radio disc jockeys, pop culture experts, writers and fans eulogized Elvis Presley Wednesday, much of the country's conscience was troubled by reports of Presley's recent discontent.

The memories Elvis has left behind have been tainted with images of an entertainer who never found happiness despite success and fortune. He was never really able to cope with his rags-to-riches fame.

Ironically, last week's release of "Elvis: What Happened?," a book written by the 42-year-old performer's former bodyguard, Delbert (Sonny) West, reinforced by long-rumored pictures of a pill-popping, reclusive and discontented Elvis. The book projects a harsh, bewildering image that also surrounded Judy Garland, Janis Joplin, Jimi Hendrix and Freddie Prinze in premature death.

PSYCHOLOGY AND pop culture professors at Chicago area universities Wednesday called it a phenomenon of the profession.

"It seems that when a movie or music star does something or says something, it is bigger than life. Ptople come to see them as demigods and not as human beings. They read about them and think they know them, and when they die, fans suffer a great loss," said Philip Brickman, assoc. professor of psychology at Northwestern University.

"All I know about Elvis is what I have read or seen from time to time. But, it's easy enough to understand how his quick rise to stardom could have been the source of any unhappiness he might have known. Sudden changes in our lives, whether good or bad, bring with them great depression or euphoria. And they also bring a great amount of stress," he said.

Money and fame doesn't always spell happiness, Brickman said, citing a survey he and other psychology department members have been conducting of Illinois state lottery winners.

THEIR SITUATION is just like that of a star's. We have found in talking with winners that money doesn't necessarily bring them happiness. It can't make up for your personal problems," he said.

Elvis' life story seems a classic in the entertainment world.

He had a dirt-poor childhood, the only one of twin boys who survived birth in a two-room house in Tupelo, Miss. His truck-driving days ended when he recorded his first song for Sun Records in 1954.

Appearances on "The Ed Sullivan Show" gave way to a stint in the U.S. Army, which was followed by a head-on plunge into movies.

Friendships with the likes of Ann-Margaret, two generations of females swooning over hits ranging from "That's All Right, Mama" to "Love Me Tender" and glittering, vibrant concerts highlighted his 23-year career.

Driving his black Lincoln limousine, Presley once was seen dropping off 140 envelopes which, he said, contained checks for charities in Memphis, Nashville, California and a number of others across the country. The singer often extracted promises of anonymity from the organizations.

THE COUNTRY BOY was not as shy about his habit of giving away luxury cars to strangers. He often startled persons whom he met at car dealerships by offering to buy them any car they picked.

Last year, Presley ended a ski resort vacation at Vail, Colo., by buying nine luxury automobiles worth $110,000 for police officers who guarded him, wives of companions and a television newsman who did a story he liked.

A nurse at Baptist Hospital in Memphis, where Presley stayed during his ilntsses, said the singer bought her a

Effort renewed for Moon Lake senior housing

The developer of the Moon Lake area has renewed efforts to bring a senior citizens housing complex to Hoffman Estates.

Robin Construction Co., Chicago, is seeking a low-interest state mortgage loan to finance construction of 80 senior citizen apartments at Volid Drive and Moon Lake Boulevard.

Earlier this year, the firm applied for federal assistance for a similar project near the Moon Lake Convalescent Center, 1545 Barrington Rd., that also would have included some low-income townhouses.

That application was withdrawn in March, however, after some village officials objected to the low-income housing portion of the proposal.

ALTHOUGH THE PROPOSAL has changed, Eric Kant, general manager of Robin Construction, said Wednesday he doubts the new project will fare any better.

He estimated there is a "15 to 20 per cent possibility" the Illinois Housing Development Authority will provide the loan. The agency, which uses tax-exempt bonds to provide the financing is expected to answer Kant's inquiry within two months.

Until the agency indicates whether the funds are available, Kant said, he will not approach the village about the project.

"It's too premature," he said. "There's no sense going before the housing commission now."

The cost of the project is estimated at $2 million. The one-bedroom apartments would be for senior citizens only, Kant said, with no low-income housing included.

THE COMPLEX would be operated nonprofit, which would make the project eligible for 100 per cent financing under the mortgage loan program.

"All we would do is be in the management end of it," Kant said.

The previous proposal was dropped after some village officials had criticized inclusion of low-income housing. Many of those same officials said at

JOHN JR., 14, VISITS his father John Cozzi of Roselle at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago, where Cozzi is recovering from an ulcer attack. Doctors say John Jr. probably saved Cozzi's life when he gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after Cozzi collapsed Saturday night.

Bell to start charging $5 for message unit list

by LEA TONKIN

Curiosity will be costly for Illinois Bell Telephone Co. customers starting Friday when the utility starts charging phone users a minimum of $5 for copies of their monthly message unit reports.

The Illinois Commerce Commission Wednesday approved Illinois Bell's request for the service charge which will only be charged for copies of the report.

Customers who visit phone company offices will be able to view their message unit report at no charge.

But copies, which previously had been free, will be $5 for the first page and 65 cents for each additional page.

The company will provide copies free of charge, however, if there is a billing dispute, Judy Vandewater of the ICC said.

The company does not oppose customers going to their local phone company office to look at their monthly message unit report, says Mernie Miller, Illinois Bell representative in Arlington Heights.

The problem is "that theer are more people than ever wanting to scan details of their local message unit calls," she said.

It's a tremendous clerical job," Mrs. Miller said.

Bus hijacker holds 30-50 hostage

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — A man armed with a sawed-off rifle hijacked a city bus Wednesday night and drove to a Santa Cruz County mountain religious retreat, where he took over a cafeteria, holding 30-50 persons hostage.

The man, described by police as apparently "seeking revenge" for the death of a friend, stole a Santa Cruz city bus late Wednesday but released its four passengers and a driver.

He then drove to Bonnie Doon, a remote mountain town about 15 miles north of Santa Cruz and parked the bus at the Baha'i Center, an ecumenical retreat, and went into the dining room, locked the doors and took over.

Santa Cruz County sheriff's deputies surrounded the area and a special negotiating team was talking with the man.

In panic-stricken moment son becomes dad's savior

by JOHN LAMPINEN

It has been difficult for John Cozzi to sleep lately.

It has been that way for four days. He is 14, and teen-age boys have trouble forgetting enough to relax. Each time he tries, John remembers what happened Saturday night and what he did.

He apparently saved his father's life.

John Cozzi Sr. is at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago recovering from an ulcer attack requiring three pints of blood. Doctors and paramedics figure if his son had not given him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, Cozzi might not have survived.

COZZI, 45, of 235 Spring Hill Dr., Roselle, has suffered from the ulcer since he was a teen-ager. It is a "silent" ulcer. He never knows it is bleeding until he has an attack.

Last time he had one, about four years ago, he lost eight pints of blood.

But Cozzi had been feeling fairly well lately. He was able to do the things with his family that he enjoys doing.

He is a general contractor, and although he has been busy building a new house for the family and another for his married daughter, Lilliann Hellyer, he still found time, daughter Debbie Cozzi, 16, said, to be with the children.

"Our whole family is really close," she said.

NO WHERE WAS IT closer than between John and his dad. It is no accident that John would like to become a contractor or an architect some day.

Sometimes, John recalled, he'd go out with his father to help work on houses. Cozzi was teaching him the plumbing trade.

But the first sign that the ulcer was acting up came Saturday morning. Cozzi mentioned to Debbie that he was bleeding slightly.

It was later that night, while he was watching television with his wife and John, that he began feeling poorly.

HE WAS LYING on the floor and finally got up to go rest in the bedroom. He called for his wife, and she told John to get some smelling salts for him.

"I thought he was going to die," John recalled, "especially when I saw him on the bed when I first came in."

Cozzi was extremely pale, and after John administered the smelling salts, Cozzi got up to go to the bathroom. It

Elections bill threatens April winners

by LUISA GINNETTI

Mayors, village presidents, municipal clerks and city treasurers elected in April will have their four-year terms cut in half if a bill now awaiting Gov. James R. Thompson's signature is not amended.

The technical quirk, which would require all mayors, village presidents, clerks and treasurers to run for four-year terms beginning in 1979 is part of the consolidated elections bill passed by the General Assembly in the closing days of the June session.

One intent of the bill is to have all village presidents, mayors, clerks and treasurers elected in the same odd-numbered years. However, State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, Senate sponsor of the bill, said the wrong years wert written into the bill.

REGNER SAID THE bill should say that all village presidents, mayors, clerks and treasurers up for election in 1979 will serve two-year terms so all these officials will run for four-year terms in 1981. Trustees and aldermtn are not affected by the bill.

"Technically, the way the bill reads now, those elected in 1977 would have to run again in 1979," Regner said. He said that if the bill is signed into law by Thompson as expected, he will introduce legislation in the fall session to correct the dates.

"I've already talked to the sponsors of the bills and some Democrats about it," he said. If the bill is signed and an amendment fails to pass in the fall, however, the shortening of terms will take effect.

If the governor signs the bill and it is not amended in the fall, affected municipal officials would have to file suit to get the law changed, Regner said. "They certainly would have a justifiable lawsuit," he said.

SIXTEEN OFFICIALS in the Northwest suburbs would be affected if the legislation is not amended in the fall.

Among those elected in April and affected by the bill are Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan, Palatine Village Pres, Robert J. Guss and Village Clerk Carolyn Bracci, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter and Village Clerk Helen Wozniak, Mount Prospect Mayor Carolyn Krause and Village Clerk Donald W. Goodman, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Volberding, City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach and City Treasurer Ewald A. Swanson, Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek and Village Clerk Eleanor Turner, Wheeling Village Pres. William Hein and Village Clerk Alberta Klocke and Inverness Village Pres. Russell V. Puzey and Village Clerk Sandy Johnson.

Most local officials were unaware of the bill which threatens their terms and said it should not be signed as it now reads.

"It sounds like a real mess," Palatine Village Pres. Guss said. "From my end of it I know we ran for four years, we took oaths for four years, the electorate elected us for four years and for someone to wipe it out like this is just unreal."

GUSS, WHO was elected to his first term as village president in April, said the bill should be redrafted and not signed by the governor.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Ryan said he was aware of the amendment but believes the governor should veto the bill.

"I think it would be a serious mistake to sign it," Ryan said. "When mistakes are made they should be recognized as such and corrected."

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Hayter said she has been aware of the problem with the bill for some time.

"That's what happens when you've got 4,500 bills going," she said. "Everybody jumped on the bandwagon because they called it consolidation. It doesn't bug me (that her term may be shortened) but what bugs me is the fact that they didn't listen.

"THEY'RE GETTING me mad and usually when people get me mad I go after those jobs," Mrs. Hayter said.

REGNER SAID he is not in favor of an amendatory veto of the bill in which the governor could refuse to approve only that part of the bill dealing with the terms of office and agree to enact the remaining portions of the bill.

An amendatory veto would send the entire bill back to the legislature for an override vote, a situation which Regner wants to avoid.

"Too many people were against the bill and it would just start the whole batle over again," he said. "I would rather do it (correct the bill) by amending it in the fall."

THE ILLINNOIS Municipal League in its Aug. 8 newsletter to member communities has urged municipalities to encourage the governor to veto the entire consolidated elections bill.

In addition to altering the terms of mayors, clerks and treasurers elected this year, the bill specifies that in even-numbered years, primary elections will be in May and general elections in November. In odd-numbered years, primaries would be in March, all school, park and municipal elections in May and non-partisan referendums in November.

The bill also would transfer control of municipal elections from the hands of local village and city clerks to the county clerk's office.

Township faces federal aid delay

Social service agencies may have to wait until January to receive federal revenue-sharing funds from Palatine Township.

Township officials have learned the township has been allocated $279,000 for a 12-month period beginning in October. But the money will not be available to the township until January, said Howard Olsen, township supervisor.

As a result, the township and agencies which rely on federal revenue must hope that a backpayment in federal money arrives in time to extend allocations that will end on October.

BECAUSE OF an accounting error on the township's application for federal revenue-sharing funds, the township was shortchanged on its allocation last year. Olsen expects to receive between $60,000 and $70,000 that should have come with an installment from the federal government this summer.

"I would guess that's going to be the first week of October," Olsen said. "I think that's going to cover the transition (from October to January.)

The township board could offer only three-month allocations to social services it considers most important when it drew up its revenue-sharing budget in July. Eight agencies usually funded by the township were told they would have to wait until October to be reconsidered for revenue-sharing funds.

Township Atty. Richard Cowen has warned the township board, however, that the township cannot be certain the back payment will arrive by October.

Cowen was asked last May to investigate the reason for a decrease in the township's revenue-sharing fund allocation.

HE FOUND the township road and bridge fund taxes were not included when the township's allocation was being tabulated.

Distribution of federal revenue-sharing funds is based on population, per capita income and taxes received by a local unit of government. The addition of the tax effort of the road and bridge district would have resulted in the correct allocation for the township.

Olsen originally said he believed the error was made by the state or federal governments as they processed the township's application.

But the township reportedly is considering suing its accounting firm, Walter Givens Co., to recover an estimated $63,000 in funds lost to the township because of the error.

Federal revenue-sharing money is paid in installments, and $63,000 is the amount the township believes was lost on the next-to-last installment for this fiscal year. There is no way to recover the money from the federal government for that installment, Cowen said, but the error was corrected in time to receive a back payment from the last installment.

State, agency in pact in bias case

Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott Wednesday reached an agreement with a Rolling Meadows travel agency that had been charged with discriminating against a deaf couple.

Cartan Travel Bureau Inc., 1 Crossroads of Commerce, agreed to change the wording in a brochure regarding handicapped persons and also pay the couple $250 "as compensation for their experience."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steinman of New York City, complained to Scott's office in March that Cartan canceled a September 1976 tour to Mexico after learning the Steinmans are deaf.

John Donovan, vice president of operations for Cartan, said the tour was canceled because too few people signed up, and the wording of the brochure was misunderstood.

THE BROCHURE STATED: "A tour membership will not knowingly be granted to individuals with special dietary requirements or mental or physical deficiencies or disabilities which tend to add to the responsibility of the company or tour manager, or which might impede or disrupt the pleasure of other members of these tours."

Scott's office considered the clause discriminatory and Cartan agreed to change it.

But Donovan said the company's policy has not changed.

"We now and in the past have asked handicapped persons to waive any additional liability we might incur because of their handicap," he said. "We don't feel we should be responsible if they suffer an accident or injury related to a specific handicap. They (The Steinmans) misunderstood and thought we wanted to release all liability."

THE CARTAN BROCHURE has been changed to read: "Tour membership is open to any individual and will not be withheld if the company can reasonably accommodate any special requirements which an individual traveler may have. Should meeting such requirements materially add to the company's cost, the traveler will be expected to bear the additional expense."

Scott acted under two state laws, making it a civil rights violation "to deny anyone the full and equal enjoyment of facilities and services of any public accommodations and amusements."

Herbert L. Caplan, chief of litigation for the attorney general's office said he suspects discrimination in the travel industry is common, but "this is the first formal complaint we've had."

The Steinmans first appealed to the American Civil Liberties Union in New York. The case was referred to Scott's office because Cartan's main office is at 1 Crossroads of Commerce in Rolling Meadows.

Cartan is a subsidiary of Carte Blanche Corp. of Los Angeles.

the time, however, senior citizen apartments are needed.

There also had been concern that while the previous plan would locate the senior citizens housing close to the planned Hoffman Estates Hospital and one of the village's fire stations, the location was not close to shopping areas.

Kant said the new location would put the housing near some shopping areas on Golf Road, but he said the distance to shopping remains the project's biggest weakness.

"I don't think we'll get it (the loan)," Kant said. "The hospital's not that important, but transportation and shopping is, and transportation is not that good in Hoffman Estates.

He said, however, Robin Construction, which has developed the Moon Lake apartments, subdivision, golf course and convalescent center, could change the proposed location if necessary.

Be it ever so mobile, it's still home

by PAT DOYLE

Never mind the low-flying jets roaring overhead or the gasoline storage tanks.

The shiny aluminum trailer is home to the former farm girl from Southern Illinois, and she makes the most of it.

The 100 acres of corn, wheat and soybeans she once knew is an 18-year-old memory. The few square feet of flowers, shrubs and grass wedged between two 60-foot mobile homes is what's here today.

The plants are the nearest thing to farm crops for Pat Robinson and Willoway Terrace Mobile Home Park on Oakton Street near the Northwest Tollway in Elk Grove Township.

And they are her source of pride.

"Very few people in here have pretty yards," she said. "They could care less because they are renting space. But it doesn't matter to me who owns it."

OF COURSE, most other mobile home owners move from trailer park to trailer park. Mrs. Robinson's experience is different and helps explain why her tiny yard has multi-colored flowers and trimmed grass.

She moved with her family to Willoway 20 years ago, after her father discovered he could make more money helping to build the Northwest Tollway than plowing fields near the sleepy town of Eldorado.

Except for a few months when they returned to the farm and tried to make a go of it, Mrs. Robinson, 34, has spent the last 20 years at Willoway.

She has lived the last 14 years in the same mobile home with her husband Jerry.

"It's my home. I don't want it to look like a bunch of gypsies live here," she said.

HER YARD IS one way of ensuring that that doesn't happen. There are rows and clusters of flowers along the trailer and in pots. Some are petunias and others geraniums, including some she can't identify.

The grass is cut two or three times per week. She pulls weeds, almost absent-mindedly, while talking to someone.

She is a passionate cleaner, cutter, and weed-puller in a neighborhood where many residents let things go, Mrs. Robinson admits. She does it because it's just her way, and to tell the rest of the world that trailer parks don't have to be untidy.

"When somebody calls them trailer 'camps' it really gets me," she said. "When someone said it recently, I said, "This isn't a damn camp, it's a home.' "

BUT THE PLACE took time to become a home. When she was 16, the family moved back to the farm in Southern Illinois.

"My father wanted to go back to farming again," she said. "But it just didn't work. There wasn't enough money to be made.

"Back then, a man made $60 a week down there," she recalled. "Up here, you could make $300 a week."

So the family stayed in the park and adjusted to a different life. Although there was more money, good things from the old life were missing.

"It was hard for me to get used to the people's ways here," she said, a drawl still noticeable. Life moves at a faster pace, she said, and people seem rude more often.

"It's just something you have to get used to."

Mrs. Robinson adjusted to planes taking off and landing at O'Hare Airport two miles away and doesn't let the loud noise interrupt her while speaking. She just talks louder.

AND SHE ADJUSTED to trucks pulling in and out of the Texaco petroleum terminal behind her home and to the noise and sight of industry traffic in the area.

"I've got no complaints about this place," she said.

"You can be happy no matter where you are. If you want to be happy you can be happy."

One source of happiness for her is that her mobile home is two feet narrower than others. So her yard is two feet wider, or 15 feet wide.

That provides more room for flowers and grass.

PAT ROBINSON shows why she won an award for having an attractive backyard in the Willoway Terrace Mobile Home Park. Not the typical resident, she has lived there for 20 years.

Attorneys defend zoning denial of Sarah's Grove

Attorneys for Schaumburg began their defense Wednesday of the village's denial of apartment zoning for the controversial Sarah's Grove six-flat complex.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel said he believes attorneys for developer Eugene Matanky "failed to prove their case" that a 336-apartment, 20-house development is a desirable transition between single-family housing and a shopping center west of the site.

Matanky filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court last fall in an effort to overturn the village board's decision not to rezone the 26.5-acre site for multi-family development.

"THE VILLAGE'S position is that single-family houses and low-rise, low density townhouses should be built," Siegel said. "Their proposed use is entirely too much for that area."

The site is located near the southeast corner of Schaumburg and Roselle roads, part of a site that the village hopes to preserve as a historical district.

The Sarah's Grove development is opposed by several hundred residents of The Woods and Timbercrest subdivisions, which adjoin the Matanky property on the south and west.

Siegel said several of those residents will be called to testify on behalf of the village today before Judge Richard L. Curry of the Cook County Circuit Court, including Joseph Garvey, 410 Balsam Ct., president of The Woods homeowners group which opposed the project.

SIEGEL SAID he also will call on Albert Gundelach, a real estate appraiser; Alan Saunders, Schaumburg director of planning; and Joseph Zgonina, the village engineer.

In court testimony earlier this week, Matanky testified he has been assured by several lending institutions that mortgage financing for the project is available.

But under questioning by Siegel, Matanky conceded that he has no written agreement on financing from any institution yet, saying he cannot do so until the project wins zoning approval.

The case went to court last Friday, and closing arguments are expected to be delivered this Friday.

The builder's court appeal is the second time in the 21-year history of Schaumburg that a village zoning decision has been questioned.

Several years ago the village's denial of zoning to allow a car wash in a gasoline service station at Golf and Meacham roads was upheld by the court.

THE SMOKE AND FLAMES were real but there was no cause for alarm Wednesday over the burning house on Quentin Road north of Illinois Avenue in Palatine. The abandoned brick structure was set on fire purposely as part of training exercises for the Rolling Meadows and Palatine fire departments. The practice is a common training method to teach various smoke and firefighting techniques.

Keepers recall favorite stories

A day at the zoo reveals animals' personalities

by DAN CHISZAR

DENVER (UPI) — Keepers at the Denver Zoo still remember the kidnaping of Maguba the gorilla, of how she was abducted in the night and spirited from the zoo nursery.

Maguba somehow eluded her captors and scrambled up a tree along Colorado Boulevard. There she waited in the early morning darkness until a tipsy janitor came weaving toward home from a nearby tavern.

"Maguba was used to riding on the backs of keepers because she was still being bottle fed, and she jumped from the tree onto the guy's back," said keeper Jim Gostele. "I think the guy must have panicked because he tried to reach back and grab Maguba and she started biting him.

"HE RAN UP TO a nearby house with Maguba on his back and started banging on the door. The people in the house called the police and told them a guy was on their front porch with a gorilla on his back.

"The police probably laughed until they arrived and saw there really was a gorilla," said the keeper. "They finally called someone from the zoo who came by and picked her up."

Maguba is four years older now, and at 3 p.m. feeding time recently she was teasing her older cagemate, Bibi, while keeper Barbara Cavender brought them fruit, vegetables, eggs and a special gorilla chow.

In a separate cage, big Thomas was sitting, his back against the bars, patiently awaiting dinner. Thomas, a young adult lowland gorilla whose canine teeth are just breaking gums, is kept in a separate cage because keepers think Bibi may be pregnant and they don't want Thomas to rough her up.

"HE HAS NO social graces at all," said Miss Cavender. "He was taken as a baby from Africa and never had to deal with larger animals so he has no idea how to deal in social behavior. He's just always been dominant."

Much calmer than Thomas, is Willy, an epileptic orangutan who lives in another cage of the Denver Zoo Primate House.

Willy periodically suffers seizures. He takes the same medication given to human epileptics and once was taken to a nearby hospital for observation. Willy lives quietly with two female orangutans, Sacci and Roberta.

A closer look at their cage is risky because Roberta spits at people she doesn't like. Zoo strollers, protected by a glass-fronted cage, remain unawar of Roberta's expectoratory tendencies.

THE EAST DOOR of the Primate House opens to a walk leading past three grizzles named Fatmouth, Dumbface and Cutie Pie, and Frank the polar bear. A looping asphalt pathway takes walkers among roaming wild ducks and geese, the freeloaders of the zoo.

The wild fowl are fed every day by keepers who spread feed for them first, then hustle over to feed the zoo's tamer ducks, who would lose out to their more aggressive cousins if forced to compete.

Just past the roaming gangs of wild geese is Bird World, home of penguins who hate cold weather and scene of the ill-fated romance between the Sacred Ibis and the Indian Black-headed Ibis.

THE BREAK-UP between the Ibis' occurred last year. Keepers spied the two birds playing around with nesting material in the foliage of the Aquatic Bird Habitat, and separated them.

"We can't have two birds of different species mating together," said keeper Mike Mason. "It would create hybrids."

There was also the case of the penguins with swollen feet. Mason said the penguins' feet swelled once after being out all night in cold weather. Penguins at the Denver Zoo are a warm weather species from the African Cape. No snow or cold weather for them, said Mason. No one knows how the cool weather caused their feet to swell up, but they're not left out on 15-degree nights any more.

The Pachyderm House is next for a look at Candy, the crybaby elephant. Most keepers swear Candy was ousted from a circus because of her whimpering, but zoo director Clayton Freiheit says no, Candy came from the Bronx Zoo in New York.

"THE ADULT elephants mostly ignore Candy's whining," said keeper Bill Neville. "They understand why she's raising hell and they just ignore her unless they know it's serious.

"Cookie is the oldest, but she delegates authority to Mimi, who does most of the governing. Vicki is the only African elephant in the bunch. She's only seven years old, but she's always trying to get away with as much as she can.

"She's already dominated Candy," he said. "An African elephant is much more aggressive and high strung than Asian elephants and has tusks to back up her temperament."

The walk leads east past the snarls of old Tom, the arthritic cougar who bluffs his younger mate, Sabrina, into submission, and the zoo's two coyotes, Siren and Satan, who always howl in harmony when an ambulance or police car screams by.

Nearby, keeper Roger Yanke, who has been at the Feline House for 11 of his 14 years at the Denver Zoo, took a moment to talk about the smartest and dumbest lions at the zoo.

"HOLLY IS the smartest cat we've ever had," he said. "When she was younger, every time I would open the door in the morning, she would get a bench and pull it over and use it to jump up on a shelf.

"The bench had to be in the exact spot every day. Holly controls the male lion, Caesar, and controlled Caesar's predecessor, Fearless. She does about what she pleases."

Holly's daughter, Maninka, is rated by Yanke as "the dumbest cat we've ever had.

"Even when Maninka was a baby, she was dumb," said Yanke. "She would get tangled up in the wire tree barrier, and then sit and cry because she couldn't get out. All the other cubs would run out into the lion area in the morning, but she would just sit and cry. One of the keepers would have to lift her in. She's probably the dumbest of the bunch."

ONE ZOO CREATURE is not on public display — Charlie Brown, the parrot, who lives on an icebox in the zoo hospital.

Charlie Brown was given to the zoo about three years ago. There was no other place for him at the time, so he ended up in the kitchen of the zoo hospital on the north end of the zoo grounds, said keeper Cindy Bickel.

There, red-eyed Charlie remains perched, screeching "I want out," and "Far out pistachio," looking for one of his favorite snacks.

"Look out, he'll bite," said Mrs. Bickel "He's not too friendly.

"But if we're talking in a back room," she said, "Charlie will scream until we talk in front of him. He doesn't like us talking behind his back."

Ford dog ignores jet set for love of beer drinker

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Former President Gerald Ford has had a little trouble with the mating of his dog Liberty.

America's former first dog spurned an expensive Oregon match.

And then along came a pedigree local beer drinker named Bart.

"I expect Liberty to deliver her litter the first week in October," Ford said laughing.

A VETERINARIAN had advised Ford his Golden Retriever, 3 years old and producer of one litter, had reached that period in which female dogs seek the company of the opposite sex.

Liberty had been sent by plane from the White House to Oregon for her first mating. Now, a second trip was ordered. Robert Barrett, Ford's chief of staff, took Liberty to the airport.

"She knew what was going on. Liberty did not like it. She refused to walk into her air box for the plane trip. I had to slip the box over her. She rolled her eyes," Barrett said.

"Which was more than she did in Oregon," he said.

Liberty ignored the mates of Oregon. Week after week word of failure came back to the Fords.

"I'M AFRIAD Liberty simply lived in sin in Oregon for two months," Mrs. Ford said.

Liberty was flown back to Vail.

A lack of puppies posed a problem. Many friends had asked Ford for a puppy. The former President had found it difficult to refuse.

"To meet all the promises of pups, we'll raid the animal shelter," Barrett said. "I think we'll need 84 pups."

For Liberty's contribution, Barrett now thought of his Vail friend Packy Walker. Walker has a pedigreed Golden Retriever, Bart. Nobody had ever regarded Bart as a suitable mate for a former First Dog. Bart had his own reputation.

The 2½-year-old Golden Retriever was known in Vail for its friendliness. It frequented bars. Bart drank beer.

A TRIBUTE TO Bart's renown was the naming of a bar opened by Vail restaurateur John Purcell. He named it "Bart and Yetti's." Yetti is another amiable hound of the Rockies.

Barrett found Mrs. Ford sunning herself and described how Liberty should be wooed by Bart.

"When Liberty first sees Bart, Bart will be wearing a maroon satin robe with a white ascot, with a monogrammed 'B' on the pocket. Bart will enter carrying two glasses of champagne in his left paw and have a cigaret holder in his right. The cigaret will have a dangling ash.

"In fairness to Bart, Liberty should be wearing a sheer negligee and have a right paw drawn demurely over her chest."

When Mrs. Ford stopped laughing, she told Barrett to let the mating of Liberty and Bart commence.

Bart was taken off beer.

Liberty now is in the Ford garage, awaiting her second litter.

Teacher goes to bat for vampires

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Vampires are a ghoulish form of bats that live in caves, fly when the sky is black and survive by sucking blood from animals — and sometimes humans. They also make interesting pets.

Edwin Gould of Johns Hopkins University who has spent his professional career studying bats, said he once owned a pet vampire and never heard a word of protest from his wife and two children.

"I got the vampire when it was one day old and we kept it for seven months," he said. "I unfortunately changed its blood meal from cow blood to sheep blood and it died. However, it was a very interesting pet to have in the house."

But Gould said vampires, unlike some other bats, are not an endangered species.

"If anything, I am afraid we have too many vampires, particularly in South America where they do an estimated $100 million damage to cattle each year."

Gould, 43, a professor in the school of Hygiene and Public Health, said because most people think of bats as flying mice, the winged creatures have an unfairly maligned reputation.

HE SAID THE three most common bat myths are:

• Bats are blind. "That's just not true. They can discriminate between light and dark, and many bats can see very well."

• All bats carry rabies. "That's the biggest myth because only about 1 per cent of all bats are rabid. That means 99 per cent don't carry rabies. Skunks are more likely to carry rabies than bats."

• Bats will fly into your hair. "Of course, at times bats do fly into people's hair. But that only means the bat made a mistake, the same way you might bump into a sign while walking down the street. It happens far less than you might think, and you don't need to shave your head afterward."

Gould said there are more than 800 species of bats, some smaller than chipmunks and others with a wing spread as tall as some people.

"THE BIGGEST BAT in the world is the Flying Fox, which has a wing span of 5½ feet. They survive by feeding on nectar and fruit. They will find a nectar tree and defend it."

Gould said an angry Flying Fox can look pretty grisly at night.

"If you went up to its nectar tree and shined a flashlight on the tree, the Flying Fox would spread all five feet of its wings and growl. I have studied them in my travels to Malaysia, but I've never been bitten by one."

Gould said, however, he has been bitten by smaller bats, though there were no complications.

WHILE THE FLYING Fox and other bats eat nectar and vampires suck blood, most bats in the United States survive on insects.

"A colony of 100 bats would consume about 24 pounds of mosquitos between a typical June and August," Gould said. "I've known people who had bats nesting on top of their houses but didn't want them removed because they chased away the insects."

Bats nurse their young on milk so they are considered mammals.

Gould said the concept of vampires needing to drink blood from human necks seemed to be in people's minds even before they discovered the three species of bats which survive by blood sucking.

"The idea of Dracula evolved before people came to the New World and discovered vampires. It setms that our mind has the capacity to develop the idea of an animal or person feeding on blood for survival."

Gould, who won a Fulbright Scholarship for his work, said that during his 25 years of studying bats he never had a queasy stomach or doubts about whether he shouldn't spend his time on something else.

"I'm a zoologist at heart, and the things that might put off other people about bats just don't seem to bother me."
